Blanche Bates of Stage Fame Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Blanche Bates Creel, who played many a spectacular stage role and once stopped an incipient panic in a Philadelphia theater, died of a heart attack after a quiet Christmas reception at her home yesterday. She was 69.

Mistress of both comedy and tragedy, Miss Bates always did the spectacular.

In 1923, while appearing in Philadelphia, a fire broke out. She took complete charge of the situation.

"There's no fire here," she yelled at the audience, "and if there were, what the hell would you do about it?"

The vigorous expletive immobilized the audience. The play went on while the fire was extinguished.

She was married in 1912 to George Creel, then editorial writer for the Rocky Mountain News and reform police commissioner of Denver.

Friends visited the Creel home yesterday, chatted with the former actress and her husband, and their children.

Then Mrs. Creel went upstairs to rest, and died in her sleep.
