What We're Up Against

ONE of the most fatal mistakes in a war is to underestimate your opponent. Hitler himself, we have. in "Mein Kampf," tells what a in Mein Kampt," tells what a costly mistake it was for Germany in 1914 to have tald the many in 1914 to have told its people that the English were a 'nation of shopkeepers" with no talent for war, and who probably wouldn't leave their ease to fight The German soldiers had to learn the truth on the battle lines of France, and it cost them dear to learn.

Probably some such contemptu ous underestimation of Japanese audacity and daring (to say noth ing of the underestimation of paparese treachery and perfidy) REMEMBERING that this is a WORLD war not a war behad something to do with the tragedy at Pearl Harbor.

Let us look our enemies square ly in the face, therefore, and messure our task at full height.

The idea that Germany (or to rise against its leader,

From the best information we can get, the German mood today At the same moment, the Geris one of determined desperation, they like Hitler or not, that they base on the Black sea that has must win the war and live, or been holding out. Germans for 10 years casus and the Middle East generhave been told exactly what their masters wish them to hear, and nothing else. Even those who think for themselves see that they must win- or else. Such a people does not stop fighting, and it can be beaten only by superior force.

Japan's military prowess is no longer open to doubt. To suggest that the Japanese people will not fight desperately to the very end is to misunderstand their mentality. They have been brought from babyhood in the belief that to die for the Emperor is to peror is virtually a god, and the SPECIAL note to the Japs in idea of questioning any mission on which he is sent never even enters the mind of a Japanese soldier. That the breaking of a an's back door. treaty is a breach of faith and an cvil would never enter his mind either, since to him any act decided on by the Emperor-Priest God for the good of the nation is right treaties are regarded merely as a temporary means to an end, in true Hitler fashion.

Neither of these chemies is go ing to collapse e give in for any reason except through being ov erwhelmed by superior military We must not for a mo ment delude ourselves that any other outcome is possible.

DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS "It came upon the midnight clear that glorious song of Christmas message for the world, in this troubled hour of history. A song in the night, that Christ brought to a weary world. A song of light and hope and help. The first Christmas was ushered in with a song, and that song broke over the world when multitudes feared the night of the world's sin. "When they saw the star, they rejoiced with ex ceeding great joy." "Singing in the rain." That is the theme of a popular song, and no won-der it is popular. Anyone should be able to sing in the sunshine. Jesus sang in the rain. He sang in His pain, and because He could sing in the darkest hour of His life, He can bring a song to the dark est hour of human experience. We know now that the glory that broke over the world that first Christmas was not a passing splendor. The good tidings of great joy were not the words of a foolish sentimentalist. It was the royal de-cree of heaven, sung by angel host. It was the triumphant song that was to rise out of suffering to be sung by Him who overcame the world. Je-sus is still the light that shineth in darkness. Man's fury of dreadful deeds cannot put out the light in the heart believing men and women. "Even the hour that darkest seemeth will His changeless goodness prove. From the mist

His brightness streameth, God is wisdom, God is love." Amen.
