We Are Impatient

It was just a small news story and not, as things are rated these days, a very important one. In fact the subject of the story was nothing more sensational or startling than the homely task of delivering milk. But somehow our attention is held by the little item. It seems to tell a story of one of the serious failings of Americans. We are impatient, wasteful, careless of the future.

The dairies that deliver milk to retail customers will not be able to do so after the tires on their delivery equipment are worn out. They will not be permitted to buy more tires for retail delivery. They can make wholesale deliveries to stores. The customers will then be expected to walk to the stores and carry home their retail purchases of milk.

Apparently, as we read the news story, the dairymen talked the problem over and worked out a system of delivering milk every other day instead of daily. Thus the evil day of no delivery at all would be postponed twice as long. The reasoning was very sound. The plan would benefit everyone and cause but little if any inconvenience.

But the agreement broke down. The dairies are back on their old daily delivery schedules again. Why? Without knowing the details we can make a mighty close guess that enough customers complained so sharply that one or more of the dairymen could stand the jawing no more and abandoned the plan. So the really sensible scheme failed. So Roseburg milk customers will go and get their milk much, much, sooner.

Apparently we just cannot and will not believe that soon there will be no more rubber. We have forgotten about saving for a rainy day. Somehow we must recover from that kind of thinking—a war cannot be won by people who won't face facts.

Editorials on News

Rostov was the southern high water mark of their 1941 advance.

Their retreat began there.

DONT jump to conclusions from day to day. This is a big battle, with immense forces on both sides. There will be varying successes.

Remember Gettysburg, where for three days the tide of battle flowed back and forth. On the beginning of the third and last day its outcome was in doubt. But the failure of Lee's cavalry to get around into the Union rear and the stopping of Pickett's charge at the Bloody Angle decided it.

The tide of the battle of Gettysburg and the tide of the war between the states turned at the same time.

THAT can happen on the plains of Russia. But it will happen much more slowly. The forces at Gettysburg were a mere handful as compared with the forces engaged in the battle of Russia.

The forging of a decision in that great struggle will take time.

RUSSIAN dispatches still tell of destruction of German tanks, claiming today that 750 have been smashed since the Kharkov battle began, including 85 knocked out on Thursday.

It is possible that destruction of German weapons is one of T.

ON the home front, there is talk of sending ten senators and ten representatives—equally divided between Republicans and Democrats—to London for a joint meeting with parliament. The invitation is said to have been delivered by an unnamed British spokesman at a secret session at the capitol.

Today's dispatches mention that fear of public criticism of the trip as a congressional junket is holding back a decision.

THIS writer is inclined to think it is a good idea. Aside from any other effect it might have, it would tend to keep CONGRESS in the picture.

Practically dictatorial powers HAVE to be wielded by the President in time of war. Lincoln was given such power by congress and didn't hesitate to use it. War requires swift decisions to meet swiftly changing conditions, and swift decisions can't be made by huge deliberative bodies such as congress.

But it will be far better for us in the long run if we do not permit congress to drop out of the picture while the war is on.

A SIGNIFICANT little note in the news:

The Germans shoot ten hostages in occupied France in reprisal for an attack on a German soldier on May 19 and say they'll shoot ten more if the attackers are not found and delivered up in eight days.

These are the "friends of France" Laval is doing the dirty work for.

Ban Commercial Use of Red Cross Name, F. R. Asks

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt yesterday urged congressional action on legislation to forbid the use of the Red Cross name for commercial purposes.

He wrote letters to Chairman Van Nuys (D-Ind.) of the senate judiciary committee and Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) of the house foreign affairs committee in which he declared "It was almost a sacrilege for any person for private material benefit to use an emblem created by international agreement solely for humane purposes and as a protective mark for the sick and wounded of armies and those engaged in extending aid to them."

Mr. Roosevelt said the fact that such use had preceded the enactment of laws to make effective provisions of international treaty forbidding use of the Red Cross name or sign for commercial purposes should not stand as a bar to remedial legislation.

Recruiting of Women Will Start Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—The war department announced today that recruiting for the women's army auxiliary corps' first officer candidate school would start tomorrow in regular army recruiting stations throughout the country.

All applications must be filed on or before June 4. The school will commence about July 15 at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, under the direction of Col. Don C. Faith.

Enrollment will be for the duration of the war and for not more than six months thereafter. Officer candidates must be United States citizens, between 21 and 45, with at least a high school education or its equivalent. They may be married or single.

Approximately 450 candidates will be chosen for the first training school. The candidates, while in training, will receive $50 a month, plus uniforms and maintenance.

The war department, emphasizing that recruiting would be handled by the regular stations, said applications sent directly to the department would not be considered.

Gasoline Output From Coal, Shale May be Sought

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—Production of gasoline from coal and shale will be attempted by the bureau of mines if congress approves requests for experimental funds in the $162,167,000 interior appropriations bill.

Citing available coal supplies in this area, some members of the senate appropriations committee said that if an economical process of extracting gasoline could be developed it might go a long way toward relieving the shortage in the east.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, testifying in connection with the appropriations bill, told committee members recently that this country eventually might find itself the only source of oil for the United Nations. While he did not discuss the eastern seaboard shortage, he urged a study of the coal and shale processes.

"Of course," Ickes told the committee, "We have enough oil now but we do not know when we are going to be forced to resort to coal and shale for synthetic gasoline. The way the war is going in the world, we shortly will be and pretty nearly are now the only country upon which the United Nations can rely for oil and gasoline."

"Whether we ought to use it now or not, we ought to know where we can get an augmented supply when we need it, and we do not know. All through this thing we have always been too little, too late."

It had been a mystery to all, Ickes said, where Germany gets "apparently an inexhaustible supply of gasoline." He said it must be coming from coal and shale, adding that so far as was known the Germans could not obtain gasoline of as high octane rating for fighting planes as the United States was getting from crude oil.

Musical Recital Given By Riddle High Students

RIDDLE, May 26.—One of the most enjoyable entertainments given by the local high school this year was the musical recital presented Friday evening. Unusual talent was displayed by a number of the students and the chorus directed by Gordon Frazee was exceptionally good. The program was varied to show the different types of music, sacred, semi-classical and popular. Several months ago the high school gave a musical program over KRNR, which was well received.

Following is the program presented Friday evening:

Selection, school orchestra; remarks, Prof. H. Lundberg; "America," chorus; "Prayer Perfect," Alonia Smith; "Camptown Races" and "Oh, Suzanna," chorus; medley of military airs, accordion solo, Jerry Sackett; "Were You There," chorus; "Lord's Prayer," Gordon Frazee; "In the Gloaming," chorus; vocal solo, "Bells of the Sea," Jerry Sackett; guitar solo, Covie Robbins; solo, "Over the Billowy Sea," Leland Harter; "Noia," piano solo, Edward Hart; "White Cliffs of Dover," chorus; "Can't You Hear Me Calling, Caroline," trio, Betty Smith, Gordon Frazee, Ruth Sletert; "Deep in the Heart of Texas," chorus.
