Politics Not as Usual

At a gathering of leaders of a major political party, the cry went up, "Win the war, yes, but politics as usual." You could see them tramping each other in a scramble for the pie corner, and running like mad to catch the gravy train.

Politics, yes, but not politics as usual. This country and all her citizens must have shirt sleeves rolled up now for only one job—winning the war.

There will be primaries this spring and summer and elections this fall as usual. No one has argued seriously otherwise.

Electoral and bitter political wrangling, however, are two different things. France played politics as usual right up until Nazi boots goosestepped under the Arc de Triomphe.

Unfortunately, evidence exists that some of our tub-thumping statesmen would follow the same disastrous route as did the French. Some of them seem dead set on an old-time, knock-down political fight as if there were nothing greater at stake than election of an alderman from the third ward.

The people will elect those they believe will do the most to finish the job so well started by MacArthur and others. The only consideration is which candidate has done or will do the most to hasten the day of victory.

It's the little contributions, the almost insignificant efforts that add up to victory. We need the big bond purchases, the headlined war efforts, but the small, unsung, unnoiced co-operation of everyone is what will win this war.

Two workmen spend their lunch hour peeling tin foil off empty cigar packages. Insignificant? Child's play? Perhaps. They went without lunch, or hurried through to save that tin foil for war.

Don't let anyone tell you those men saving tin foil aren't helping fight the battle of the Atlantic and the Pacific.

from increased war production finds a resting place. WHAT follows will be inflation. Inflation ROBS EVERYONE except a few smart gougers. IF we could freeze all prices at (or near) existing levels, we might be able to ward off the worst of the evils of inflation. But unless we freeze all prices it isn't going to do a great deal of good to freeze any prices. The politicians lack the courage to freeze all prices.

THIS war, even in its present early stages, is providing us with a tremendous object lesson in elementary economics.

It is teaching us that in waging war only guns, tanks, ships, planes, etc. count. Appropriations mean little except as a means to an end. You can't stop a Jap plane or tank with a thousand-dollar bill.

Only finished weapons IN ABUNDANCE will stop the enemy.

WE should remember that when peace comes.

For decades business has been going into cartels, agreements, fair trade laws and such like, all designed to hold down production and limit competition.

The result was what we had before the war—too little prosperity, too little abundance, TOO MUCH scarcity.

MAYBE some day we'll learn the tremendous lesson that we can HAVE only what we PRODUCE—that we can't share what isn't produced.

THE next step would be doing away with ALL limits on production—business men's cartels, trade agreements, fair trade laws, tariffs and such like and labor's limited working hours, restricted production, closed shop, etc.

If that were done HONESTLY AND SINCERELY throughout the world, we might have something approaching prosperity.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 2—There has developed an unusual angle on the war in the hearts of a congressional committee which shows that while the United States has muffed some important matters, a large share of the inconvenience now experienced by the American people can be laid at the doors of the British.

Here is what the congressional committee uncovered: Jesse Jones has been kicked around for not buying more natural rubber and for not starting the manufacture of synthetic two years ago when it was advised by the war industry board.

The British gave every assurance and guarantee that the Dutch East Indies and that rubber-tin region was immune from invasion. It was asserted that the Japanese could never get to first base; that Singapore was invulnerable. It develops that the United States relied upon these guarantees and did not stock up with tin and rubber more than sufficient to play a little safe.

Another contest is being staged between steel and wood over a proposed big airplane factory, location of which cannot be revealed. It is estimated that 20,000 tons of very desirable steel will be needed to construct this in the ordinary manner and that the period of construction would be one year or more and the cost abnormally high.

There is an extensive program for army air bases in the northwest, with more in blueprint. Wood trusses for hangars on these airfields have been urged instead of steel. At first it was argued that timber is more inflammable and that no wood was wanted around a hangar which might be bombed.

The lumber industry has to fight for everything it gets in this war effort. Wood lightboats, urged by the northwest, are still rejected. The authorities hold tenaciously for light sheet steel boats, asserting that a wood boat splinters under shell fire.

Lettermen's Dance to Feature "Whiskerino"

DAILY DEVOTIONS DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS On a hill far away stood an old rugged cross, The emblem of suffering and shame. And I love that old cross where the dearest and best For a world of lost sinners was slain.

Oh that old rugged cross, so despised by the world, Has a wondrous attraction for me. For the dear Lamb of God left His glory above, To bear it to dark calvary.

In the old rugged cross stained with blood so divine, A wondrous beauty I see: For 'twas on that old cross Jesus suffered and died To pardon and sanctify me.

To the old rugged cross I will ever be true, Its shame and reproach gladly I bear; Then He'll call me some day to my home far away, Where His glory forever I'll share.

Chorus: So I'll cherish the old rugged cross, Till my trophies at last I lay down; I will cling to the old rugged cross, And exchange it some day for a crown. Amen. (Rev. George Bernard)

Innovation being tried out this year. The lettermen have planned to have a "Whiskerino" as a new feature of their dance. All boys in school have been forbidden to shave from March 30 to April 10.

Baseball Talent At Roseburg High Begins Workouts

By MICKEY CAMPBELL Baseball turnouts at Roseburg high school have been numbering about 30 hopefuls to date, according to Coach "Hod" Turner.

Coach Turner reported that prospects are good except for the fact that most of the boys have had little experience and therefore have much to learn.

The principal weak spot is in the pitching department, which lacks seasoned talent. It is always necessary to have a few good mound ace before a successful team can be built.

infielders include Loomis and Olson at first base; Baker, Holbrook, and Talbert at second; Merlin Anderson and Pulps at shortstop; Sandstede and Stephens at third base.

The interclass track meet, to be held at Roseburg high school tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, is being strongly emphasized in an attempt to secure the largest number of participants.

The regular track squad has also been training vigorously this week. Most of the boys will compete in the interclass contest but they are pointing primarily toward the Hayward relays at Eugene April 10.
