Nazi-Italy Aid to Japs Apt to Be Moral Support

(By De Witt Mackenzie)
(Wide World War Analyst)
The declaration of war against the United States by Germany and Italy, in alliance with Japan, was fully expected and doesn't alter the position materially. Herr Hitler, as overlord of the axis, undoubtedly hopes that the moral effect of this declaration, delivered at a moment of great triumph because of Japanese success, will be to give him moral support. However, it is likely that the effect has been largely discounted in advance. True, this may presage more direct action against the United States. Indeed one would expect this to be so. But that action would have come in any event, for the normal axis strategy is to strike without warning. It happens to suit Hitler's purpose now to make a show of the formality. Some Good News Noted As for the Japanese end of our now all-inclusive war, the long lane is showing some slight curves even though no turning has developed.

We have some good news to go with the bad. Foremost is the announcement by an American army spokesman in Manila that "the situation is completely in hand" in connection with the Japanese landings on the island of Luzon, of which Manila is the capital. With this is recorded the fine success of our bombers in making three direct hits on a Japanese battleship off Luzon and leaving it a blazing mass.

Manila, Singapore Vital This is encouraging in view of the vital importance of our defense of the Philippines. The battle of the Pacific at this moment pivots on the Japanese assaults against the two great allied bases—our own Philippines and Britain's Singapore.

Possession of these two powerful bases is essential to control of the Pacific. That is to say, it is essential to successful prosecution of the war in the Far East.

While the word from Manila is cheering, we shouldn't jump to conclusions. The Japanese attack is continuing, with fighting forces ashore at various points, and a further landing of parachute troops at an airport near Illanga was reported this morning. We have to sail through a lot of dirty weather yet.
