the border. There will NOT be a second front HERE any more than elsewhere in the world.

LET'S try reading between the lines. Mussolini is saying to his Italians, who hate Germany and are sick of the war...

SIMON LAKE, one of the inventors of the submarine, thinks the Germans are using huge UNDER-WATER freighters to supply their submarines...

LAKE proposes to a congressional committee that we build a fleet of undersea freighters to get away from submarine raids on our supply lines.

Henry Kaiser and others are proposing fleets of cargo-carrying airplanes to accomplish the same purpose—with greater speed.

TRouble is brewing in India. The All-India congress (Gandhi's outfit) meets on Friday of this week, and Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru says that not only will it ratify the proposed civil disobedience movement but will draw up a detailed program for carrying it out.

ON the home front in Oregon, the state liquor commission, reporting on the year ending June 30, 1942, as compared with the previous year, reveals that more people (as represented by more permit holders) are drinking more liquor...

From the war production standpoint this is mighty serious. It means, the National Safety council computes, that we shall lose five hundred million man-days of labor, at a time when we are pressed to find enough workers to care for our military needs.

Half a billion man-days is equivalent approximately to two million men working fifty 40-hour weeks.

Those two million men are enough to provide the labor for building 71 battleships, or 625 destroyers, or 24,000 flying fortresses, or 120,000 fighter planes, or 312,500 light tanks.

In time of war we can't evaluate lost labor in terms of man-days, or even in humanitarian terms. We have to think in terms of armament and munitions—the tools with which civilization, as we have come to know it, is to be saved from the Huns.

It is up to every worker, and every worker's family, and every employer—and then to the public as a whole—to fight the mounting curve of accidents, both within the factory and outside.

the Russians, but haven't started any. The Japs are massing troops on the Siberian border and inching forward toward Australia and (probably) Alaska.

BUT only in Russia is there fighting on a major scale. Everybody else is waiting to see what the Russians will be able to do.

HERE is an interesting slant on the second front: Mussolini, speaking on the ITALIAN side of the Yugoslav-Italian border, says truculently: "The law in ITALY will be applied in UNRELENTING manner against those who pourish idle dreams on THIS or that side of

Concerning the NORTHWEST As Viewed at the National Capitol By John W. Kelly

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6.—Any day word may come that the Japanese have invaded Siberia, and the United States will be helpless to go to Russia's assistance because the enemy is creating a barrier in the Aleutian islands to keep back the Americans. This is the statement made by Maxim Litvinoff, soviet ambassador, to a group of United States senators in a hideaway chamber in the national capitol building. Litvinoff was worried, depressed, and was appealing to the senators to see President Roosevelt and get some action.

Retail Sales Tax Urged by Officer Of Business Assn.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—A spokesman for the National Retail Dry Goods association urged the senate finance committee yesterday to adopt a 5 per cent retail sales tax to be in force until six months after the end of the war.

Disagreeing with the treasury's contention that a federal sales tax would be inflationary, Jay Iglauer, chairman of the association's taxation committee, declared such a levy would be "distinctly deflationary" and would siphon off considerable excess purchasing power.

These things must be done without delay (the second front) if done at all, said Litvinoff, who begged for less conversation and more action. Senators who listened to the impassioned plea of the ambassador gained the impression that Russia is in a very bad way; that unless a second front is opened up within a few weeks Stalin may consider terms of peace with Hitler. And that would be a mess.

English channel and landed in Belgium for an invasion of Germany.

Hitler cannot afford to ignore a threatened invasion and would withdraw a substantial part of his army in Russia to defend the homeland, argued Litvinoff.

United States has been and is sending tanks and other materiel to Russia via Archangel and Murmansk (with heavy losses from submarine and plane attacks), where unloading facilities are limited. Discontinue shipments to Russia, said the ambassador, and use the vessels to move troops from England into Belgium and to carry supplies to American troops, all under heavy convoy.
