The Vacation Trend

OREGON recreational resorts probably will be called upon soon for as much, and possibly more, service than in late years, according to results of recent surveys.

THE Russians, likewise, had the advantage of short inside lines. That is one thing that has made it possible for them to stop Hitler's victorious march.

THE Russians are one of the prize puzzles. The dispatches picture them as rising confidently. They are said to believe they can lick the Germans in Western Russia.

A forecast of the trend is shown in a poll recently made among the thousands of workers in Portland shipyards.

Similar results were shown in a survey conducted among motorists recently by a travel agency, which reported that more than 30 per cent of the persons interviewed are planning trips of 14 days or more during the coming vacation period.

Tire and gasoline rationing, highway congestion and numerous other factors doubtless will reduce by a considerable margin the volume of travel in private vehicles.

This trend already has been recognized nationally by the United States forest service, which has announced its intention to keep open for public use, if possible, the main roads, improved camp grounds and scenic routes and to encourage their use.

Douglas county, naturally, is greatly concerned by the vacation trend in view of the fact that a considerable portion of the annual income of this area results from tourist and vacationist expenditures.

There is imposed upon the resort owners, however, the responsibility of acquainting potential patrons with their individual facilities, and a widespread campaign of advertising of Umpqua valley recreational resources is obviously to be recommended.

er Jap advances reported in Burma, indications are stronger than ever that India will rank soon with Russia as one of the two most important fronts of the world conflict.

INDIA, torn by factional strife with her most numerous faction a professor and a practitioner of NON-RESISTANCE, must of her temptations that the Japs find it hard to resist.

Gandhi's chief weapon in his long struggle with Britain has been the hunger strike.

A hunger strike would be duck soup for the murderous Japs.

INDIA, in time of peace, was one of Britain's great resources. She now becomes a liability—for she must be DEFENDED.

Britain's great naval strength is spread thinly over the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and other waters where thousands of leagues of lifeline communications must be guarded.

Assembling from these widely scattered forces a fleet large enough to cope with the Japs is no easy task.

BRITAIN'S present situation is a good example of the weaknesses of world empire.

The Germans, from the start have had the advantage of short inside lines of communication and supply. The British, on whose empire the sun never sets, are scattered all over the world.

In helping them, we also are scattered all over the world.

THE Russians speak sharply to the Japs, warning them on the first anniversary of the Russian-Japanese neutrality, to "live up to all the ramifications of that agreement."

Pravda, newspaper organ of the communist party, says: "It is necessary that the Japanese military and fascist cliques who are dizzy with military success should understand that their jabbering about war and invasion IN THE NORTH might damage first of all and most of all JAPAN herself."

Siberia is NORTH of Japan. THAT is about as strong a hint as can be given that if the Japs tackle Siberia Russia will bombard Japan from Vladivostok.

War Dept. Appeals for Surveying Instruments

The war department today issued an appeal to the public for surveying instruments for the use of the corps of engineers in construction work. Most urgently needed are transits, levels and plane tables.

All surveying equipment in the hands of commercial firms has been purchased by the corps of engineers, but there is still an acute shortage of instruments for the work on hand. It is believed that many instruments of this nature are owned by individuals or firms throughout the United States, who are not using them at present and who would be glad to turn them over to the Engineers.

Glide

GLIDE, April 14.—Mrs. Sidney Comfort is spending a couple of weeks visiting in Washington. Wade Eggleston of Monmouth visited over the week-end with Harold Blakeley.

Bobby Horn spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Blakeley. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Green and Arlos, Miss Margaret Blakeley and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Horn and sons, Jack and Bobby, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Blakeley Easter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15. Two oil companies with outlets through thousands of service stations in the northwest plan discontinuance of the highway maps they have been distributing.

This step is taken to conserve paper and with the knowledge that touring will rapidly diminish in that area, especially with gasoline rationing. The road maps advertised, of course, the particular gasoline. Later, it is predicted, all gasoline will be pooled and this is a further reason for not advertising the gas.

About the opening of deer hunting season sportsmen may look for a warning from the national capital not to waste ammunition and shells. The crack-down may come earlier.

The American way of life is rapidly changing since Pearl Harbor. Donald Nelson's war production board is doing its best to impress this fact on the people, that this nation is in a war and that sacrifices must be made.

Within 60 days or less there will be 70 items now of everyday use under the ban and their manufacture will not be permitted until peace comes again. These items range from metal ash trays to weighing machines and they include all manner of electric devices from waffle iron to toaster.

May Use Cedar Blinds. Without exception each of the 70 articles is composed in part, if not entirely, of metal. Explanation is that metals are more essential for war work than for civilian purposes, and war comes first—just as the army was arguing (without effect) two years ago in mapping out a tentative war program.

By June the radio manufacturers will be up to their necks in war work; there will be no more venetian blinds of metal but those of Port Orford cedar will be permitted; mixers, whippers and juicers which lessen the work of the housewife will no longer be made, and this also goes for the vacuum cleaner, vegetable bin, clothes trees, plant and flower supports, washing machines and pressing irons.

At first blush, it would appear that the housewife will be compelled to make the greater sacrifices, for the contraptions forbidden are largely for domestic use.

To a large extent the building of dwellings will be frozen, the exceptions being the claptrap domiciles thrown together to provide shelter for industrial workers. The extent of this curtailment on the lumber business is not estimated.

Scores of Plants Suffer. The situation is viewed philosophically by WPB Nelson. Scores of factories which have been producing the 70 items cannot adapt themselves to any other endeavor and must fall by the wayside. Mr. Nelson says these are the casualties of war and he only hopes that there will not be too many. Such small plants as can be converted to war work will, eventually, receive orders. Uncle Sam is moving as rapidly as he can to gear up for the greatest productive effort in the world's history; he has accomplished more in four months than Britain did in the first year. The automobile factories are producing tanks or airplane engines; autos and tires for the general public are things of the past; comes now a long list of conveniences which can not be made after April, others in May. Around the corner is another phase which will deal with the use of steel. Mr. Nelson admits that the orders of WPB will have a profound effect upon the whole economy.

People's Voice Heeded. Realizing what a forest fire means, people on the west coast poured in so many letters and telegrams that the senate appropriations committee approved a sum of money. The pleas came from Aberdeen, Spokane, Seattle, Hoquiam, Newport, Wash., Portland, Salem, Eugene, Ore., and several California communities. Owners of timber, sawmills, plywood plants united in stressing the urgency for forest fire protection in wires to Senator Holman, member of the committee. These were backed up by Senators Bone and Wallgren of Washington, Senator McNary of Oregon, and Senator Thomas of Idaho, and a long list of officials from the forest service and from the timber division of the interior department.
