Dan Cupid's Busy Season

THE Wedding March is America's theme song just now, as thousands of young couples prepare to celebrate St. Valentine's day in the good old-fashioned way.

"Be my Valentine" has a new meaning as wartime quickens the national tempo and marriage figures hit an all-time high.

Though almost any day looks good to the girl who gets her man, there's no other date so nice for a wedding anniversary as February 14, the one day in every year when nobody is ashamed of being sentimental.

That little man with the bow and arrow is expected to score historic victories on all fronts this year, as the world pauses to pay tribute to the patron saint of love in the midst of Armageddon.

It's good to know that wedding bells still can drown out the sound of cannon, and that General Cupid flies faster than the bombers.

Already America's marriage totals have surpassed the previous record set in 1917, the bumper war bride year. In 1941 a million and a half American girls went to the altar, and the 1942 grand total is expected to approach two million.

Antimacassar: What Started It?

ANTIMACASSARS, those filmy little knitted doo-dads on the headrests and arms of upholstered chairs, got their name back in the 19th century from the same Macassar strait which is back in the news today as the scene of a major naval engagement in the Far East.

Back in the mauve midyears, Macassar made news on the home front when housewives went on the war-path against the oily hair lotions used by dandies and ladies for smoothing their coiffures.

The hair oil came from whales, and seamen found the best whales for that purpose in Macassar strait.

American women developed the anti-macassar (get it?), little pieces of lace, embroidery or colored cloth to protect their home furnishings.

Early in the 20th century antimacassars lost popularity when Macassar oil went out, and didn't make a comeback until hair styles began demanding oil again a few years ago. That's probably why you'll see many people crocheting antimacassars this year as a smart spruce-up stunt after spring cleaning.

The Grace of Judas

THIRTY pieces of silver jingling in his bloody hands, Vidkun Quisling has become "premier" of Norway. He had the effrontery to play out this scene on the ramparts of the 16th century Aker fort of Oslo, the very spot where Norwegian patriots, "convicted" of loving their country, have faced the gestapo firing squad.

Thus Quisling, like Judas, has received his price for betrayal.
But Judas, hated of men, when the enormity of his betrayal became clear to him, went and hanged himself.

The one act that remains to be played in this malodorous drama is for Quisling to do the same.
Only thus can he elevate himself to the status of a Judas.

promptly add up the probable cost and decide without hesitation that the overhead is too high to be afforded anywhere but in Los Angeles.)

TODAY'S show was among the lesser events.

Yesterday Dorothy Lamour was the star performer. She'd just come in from the east where she'd been selling defense bonds, and at the Union station was met by a battalion of the California state guard, the Los Angeles county band, the Women's Ambulance and Defense corps, the sheriff's posse, civic functionaries and motion picture personalities. (See yesterday's Times for full list.)

She was escorted to Pershing square, where she sold a $50,000 defense bond, even though unattended in her customary sarong.

Cynics in the audience privately voiced the opinion that the sale had been staked out for her.

DON'T laugh.

Don't jump (after reading of this afternoon's $1.40 stamp sale total) to the unwarranted conclusion that Los Angeles people are unwilling to lay their dough on the line for Uncle Sam.

That isn't true. They're laying it on the line, as everywhere else. But not in front of the crowds at a three-ring circus.

This show out in Pershing square is just another instance of the exuberant southern California way of doing things.

WENT out again last night to Olvera street. Have figured out finally why people go there.
They're driven by suppressed desires, and Olvera street caters to such.

WE all have moments when we yearn to be world-weary wanderers, flitting from one far corner of the earth to another, imbibing gin slings in Singapore and lemon squashes in Bali, flicking an experience-dulled eye on the old Moulinm pagoda and cyni-cally watching "the sun come up like thunder out of China cross the bay."

But all that costs money.
And takes time away from one's job.

Olvera street has a babel of strange tongues—99 and 44 onehundredths-per cent Mexican, but satisfyingly strange. It has the rankly exotic odors one associates with the earth's strange and crowded corners.

And it costs only 14 cents to get there—seven cents on the street car each way. And can be done after hours.

That must be why it is so en-duringly popular.

Rev. Perry Smith on Lincoln Day Broadcast

If he were alive today, Abraham Lincoln would admonish the American people to strive for victory by making the United States a glorious example of true democracy at work. This is the theme of the 15th of a series of "Speak Up for Democracy" programs to be heard over station KRNR at 5 p. m. Wednesday, February 11.

With the announcement that the Rev. Perry Smith has been selected to deliver the Lincoln day message over station KRNR, Commander Gay Mowery of Patrick Kelley V. F. W. post, No.
2468, emphasized the similarity of circumstances which prevail today and those which confronted Lincoln when he became the 16th president of the United States.

"Just as in Lincoln's time, the basic principles of human liberty are again in jeopardy," declared Commander Mowery. "Today America is engaged in a worldwide civil war between those who believe in individual liberty and those who would destroy human rights."

Old Ewe Bears Lambs Eight Days Apart

After bearing a lamb on the date of Jan. 30, an old ewe in the flock belonging to John Stephens of Myrtle Creek, must have heard of the federal government's demands for increased production. At any rate, the ewe produced another lamb Saturday, Feb.
7, according to Mr. Stephens, who was in Roseburg Monday to report the unusual occurrence.

LETTERS to the Editor

DANGER'S EMPLOYMENT IN HIGH-PAY JOB CRITICIZED

Editor News-Review:

I am enclosing clipping from one of the metropolitan Sunday papers showing a picture of Mayris Chaney, who is described as protegee and friend of the first lady of the land, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt.

Mrs. (or Miss) Chaney draws a salary of $4600 from the U. S. treasury as head of the children's activities in physical fitness. Just how badly in need of rhythmic dancing the children of this nation are, I am unable to say. However, I am of the opinion that the $4600 paid to this good friend of Mrs. Roosevelt could be used to much better advantage in many, many ways, especially when we are asked to buy bonds and more bonds.

I should like to draw a comparison between Miss Chaney's work and the work done by the thousands of women throughout the nation in giving of their time gratis in filter center work and many other activities.

The many cases of "boondoggling" coming to the attention of the public of late are not conducive to the building of the public morale which the administration is so anxious to obtain.

DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

Morale

Among the words which have come into prominence during the war none is more frequently used than the word "morale." The dictionary defines "morale" as moral and mental factors such as spirit, hope, zeal, confidence, such mental and moral state as in a body of men—an army and such like. To the successful prosecution of a war, hope, zeal, confidence are essential. Consequently, careful attention is given to this. The radio, press and platform are pressed into service to develop and encourage these qualities among the troops, and throughout the nation. No war is ever won where faith in the cause is weak, confidence in the leader gone and enthusiasm lacking. The church which is engaged in eternal warfare, might well take a leaf out of the notebook of those charged with sustaining the morale of the army and the nation in time of national crisis. No group in all the world should have greater cause for hope and confidence than the Christian church, and yet it is all too true that this spirit has been lacking during the last twenty years. The church is now confronted with the task of giving men a new and vigorous faith in the overruling providence of God. But if we are to do that for those whose faith breaks down under the strain and shock of war, we must ourselves be confident, hopeful and enthusiastic with a firm faith in God. Amen.

U. S. Prisoners Assured Good Care by Red Cross

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Senator Thomas (R. Idaho) said today that he was informed that the American Red Cross had received assurances that the Japanese Red Cross had arranged for adequate care of United States prisoners and internees held by Japan.

"We are carrying on relief work among war prisoners and civilian internees according to the spirit of the Geneva convention of 1929. With authority of the Japanese government we have organized in our central committee relief service for war prisoners and civilian internees. Through the intermediary, International Red Cross, we are prepared to furnish facilities to the representative of the international committee, who will undertake relief of American prisoners of war and civilian internees under Japanese authority."

Your Federal Income Tax

No. 32
Losses From Casualties, Theft, and Wagers

To be deductible, a loss arising from "fires, storms, shipwrecks, or other casualty" need not be connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. If his home or his automobile is destroyed by fire, or his summer bungalow damaged by flood or storm, he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained.

A loss occasioned by damage to an automobile maintained for pleasure, where such damage results from the faulty driving of the taxpayer or other person operating the automobile, but is not due to the willful act or negligence of the taxpayer, is a deductible loss in the computation of net income. If damage to a taxpayer's automobile results from the faulty driving of the operator of an automobile with which the taxpayer collides, the loss occasioned to the taxpayer by such damage is likewise deductible.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction, and need not be incurred in trade or business. Hence, the loss occasioned by the theft of jewelry or an automobile used for pleasure and convenience is deductible. It must be established, however, that the property actually was stolen. Should circumstances attending the loss leave the owner in doubt as to whether it was stolen or lost the claim would not be allowed.

Losses from wagering transactions are allowable only to the extent of the gains from
