Northwest Given Ample Protection, War Official Says

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—The war department is using all available means of protecting the Pacific northwest, Robert P. Patterson, under secretary of war, has informed Senator McNary of Oregon.

The senator had asked the department to state its policy on defense of the area. Patterson replied, "troops of all branches and services with adequate arms and equipment have been strategically located within this region, forming a protective force. As necessity may require, such additional forces as may be available will be located in this region to afford complete protection and defense which any given situation may demand."

He added that the department is closely coordinated with the navy department in all phases of defense of the region. The undersecretary said the military situation would not permit him to be more specific in details.

SALEM, April 13.—(AP)—The Oregon evacuation committee is making plans for providing distribution of food to civilians in case of enemy attack, Governor Sprague today advised Secretary of Agriculture Wickard.

The state public welfare commission will store food and clothing in areas removed from the coast for distribution to evacuees. Wickard had asked the governor to provide food and clothes for evacuees.

W. T. Rigdon, Oregon's Oldest Undertaker, Dies

SALEM, April 13.—(AP)—Winfield T. Rigdon, 93, Oregon's oldest undertaker, died at his home here yesterday.

He was born in Iowa, and his parents brought him to Oregon in 1850. He owned a warehouse, drug and sawmill business in Jefferson, and came to Salem in 1889. He entered the undertaking business here in 1891.

Rigdon served in the legislature in 1882, later was a member of the city council, and was a lifelong republican.

Survivors include the widow, three daughters and a son.

Employer-Labor Relation "Freeze" Advised by Land

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, advocated today "some form of freezing" labor and employer relationship to "do away with what I call this daily agitation."

Land told the house naval committee he believed open shop agreements, close shop agreements, and all other agreements between labor and management should be frozen in their present status "for the duration of the war."

That, he added, would be "the simplest, the easiest and the quickest solution that will be just to labor, to capital, and to the people of the United States."

Land withheld his views on suspension of 40-hour week legislation but said he was "definitely opposed" to doubletime pay during the war.

"This is not a time for profligating on any basis," he commented. "We're up against a long, hard show, and the sooner we realize it, the better."

Advocates of restrictive labor legislation, meanwhile served notice that only an agreement by unions to waive overtime pay for a 48-hour work week in war industries would avert them from efforts to force a showdown in congress next week on the question.
