

Roosevelt's Tax Request Puts Big Task on Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt yesterday requested $9,000,000,000 in new taxes from the American people next year on top of $17,852,000,000 estimated to be raised by the current tax laws.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the house ways and means committee, which originates tax measures, said that it was impossible immediately to tell how that much new revenue could be obtained but remarked:

"We will raise all the money we can without, of course, turning the tree up by its roots."

Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference that his request for new taxes was based on the double question of how much could be raised and how much the country could stand.

In addition to taxes, he looked to the people to lend the government more than $33,000,000,000 during the year, especially through purchases of defense savings bonds. This unprecedented borrowing he estimated would raise the federal treasury's debt above $110,000,000,000 in spite of the new taxes.

Only 2 Rules Laid Down
The president laid down only two rules which he hoped congress would follow in raising the new taxes. He wanted $2,000,000,000 of new social security taxes in addition to the $1,364,890,000 of social security taxes expected under present rates. He asked that the other $7,000,000,000 be raised through almost any other kind of levy, except a general sales tax.

This was expected at the treasury to result in sharp increases in both individual and corporation income taxes, corporation excess profit taxes and estate and gift taxes; and in a host of increased and new excise taxes on specific commodities.

The president said that although he favored putting special taxes on a large number of consumer articles, especially luxuries, he did not want a general sales tax on everything at this time although future developments might alter that attitude.

Estimating that existing tax laws would produce $17,852,000,000, taking account of social security levies in the next fiscal year, his message contemplated an unprecedented total of $26,852,000,000 in revenues to help offset a $56,000,000,000 war program.

His predictions on the yield from present statutes surprised ways and means committee members almost as much as the size of his request for new levies. Previous estimates had been from $2,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 less than that.

Income Levies To Soar
To most people, the biggest tax boost was slated to come in the form of a stiffer individual income tax. This now starts at about 10 per cent and goes up to 70 per cent, depending on the size of a person's income. Some proposals, including some reported to originate at the treasury, would put the bottom rate at 25 per cent.

If adopted, this would mean that the average person would pay over to the government one-fourth of all he earned above the amount of his exemptions and credits. Under present law a single person gets a minimum exemption of $750 and a family head pays no tax on his first $1,500 of income.

The president specifically asked drastic tightening of the excess profits tax on corporations, saying that "under war conditions the country cannot tolerate undue profits." He objected particularly to a provision in the present law which permits a corporation to continue making large profits in proportion to its invested capital if the corporation can claim profits of such a size as "normal."

Local Junior High Quint to Battle Coos Five Friday

The Roseburg Junior high school basketball team will open its season here Friday with a game against the Marshfield Juniors at 7:30 p. m. at the junior high gymnasium. All basketball games played in the local schools this year will start at 7:30 o'clock, instead of 8 p. m., it was announced today by school officials. The earlier starting time has been ordered in cooperation with the county defense council in order that games may be concluded and crowds dispersed ahead of a possible blackout.

Coach Hod Turner is well pleased with his basketball prospects for this season, reporting that his team indicates growing strength as the season advances. Due to a two week's illness suffered by the coach, the team was late in starting practice, but has made a rapid advance in style of play and in a hotly-contested practice game last night against former junior high players won by a score of 22 to 18 in a brilliant finish in which the Papooses came from behind.

The starting line-up Friday night probably will be Bogard and Krell, forwards; Loomis, center; Harrison and Fults, guards; Turner announced. Reserve forwards will include Young, James, LaRaut, Elliott and Baker. Phippen will be available as reserve center or guard, and Bashford, Wallace and Ramp will be used as reserve guards.

In addition to the game to be played here Friday night, the Papooses have scheduled five other games. They will play at Medford, January 16 and at Ashland, January 23. Medford will come here January 30 and the Papooses will go to Marshfield for an afternoon game, January 31. Ashland will play here February 7.
