

German Plants Near Paris Again Blasted

Formation bureau in its midnight communique, fled army troops were said to have effected a number of successful operations there in the last two days and annihilated about 3,000 Germans.

Nazis' Claim Countered.

As if countering a U. S. navy announcement that 28 axis submarines had been sunk or presumed sunk by United States forces so far, the Nazi high command asserted that the German navy and air force destroyed 105 allied merchant ships totalling 646,900 tons during the month of March.

U-boats alone sank 91 ships totalling 584,900 tons, the German communique said, adding that 39 other merchant vessels were heavily damaged by torpedo or bomb hits.

Informed quarters in Washington said America's anti-submarine campaign was being stepped up rapidly to meet an expected summer drive by 300 to 400 U-boats, and declared that the Germans had failed in their major objective—to divert U. S. naval strength from more vital war fronts.

voy, Sir Stafford Cripps, revived hopes for a settlement of the all important question of Indian self-rule, announcing that he would prolong negotiations into next week.

Both Sir Stafford and the dominant all-India congress party manifested a willingness to seek a compromise, and it was understood that the congress party executive committee was drafting counter-proposals to be submitted to the British envoy.

Dispatches from the Indian capital said that by postponing his departure for home in the midst of an apparent deadlock over Britain's take-it-or-leave-it offer, Sir Stafford seemed to have left the door open for the discussion of the counter-proposals.

The all-India radio said Sir Stafford conferred with the congress party president for an hour and then told newsmen:

"I hope there will be many more meetings between us."

Port Moresby Faces Threat. Meanwhile, dispatches from Australia indicated that Japan's invasion forces in the southwest Pacific, halted in their attempted overland drive in New Guinea, were preparing to launch a seaborne attack on the key allied base at Port Moresby, only 300 miles across the Torres strait from Australia itself.

The Sydney Sun declared such an assault was "suggested by recent movements of enemy ships, which are being constantly attacked at Lae and Salamua by the allied air forces."

The newspaper also reported that the Japanese were receiving "considerable" aerial reinforcements, threatening to challenge the air superiority won by United States and Australian fliers in the battle for the approaches to Australia.

The Sun's correspondent at united nations headquarters reported today that eight fully equipped Japanese divisions, between 120,000 and 150,000 men, now are believed massed in Java and at Singapore awaiting the starting signal of Japan's next major offensive.

These forces are said to include large numbers of parachute troops.

The Sun correspondent said the growing flow of United States aid to Australia was considered likely to speed Japan's next move, implying it would be against Australia.

A British broadcast said American and Aussie fliers had destroyed or crippled 96 Japanese planes with a loss of only 12 of their own since March 10.

Wary of the stiff allied fighter defenses, Japanese planes made their first night attack on Darwin, Australia's north coast port last night, after suffering heavy losses in previous daylight raids. Action in Philippines.

In the Philippine theater, a war department bulletin reported sharp skirmishes on Bataan peninsula in the wake of yesterday's big-scale assault, in which Japanese troops captured some American-Filipino outposts but failed to reach the main defense lines.

The war department said enemy artillery and dive bombers attacked Lieut. Gen. Wainwright's Bataan positions and Japanese planes continued their round-the-clock assaults on fortresses in Manila bay. However, the Japanese were forced to fly at such high altitudes that their bombing was ineffective.

Big guns of Fort Mills on Corregidor island duelled with Japanese batteries on the south shore of the bay.

Jap Supplies Destroyed. American-Filipino commando troops have raided two Japanese bases on the southern Philippine island of Mindanao, and military observers at Washington predicted today that the invaders would be attacked frequently by the thousands of native fighters hidden in teak and ebony forests of the island.

One raid was on the hamlet of Digos, 23 miles south of the main Japanese base at Davao. A small force of U. S. troops burned 22 warehouses of food, gasoline and ammunition, destroyed military equipment, and escaped to the forest of Cotobato, some 10 miles to the west, without losing a man.

The supplies were believed to be part of the stores the Japanese are accumulating for the drive against New Guinea and Australia, and such raids may upset the enemy's timetable.

Some 250 miles west of Digos, across the Moro gulf, a native Sulu unit fought to the heart of the important Japanese-occupied city of Zamboanga in a surprise raid. The Sulus destroyed several machine-gun nests, inflicted heavy casualties, and withdrew unscathed, apparently to the forest just north of Zamboanga.

done it again, the navy reported Wednesday, and for his unprecedented double success has been awarded the equivalent of a second Distinguished Flying Cross and given an officer's commission.

Mason's second successful attack was one of three submarine sinkings reported by the navy Wednesday. The three, two in the Atlantic and one in the Pacific, raised to a grand total of 28 the number of axis undersea craft announced as "sunk or presumed sunk" by United States military and naval forces thus far in the war. Of this total, 21 were blasted in the Atlantic and seven in the Pacific.

Others Probably Sunk

In addition to these, the navy asserted that "there is evidence of additional sinkings of axis undersea craft" in its campaign against merchant shipping raiders. But it said no claims would be made to these until they are absolutely certain and until the news will be of "no possible use to the enemy."

MEET THE WEST'S BEET SUGAR GROWER This year he will produce about one and three-quarter million tons of sugar — one-fourth of all America's sugar. Since World War I he has increased his production over 100%. In the present war emergency he is growing more sugar beets than ever before. He has cultivated 916,000 western acres with a system of crop rotation and fertilization which is highly beneficial to the soil. With the by-products of his industry — beet tops, beet pulp, molasses — he fattens yearly millions of head of cattle. (In the growing and processing of sugar beets there are no wastes!) THE WEST'S BEET SUGAR GROWER is a key man in this war. Without him any U. S. sugar ration might be less per person weekly than the amount now planned. In fact, this sugar he grows inside America permits us to take almost in stride the present loss of Philippine sugar — the smaller shipments from other areas. It permits us to spare sugar for our war allies — and to make a million tons of sugar into smokeless powder — while still giving our civilian population a fairly liberal ration. And present beet sugar production is only the beginning. Western growers will harvest a record crop of sugar beets this fall. Each year "for the duration" production should increase. The important thing now is to do your part to make the sugar ration work. Remember, sugar may be needed to manufacture smokeless powder! But remember, too, that we in America will always have sugar. We will always have the good beet sugar of the West. The sugar that, come war or peace, flows freely from U. S. beet fields to U. S. sugar bowls. The largest-selling sugar grown in the West
