HOME NURSING CLASSES OPEN FOR REGISTRATION OF WOMEN THIS WEEK

All women desiring to enroll in one of the three Red Cross Home Nursing classes soon to begin, are asked to go to the ladies rooms of the Elks temple Thursday afternoon, January 22nd, between two and four o'clock and Mrs. J. R. Wharton will be there to register them. Mrs. Wharton is co-chairman with Mrs. T. R. Ness in forming the three classes. Others desiring to register for the class by telephone may call Mrs. Wharton at 293-J.

Persons having taken the Red Cross Home Nursing course previously, are asked to either loan or sell their books to the new class members as no more books can be secured at this time by the Red Cross. A large enrollment of women has already been reported and the classes will begin within a very short time. There is no age limit for women to enter the classes and the course, which will be instructed by registered nurses, is not only extremely interesting, but of the utmost value to the country in war-time. The burden will fall greatly on the shoulders of women in caring for sick and injured in their respective towns and cities and the Red Cross is endeavoring to prepare as many women as possible in knowing what to do in cases of emergency and need.

Bill Provides U. S. Aid Enlistees In Support of Family

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—War and navy department support "in principle" was claimed by interested legislators today for proposed legislation requiring enlisted men in the armed services to allot $15 of their monthly pay to dependent wives and children, with the government matching or bettering that with an additional allowance to families.

Such was the system adopted six months after the United States entered the World war in 1917. Before the armistice, about 400,000 men were making allotments to relatives struggling in the economic backwash of the war.

Rep. Edmiston (D.-W. Va.) introduced the new legislation after conferences with leaders of veterans' organizations. He said today that service officials favored its objective, but questioned its government allowances, in some instances much higher than those in the 1917 act. The measure would cover regulars as well as selectees.

The West Virginian said the need for the legislation would be accentuated if the government decides that adequate manpower cannot be obtained without tightening draft regulations on dependency deferments.

Selective service officials have expressed hope that present liberal rules governing dependents can be maintained. Nevertheless, they have ordered re-examination of the 7,500,000 registrants excused because of claims that they are supporting one or more relatives with a view to ascertaining whether such dependencies still exist or whether "convenient marriages" were involved.
