An End to Bidding

It won't do to become too optimistic, but there are evidences that Washington is making ready to get hard-boiled about the few thousand non-allen enemies who are deliberately sabotaging our war effort from within.

Recently the Department of Justice has acted against George W. Christians of the Crusader White Shirts, in Chattanooga; Rudolph Fahl of Denver; Robert Noble and Ellis O. Jones of Los Angeles; and William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirts leader, arrested in Connecticut and taken to Indianapolis.

One need only consider the geographical distribution of these arrests to guess they are not the individual acts of zealous local prosecutors. They are first steps to carry out a more realistic policy on the part of the nation's top law officer, the attorney general.

As Mr. Biddle hears down, there will be outraged screams from certain professional defenders of the civil liberties. Some will be sincere and others disingenuous. To our mind, the most charitable thing that can be said of any such protest will be that it is dangerously shortsighted and mistaken.

Reiterating lifelong devotion to every freedom guaranteed by the Constitution and to some others, we urge Attorney General Biddle not to be swayed in any way from going to town on every fifth columnist his capable G-men can find in this country.

This is not, in any way, denial of these freedoms of speech and press without which American democracy could not endure. Neither is it a call for witch-burning, for the sort of hysterical oppression which disgraced the administration of justice after the World War.

Rather, it is frank recognition that these United States are peck-marked with both naturalized and native-born Americans who in word, deed and thought, deliberately are betraying this country to its foreign enemies.

There is no excuse today, if ever there was, for permitting these traitors to sell out their country with impunity. We know what happened to other democracies which were too lenient in the name of the conventional freedoms.

Francis Biddle is a liberal of persuasion. He has been reluctant to stick a toe into the hot water of repression. He has delayed so long, in fact, that his super-caution has won for itself the apt epithet "Biddling."

Under such a chief law officer, there is no danger of any repetition of the Mitchell Palmer scandals. The menace is rather that even with a praiseworthy start, we may proceed too slowly against the Judases in our midst.

Permit us to commend Mr. Biddle on the steps he has taken thus far, and to express the hope that they may portend a complete end to Biddling.

Better Neighbors

MUTUAL interdependence is drawing Mexico and the United States closer together. Distrust and envy die hard. So does superciliousness. We two neighbors do not fully understand each other yet. But we are learning.

Strangely enough, the betterment rests in part upon our sudden discovery that the smaller republic can do something important for us. So long as our country was the exclusive benefactor, the sensitive Mexicans knew we felt our superiority, and they resented it.

day she is our sole source of antimony. She supplies us with vanadium, tungsten, some tin, hides, zinc, copper, and sisal and henequen fibers. These are war needs. Now the Latinos deal with us on a basis resembling equality. So relations improve.

That Lives May Be Saved

KNOWLEDGE of first aid methods, learned in a CCC camp, enabled a Cleveland youth to save the life of a young woman seriously injured in a traffic accident.

Similar knowledge, now being acquired by thousands of men and women in Red Cross classes throughout the country, may save many lives in a like manner, even though those taking the courses as a war measure never see an air raid or serve in combat zones.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21—War industries in the north-west will be unable to operate at capacity unless the threatened labor shortage is overcome. There are not enough mechanics or green hands available now for the shipbuilding program and the airplane factories. It is a fact that scouts from some of the large industries in Washington and Oregon are now in the Rocky mountain states looking for mechanics. In the mountain area there are no big industries and the scouts hope to round up the men necessary for the coast.

One personnel man is looking for 30,000 men and he isn't particular where they come from. He hopes to attract several thousand from Denver, some from Cheyenne and will go to Omaha if he needs to find workers. Men engaged must pay their own transportation. At Bremerton navy yard H. L. Mason, lieutenant U. S. navy reserves, employment officer, is reaching out for every available man. He has notified George P. Sheridan, National Youth administration, Tacoma, that he has jobs for about 150 NYA every week.

It is estimated that 6,000 must be transported from Portland to Vancouver, Wash., when the shipyards on the Washington shore of the Columbia are at the peak. Moving of this number of workers back and forth will be a problem. A greater problem will be facilities for workers to reach Swan Island, where 50 oil tankers are to be constructed in a yard now being built.

Proposed to President Roosevelt by Sidney Hillman as part of the program for administration of manpower is the establishment of a labor pool or battalion, a mobile reservoir of workers which, under a directing head, can be shifted from one war industry to another as a shortage of workers develops. This proposal was made looking forward to the time when scarcity of labor for war work will become acute.

House Need Imperative

The housing trouble is breaking out all over the northwest. The thousands of dwelling at Bremerton, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Spokane and Pasco, the units authorized for Medford, Albany, Corvallis, Pendleton and Walla Walla are insufficient to meet the demand. Into all of these communities are swarming an army of workers who must have a place to sleep. Housing of the most temporary and flimsy character means an expenditure of about $3,000 per unit and in some instances up to $4,000.

Dairy Farmers Balk

John L. Lewis intends trying to unionize the dairy farmers of Oregon, Washington and Idaho as part of his campaign to enroll an estimated 3,500,000 men in the dairy industry. To date approximately 30,000 dairymen have joined up with the United Mine Workers of America (U. M. W.), the membership being in New York and Michigan. The U. M. W. is Lewis' personal union and his reaching out for the dairymen is his first step in his plan to establish a third labor organization.

"Power of God" Movie to Be Shown at Church Here

The story deals with the problems of modern life: Unbelief, childless homes, poverty, wealth, youth's inopportunity. How these

DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS Religious freedom, like all other freedoms, is a by-product. It is the fruit of something else which is primary and basic. Freedom is a spiritual ideal. Ideals cannot be captured by direct quest. They could not be kept if they should be captured in that manner. The ideal of freedom cannot be forced upon any people from the outside. The ideal of freedom cannot be inherited by one generation from a past generation. Freedom must be achieved by each generation and each people for itself. Following the World War I European countries in which crowned heads were destroyed and democracies set up threw away their chance for the very simple reason that they were not prepared for it. And freedom at the present moment is battling for its life throughout the whole world. It is gone in Spain, Germany, Italy, Rumania, Russia, Japan, and it is fast fading out in England, and in a measure in the United States. It looks as if we are coming upon another day when the decline of spiritual religion throughout the world, our own country included, is going to rob mankind of all freedom. It looks as if the battle must be fought again. Amen.

problems are solved makes for a story that will not be forgotten. Musically 'The Power of God' is a treat for all lovers of good music and master compositions such as Haendel's Messiah and Mendelssohn's I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

The film was produced on the R. K. O. Pathe lot as a Roland Reed production under the supervision of L. Meyer. The general public is most cordially invited to see this picture. A silver offering will be taken up to defray the expenses connected with the showing of the film.

MYRTLE CREEK, April 18.—Mrs. Annie Critchfield, who has been confined to her bed all winter on account of a broken hip, and who was taken to the county hospital about two weeks ago, is reported to be gaining very rapidly in health in her new quarters.

Mrs. Kenneth Winston and baby, Brent, of Portland, motored to Myrtle Creek last Monday to bring Mrs. Winston's mother, Mrs. Ruth Wynter, home after a week's visit with her two daughters, Mrs. Winston and Mrs. Larry Baird.

Henry Ackert is reconditioning his house where he is expecting to move soon, having recently sold the one which he has been occupying to Mr. and Mrs. Noah Sellers.

Brumbaugh, who has made his home at the W. C. Bates home for the past year, recently moved up South Myrtle where he will live at the Henslee home, which is very close to Mr. Brumbaugh's own ranch.

Mrs. G. R. Bates is spending the week in Portland visiting with her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Golden, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Schweiger. Miss Marjorie Johnson was a week-end guest at the home of her mother, Mrs. Madge Gazley. She returned to Portland Sunday where she is employed with Zellerbach's paper company. Mrs. J. L. Chaney had as guests last week her sister, Mrs. Roy Elmore, and daughter, Mrs. Frank Moody, of Eugene.

Value of Booster Solutions as Crop Aids Pointed Out

Barnyard manure placed in barrels or other watertight containers and then covered with water, will provide a source of liquid "booster" solutions highly valuable in growing farm and home gardens, points out J. Roland Parker, county agent.

Some care is necessary in handling, however, to prevent damage from too strong concentrations. Only enough material should be put in a barrel so that it may be stirred several times over a period of one or two days. After that the liquid is diluted with additional water until it has a light amber color, when it is safe to use. A pint of this liquid per plant when transplanting will serve as a booster solution, or it may be poured along the side of growing plants to stimulate more rapid growth. For this purpose it may be used at intervals of 10 days to two weeks on growing plants with great benefit, particularly if soils are not very fertile. Leafy vegetables are especially benefitted from its use.

In some respects these liquid fertilizers made from barnyard manures are more valuable in promoting growth than some of the chemical fertilizers, although many of the latter may be used to good advantage.

Various formulas for starter or booster solutions are in successful use, points out Mr. Parker. They are widely used in transplanting tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, celery, and even with melons. It is important that chemical fertilizers used in such solutions be carefully weighed. When made up by guess, the solutions may be in such proportions as to damage plants or do them little good.

One starter or booster solution made from chemical fertilizers and quite commonly used is made as follows: 20 ounces of 11-48-0 ammoniated phosphate, 10 ounces nitrate of potash, if obtainable, (or 10 ounces of sulphate of potash) to 50 gallons of water.
