The matter of holding a class in home nursing under the supervision of the Red Cross was discussed and an enough of the ladies signed up to insure the instruction being given. Arrangements for the class to be organized and the study to be taken up in the near future will be made at once. Attention was called to the thought that a few folk residing in adjacent communities had not been solicited in the Red Cross Roll Call this year, and that committee in charge urged that word be carried to any one who had not been solicited and desired to make this contribution to go as soon as convenient to the Red Cross office in the court house and take out their membership. Miss Welch of the Roseburg office of the Farm Security Administration was guest speaker for the afternoon and led a very helpful discussion of the nutritional needs of the family. American Legion Auxiliary Activities

By MRS. CLAUDE BAKER
If $700 would buy a bomber, the Legion and auxiliary would be sending one this week! They loaned Uncle Sam their building fund. A home of their own was the dream of post and unit but of what value is a home if we have not liberty to enjoy it? So into bonds has gone the savings of years. The auxiliary took its savings of $300, the Legion $400.

Blue stars on a white field composed the service flag for the boys in service. Soon in Roseburg services, these small service flags will appear because the auxiliary wants every home where a boy has gone to serve his country to be represented. Plans are being made by the auxiliary to present parents or relatives with these.

Today when national defense is uppermost in our minds, it is yet an old story to the Legion and its auxiliary. A national defense committee has been a part of the American Legion auxiliary for nearly 20 years. They made little headway, however, in their program on national defense other than earning a suspicion of being militaristic.

Mrs. Victor Micelli, national defense chairman for the unit, explained this week on the auxiliary radio program, how different the picture is today. There is scarcely a day that some reference is not made in the papers to the value of the preparedness plans of the Legion.

The Legion and auxiliary, said Mrs. Micelli, have gone forward through the years, helping, adding their voice of advice; warning and working for preparedness and better armament. In no avenue of good citizenship have we been negligent, she said, and now in our "all out" effort for defense, the Legion and auxiliary are found ready with trained men and women to step into active service in emergency. Trained workers are to be found in child welfare, hospitalization, relief and welfare.

At the yearly American Legion auxiliary convention, reports for the year are presented, explained Mrs. Micelli. I have compiled such a report on national defense and emergency volunteer service, she said. I find six members of the unit on the motor corps, headed by Mrs. Harris Ellsworth. Twenty members are sewing for the Red Cross. Fourteen members are working at the filter station. One of our members has assumed the publicity for nutrition for national defense. Twenty-one members are serving either as instructors for the Red Cross or are students in first aid or motor corps. Many of our first aid instructors are going 30 or more miles every week to teach first aid in nearby towns.

The mobilization of women of Oregon on February 16 to 26 is most important, reminded Mrs. Micelli. We on the Pacific coast, 70 miles from the sea, can well realize the need for this. There will be available a filed record with a complete index of the skill, training and preference of Oregon's women.

My cousin, said Mrs. Micelli, writes me from Colorado that she heads a group organized to take care of evacuated children from the Pacific coast. It is difficult for us, one said, to realize the significance of such a matter of fact statement.

Mrs. Irvin Riegel, president of Umpqua unit is still urging women to volunteer for emergency service. The work of the auxiliary, we realize is no more than all organizations are doing and it is by such patriotic effort that it will help win this war. Mrs. Riegel expressed the joy of all the members when she told of her joy at having a place to meet again. All members should know that the unit will meet until further notice in the I. O. O. F. hall at the usual time.

Got home at 12 from our first aid class at Yoncaia. Peg Young has started a class at Azalea. It is necessary to spend all her Sunday, what with going and coming and teaching three hours.

Japan Angles For Peace With China

TOKYO, Jan. 23—(Official broadcast recorded by AP)—Addressing parliament this afternoon, Premier General Tojo reiterated Japanese willingness to accept any Chungking overtures for peaceful reconciliation if that regime changes its attitude.

He declared that although Japan has been fighting Chungking for five years, she still regards China as a sister nation and has not changed her mind about receiving Chungking with open arms if she only rectifies her mistaken ideas.

"Japan is chastening a spoiled child who was pampered by Anglo-America," the premier stated. He asserted that past faults China would vanish with the appearance of Anglo-American influence. "Now is the time for Chinese leaders to awaken and I take occasion to urge them to do so." Tojo told the house of representatives that at the very outset of the war in the Pacific Japan had received assurances from soviet government that Russia would observe her neutrality pact with Japan to the letter.

LONDON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador to London, told a press conference today he doubted "very much" the rumors that China might conclude a separate peace with Japan. He said that the "situation in Malaya and the south seas in general gives us cause for anxiety," but that he knew the government and the people were confident of the ultimate outcome of the struggle.

Don't blame your child! It looks like just a nasty habit, but it may mean that ugly, crawling roundworms are starting trouble inside the child right now. Other warning signs are: "picky" appetite, fidgeting, uneasy stomach, itching seat.

Goff, Tompkins Face Final Vote For Grange Head

Fred A. Goff, one of Douglas county's most active grange leaders, will oppose Morton Tompkins of Dayton in final voting, during the month of April, for the office of master of the Oregon state grange. The preferential primary election, recently completed, eliminated as candidates W. J. Wilcox, Mosler; Glen L. Adams, Salem, and Rufus E. Wood, Oregon City.

Tompkins received the greatest number of votes in the primary voting, with Goff running second. Under the grange system of election, the two candidates receiving the greatest number of votes in the primary will be the candidates in the final election.

Mr. Goff, who has served as county deputy, secretary of Pomona grange, agricultural committee and in various important grange posts for a number of years, has also taken an active part in state grange work. He has been a member of the executive committee of the state grange, has headed agricultural committee work and has been a leader in various fields of grange activity.

Tompkins has the advantage of being a resident of the more densely populated section of the state, but grange members here predict that Goff will pick up a large share of the votes which went to candidates eliminated in the primary.

The two men are candidates to succeed Ray W. Gill, who was not a candidate for reelection.
