Oregon's Civil War

SO far as a considerable portion of the population of Oregon is concerned, the great world war drops down a notch in importance this week-end and the great Oregon civil war of the grid-iron takes first place.

Always the annual "big game" between the two rival Oregon educational institutions, Oregon State College and the University of Oregon, is a page one event. This year, however, it is nothing short of colossal.

The State College Beavers have battled their way to very near the top of the ladder—so near, in fact, that all they need to do is defeat the University.

But we minimize. When it is said "All the Beavers have to do, etc." — that is quite a proviso. At the University there is no feeling of charity in the matter. The U. of O. lads are out to win the game Saturday, and no doubt about it.

If O. S. C. wins the game the Beavers will play in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day. If Oregon wins the big game in this state and if California should happen to win the big game down there (Stanford vs. Cal.) then the Pacific Coast conference would be tied up in a knot with some five teams—the two in Oregon, the two in Washington and Stanford, all even.

Whatever the outcome of the game in Eugene Saturday, that city will for a short time have more than double its normal population, for a goodly portion of Oregon's population will go there to see this battle of the century between two really excellent football teams.

THE German stage, the German schoolroom, will not see this winter one of their old favorites. It is Friedrich von Schiller's "Wilhelm Tell."

The great work of the Weimar dramatist is under Nazi ban, and no wonder. For it is a story of freedom and the love of freedom—how William Tell, legendary Swiss patriot, refused to salute the cap of the Austrian tyrant, Gessler, ruling over the Swiss, and was condemned to shoot an apple from his own son's head. Tell did it, without scratching the boy, but he kept another arrow for Gessler and helped to free his country from alien oppression.

You can see why the Nazis don't want any such story told to their people at a time, even when written by a 100 per cent German master. It points unpleasant parallels, which even the German people, enclosed in a cultural gas-chamber for a generation, might see all too clearly.

of South America. There have been plenty of hints that Vichy France may throw in with Hitler. Hitler, of course, would like nothing better than to start something in South America.

ON the home front, this little patch comes from Washington: "President Roosevelt told congress to start writing its own ticket today on strike-curbing legislation."

Key house members—Republicans as well as Democrats—with whom he conferred last night report that he appears to favor suggestions for a cooling off period and COMPULSORY arbitra-

tration when strike calls threaten defense production. ALONG that line, the Office of Production Management has sent a trouble-shooter to St. Louis, where an intra-union jurisdictional row has called out 8500 men and tied up many important defense orders. Today's dispatches report: "Joseph Keenan, OPM labor expert, has arranged a conference (at St. Louis) with officials of the AFL machinists and the AFL hosting engineers unions. "The two unions were in dispute as to which should represent TWENTY-FOUR garage workers."

A great many people will believe that a dispute involving representation of 24 men hardly justifies calling 8500 men out on a strike involving defense production.

City of Paris Fined for Bomb Blast in Nazi Cafe

PARIS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The city of Paris was fined 1,000,000 francs (about $20,000) by the German authorities yesterday as the result of a bomb explosion in a Nazi restaurant.

The restaurant, which the Germans said was bombed by terrorists, was one German authority had taken over for their use. Observers expressed belief the Germans have turned to fines as punishment in place of shooting hostages. Until stopped Oct. 27, 188 Frenchmen had been executed by Nazi firing squads.

Rooster at Edenbower Wages War on Mice

A Rhode Island Red rooster, which teams with a cat in ridding the property of mice, is reported by C. R. Grove, resident of Edenbower. Mr. Grove reports that the big rooster has developed a skillful technique in catching and killing mice, and has been seen tunting successfully on numerous occasions around the barn. As he also has a cat which is an excellent mouser, the rapidly developing hunting ability of the rooster indicates a decided reduction in the mouse population of the property in the immediate future, Mr. Grove asserts.

Former Roseburg Student Now Top Rank Broadcaster

"Your announcer, James Doyle." These words, heard frequently over the Mutual-Don Lee broadcasting system from station KJL Los Angeles, recall to many Douglas county residents the features and personality of the young man pictured above, who only a few brief years ago was doing janitor work and helping bake the loaves of bread at MacDougal's bakery in Myrtle Creek. James E. Doyle, chief announcer at station KJL, came to Roseburg in 1922 at the age of 12 years. He attended school at Myrtle Creek and Roseburg and then moved to Eugene, where he attended U. of O., making his own way by doing odd jobs and singing over station KORE. Following his graduation he tried announcing at KORE and later served a brief period at KRNR in Roseburg. Moving to Los Angeles, he secured work with KJL and recently celebrated his fourth anniversary as top-flight network commentator on an announcer. His wife also is a former resident of Douglas county. She was Joyce Busenbark and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Busenbark of Melrose.

TRIBUTE TO GENERAL WHITE RECALLS AID TO ROSEBURG

Editor, News-Review: The death of Major General George A. White has saddened the entire northwest. It marks the passing of a strong character, highly respected and loved by all who knew him and were privileged to call him "friend," and this includes a vast host of people in every walk of life, not only in the five northwestern states, whose military forces had for years been under his command, but in every state of the union and even over seas. Oregon has lost a fine citizen and an able one. It can truly be said of General White that he drew men to him because he had fixed principles and maintained them to the end, come what might. He saw a thing as either right or wrong, and there was no compromise. While his career was largely a military one of marked ability and attainment, his versatile mind prompted him to explore another field of endeavor, that of a novelist in which success attended him from the start. Had George White given his life over to a literary career, his brilliant mind would doubtless have carried him far up the ladder in that field.

In conclusion, I desire to stress one especial activity of General White's that comparatively few of our people know anything about. Nearly eleven years ago, just prior to Dr. E. B. Stewart's and the writer's trip to Washington in behalf of our national branch soldiers' home proposal, General White volunteered his aid with high ranking military and political Washington friends. This help was given and was of avail. Incidentally, George A. White stood by his guns until victory for us was won. We appreciate that kind of friendship. W. C. HARDING

U. S. BUY OF ARGENTINE PRODUCTS RAISES QUERY

Editor News-Review: A few days ago across the top of your paper were these words: "Rejection of two cargoes of rotten Argentine beef intended for the U. S. army is notice that Uncle Sam, in his course of amity, wants no 'bum steers.' Why should this country be buying beef from Argentine? Why not buy the supplies for our army at home so that our citizens may have the money in circulation and to pay their taxes with?"

Doesn't this country have the beef to supply our army? How did Argentine have so much for extra demand? A few years ago turkeys were shipped here from Argentine, put on the market and when served at our cafes were blue in color, tasteless and not in any way palatable. But one thing they accomplished most effectively—that was to so lower the price of fine Oregon turkeys that the growers did not even receive enough to meet expense of production.

I believe in doing for other people, in being neighborly, but I certainly believe my own family should be provided for first. For years now our farmers have been encouraged to cut down production. It has been counted a criminal offense to raise wheat without special permission. Why do I say criminal? Because any violation of the law, or ruling by a special commission, invoked a penalty or punishment.

The liberties of a generation ago, the freedom of enterprise, of production and the privilege of study to know market demands and gauge production accordingly, has been a large factor in making this country the envy of all nations of the earth.

We are capable of retaining our independence as a nation and owe no allegiance to any other nation. We are divinely protected as to situation and if we fall, or we become subject to some other power, it will be because we ourselves are weaklings. We, as a nation, are fully able to protect ourselves if we do not listen to the cries of supposed friends, metaphorically speaking, waiting to embrace us with a dagger in hand to stab us in the back.

Why? What for? Because they want our wealth. But another means being used to gain our wealth without being suspected is by letting loose termites. Termites? What are they? Any living, undermining, destructive agency working in the dark—so to express it—is a termite whether a communist or fascist.

We have opened our gates to our neighbors and said "welcome," but we mean "welcome" to enjoy with us our blessings but not welcome to destroy or change. Let's show our government that we want to still be loyal to that which made the United States of America the greatest nation on the globe.

"We pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands, one nation indi-

DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

Kindness is the very heart of living a practical Christian life. The essence of Christian living is having a kindly fellow feeling for our fellow men. We see him as one of our own kind. He belongs to us and we belong to him. We may not have experienced just the thing that he is suffering, but, as we are of his kind, we are liable to it. Therefore, a feeling of kindness comes into the heart, and the fruit of that feeling is kind dealing with others. Kindness is a word first of all for the home. The Christian home is built on the spirit of kindness. But this kindness reaches far beyond the home. Out into a man's business and even far out into national and international affairs. The spirit of kindness is the Christian influence to heal the world's hurt. That is why the nations failed at the peace table at the close of the World War in 1918. If we failed then because of a lack of Christian kindness, how much more we will need that spirit at the close of the present world conflict. Man's spirit is kindred with God's spirit. The Old Testament speaks of the loving kindness of God. How beautiful is the spirit of man when possessed by the spirit of God. It is then we can do all things through Christ which strengthens us. Amen.
