Here's How You Can Grease the Skids Under the Axis

GREASE REACHES RENDERING PLANT

GREASE GOES INTO COOKER

THEN THROUGH FILTER MACHINE

SOAP, GLYCERIN AND PRETTY GIRL

U. S. housewives can help win the war right in their own kitchens by saving meat drippings, deep frying fats and other grease for conversion into soap and glycerin. Cans of kitchen grease turned in to meat dealers are collected and sent to a rendering plant where the fat undergoes numerous chemical treatments before emerging at a munitions plant as highly explosive nitroglycerin. Melted grease is poured into a cooker where it is boiled several hours to free foreign materials, which settle at the bottom of the vat. The clear fluid is mixed with a powdered chemical and piped into a filter apparatus for its final bath, winding up as a water-clear liquid. When the grease is mixed with a lye solution at one of the nation's big soap factories, it separates into soap and glycerin. Mildred Mihalovic of Cleveland holds the results of this processing: a bar of soap and tubes of crude and refined glycerin, the base for many explosives.

Closing of the Roseburg bowling alleys for their annual overhauling has been postponed until July 24, and the recreation hall will remain open until that date, Floyd Baughman, owner-manager, reported today. The postponement was forced by the inability

USO Agent Due Here to Help In Drive Completion

I. B. Rhoades of Portland, state campaign representative of the United Service Organizations, was expected to spend this afternoon and evening in Roseburg conferring with Harvey Stark, county USO campaign chairman. Mr. Rhoades will assist the local chairman in making plans to complete the drive in Douglas county.

The city of Roseburg has made an excellent response to the USO appeal, Mr. Stark reports, but communities outside of Roseburg are lagging. At the present time, the chairman states, approximately $1300 has been raised toward the quota of $3600. The major portion of the fund so far raised has come from the city of Roseburg, Mr. Stark states.

The county chairman particularly praised the work of W. A.
