SOLDIERS are supposed to fight not talk. Eloquence, generally speaking, has little place as men face cannon-hurled death.

There shall be no compromise. We shall win or we shall die." To the Australian Parliament.

"Men will not fight and men will not die unless they know what they are fighting and dying for."

"I came through and I shall return." Arriving in Australia from the Philippines.

"Take every other normal precaution for protection of the headquarters, but let's keep the flag flying."

"Only those are fit to live who are not afraid to die." To a West Point graduating class.

"This job will last a long time." After marriage to Jean Faircloth.

"Very well, if we lose 3000 men, we lose 3001." When warned in France that a certain operation would result in 3000 casualties.

"I shall keep the soldier's faith." Assuming command of United Nations' forces in Southwest Pacific.

THE rush of war weddings apparently may bring drastic measures in Washington. There the office of price administration has suggested that bakers stop slicing bread. This proposal purportedly is offered as a means of saving time, labor, and paper.

If the prospective bride is well aware that she may have to slice bread, she'll think again about marrying that lad before he goes off to war.

of the much-talked campaign to join up with Hitler.

PREMIER General Hideki Tojo says (for public consumption):

"If India should remain as before under the military control of Britain, it would, I am afraid, be unavailing in the course of our subjugation of British forces there that India will suffer great calamities."

He adds: "British influence in India is now about to be exterminated."

THIS gives a slant on the propaganda the Japs have been conducting in India. It may also provide a slant on India's dicker-ing leaders.

They've been listening, of course, to the Japs.

DISPATCHES tell us that Louis Johnson, ex-assistant U. S. secretary of war and now FDR's personal minister to India, has had talks with Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, past president, and Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, present president, of the All-India National Congress.

What they talked about is not divulged.

He is said to bear a letter from FDR of undisclosed contents to a unidentified Indian leader. It is undisclosed whether he has yet delivered it.

His talks are described as "exploratory," which all horse-traders will understand.

THE United States, of course, is doing all it can to bring the British and the Indian leaders together. You need only a glance at your map to be convinced of the importance of India in this war.

It is too bad it is so shaky.

ON the European front, the British send 300 bombers against the industrial area in the German Rhineland and the Paris industrial area.

The number is significant. The Germans sent only 400 bombers against London in their heaviest raid.

The British claim a loss of only two per cent of their bombers involved.

THERE are heavy stringings on the Russian front, and both sides claim successes.

(As when one ring fighter says at the end of the round: "That was a tough one I hung on his jaw" and the other proclaims to his seconds: "I sure gave him a stiff punch in the midriff.")

Australia, for the moment, seems to be relatively neglected by the Japs.

ON the home front Senator McNary swings strong Republican support behind senatorial efforts to write drastic limitations on war profits into the newest 19 billion dollar military appropriations bill and comments:

"We don't run wars to make millionaires."

All patriotic citizens agree.

Nazis to Obtain French Warships, Belief of Britain

By DREW MIDDLETON LONDON, April 8.—(AP)—Apprehension over the part the Vichy government will play in the momentous events of this year is growing here in view of the emergence of Pierre Laval from the shadows, the transfer of the French battleship Dunkerque from Algiers to Toulon, and the outstanding strategic importance of Madagascar to the struggle for control of the Indian ocean.

The reappearance of Laval, former vice premier in the Vichy government at Vichy, was called "ominous" by qualified sources. It was asserted the Germans had chosen him to press Vichy for the surrender of all or part of the French fleet to Ger-

Ialo Stephens, Jr., Wins Primary Training Trophy

Ialo Stephens, Jr., a member of the Royal Canadian Flying corps, who has been spending several days in Roseburg, left last night for Canada to resume flight training. He has been enjoying a brief furlough at his home here, visiting his mother, Mrs. Elma Stephens, and his father, Ialo D. Stephens of the Stephens Motor Co.

He has just completed primary training and received the most coveted award of the school, a trophy for the best all-around student in both ground and flight training. He now is to enter the second and final phase of his training, which will prepare him for actual service.

Yoncalla Student Wins Place on 2nd Honor Roll

OREGON COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, Monmouth, Ore., April 8.—Miss Nancy Madden, freshman at the Oregon College of Education, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Madden, of Yoncalla, has earned a place on the second honor roll for the winter term by carrying a load of fifteen term hours and making a grade point average of 3.0 or B.

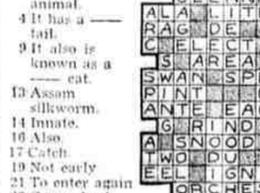

Those students earning places on the first honor roll are required to carry a load of fifteen term hours for which a grade point average of 3.5 or better is earned.

AT THE NATIONAL

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8.—A few days ago one of the dollar-a-year men of WPB Boss Donald Nelson announced that small business should close up shop and not waste the economic strength of the nation; the war effort should be in the hands of big business. Originally, Nelson had some such idea but he has changed with his discovery that production must be increased. The United States senate has now attempted to solve the problem by setting up a corporation (within WPB) devoted exclusively to small business and authorizing $100,000,000. If it works many little industries in the northwest will be saved from extinction.

Unlike RFC, which expects loans to be repaid and Jesse Jones asks for good security, the terms for small business will be more liberal. It is conceded by the senators that many loans will never find their way back to the treasury. Considering the waste and excessive profits now going on in the war effort, the small losses to be incurred will be negligible, and hasn't Nelson said to produce and forget the cost?

The new corporation will act as a prime contractor and let sub-contracts to little industry and these small shops will be given the same attention as the big corporations; the corporation can buy land, expand plants, provide equipment.

Salvation of Garages This new set-up will be a benefit to hundreds of garages in the northwest and save them from going out of business because of the tire shortage. A survey discloses that there are many garages with welding units, lathes, shapers and grinding machines, all tools that are needed and can be used. Many of the major lumber operators have their own railroad equipment and their mechanics are qualified and equipped to turn out innumerable articles requiring steel and other metals and they can make gondolas and freight cars now badly needed.

Mining Will Be Aided Industry is being appealed to "to do more," but the unending line of business men who come to Washington return home empty handed and many are compelled to close their shops for want of material to produce for civilian use. All this the senate hopes to cure.

The mining industry, dormant in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, will be eligible for loans from the $100,000,000. There is a shortage of copper, zinc, lead, tungsten, chrome and other metals now buried in the ground of the northwest. Red tape hitherto has made it impossible to obtain a able of manufacturing something for an airplane, it only bolts and screws. The small foundries, stove works, plywood plants and some of the pulp mills can do war work. All of these industries have been ignored in the past, for procurement officers of army and navy preferred to do business with some 100 of the largest corporations in the United States.

Injustice Corrected Truman senatorial committee investigating the war effort, after a study of the bomber and interceptor factories of the west coast, charged that delay in production of these badly needed airplanes is the fault or failure of responsible government to give sub-contracts to several hundred small shops which make the thousand-and-odd necessary parts entering into construction; the government procurement has been more anxious to expand the assembly plants and overlook the shops that make the gadgets. Senator Mon C. Wallgren of Washington signed this report.

For months a northwest little factory, employing 600 workers, begged for a loan of $500,000 to expand. This factory has been offered $1,000,000 of orders for a certain airplane part; other airplane corporations offered additional orders. Nothing happened although no fighting plane can go into the air and drop a bomb without this item the little industry can produce. Another northwest concern, ready to turn out small boats for the navy or make machinery, could get nowhere when its president came to the national capital and offered his services. The maker of those heavy logging trucks which can go anywhere in the forests and emerge on the highway with tons of plywood logs, offered to build these trucks to carry guns. He was turned down and a big eastern corporation which never made a logging truck was given the contract.

The small business corporation, authorized by the senate, will stop this sort of attitude on the part of the government.

government loan to open ore deposits or work it. For more than a year the old OPM refused to clear any of these mining properties, the dollar-a-year men in charge not wishing to sanction a development that might come into competition with the large operators; at least that is one report current here.

Annual Senior Day Held at R. H. S.

The fifth annual Douglas County Senior day was held yesterday in the Roseburg senior high school. The purpose of the program is to acquaint graduating seniors with possibilities of what they may do after graduation. Representatives from Oregon State college and the colleges of education were here, as well as vocational supervisors for youths not able or interested in going to college. Approximately 15 high schools participated in the program, which was declared a success by all present. Included on the program were conferences led by Dr. Walter Redford, president of Ashland normal school; Dr. E. M. Pallet, registrar at Oregon university; E. B. Lemon, registrar at Oregon State; Dr. Battie, general extension division; Dr. Poling, Mr. Morse, Mr. Calkins, general vocational speakers. Emphasis was placed on the continuance of normal procedures as to college education in this emergency period.

Age No Barrier to Job If Man Efficient

DETROIT, April 7.—(AP)—The Hudson naval arsenal advertised: "Wanted: A-1 toolmakers, experienced jig and fixture inspectors. Age limit 45 to 98 years." The ad brought, among others, G. Y. Courtney, 74, and white haired, who had been on relief at times since 1929. He goes to work Monday.

"And we'll take them up to 101 if they are able to do the job," said a plant executive.

Former efficiency expert for an automobile company, Courtney said in the 13 years he had been without a job he'd never quit reading the help-wanted ads.
