German government Needham Turnog Neednam Turnoge, United States Commissioner, fixed Miss Ingalls' bond at $7,500 and postponed the arraignment hearing until December 26 after she ask-ed for time to consult an attor-

of Columbia jail.

One question Miss Ingails asked whether being an agent meant "taking an oath and swearing al-legiance, which I never did."

"I was a free agent and took no orders," she said. "I followed no orders other than my own. I was doing something I knew might be questioned if it were found out. I undertook something that I thought I could handle alone and I guess I over-reached myself."
