DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

There is no tragedy more deadly than the tragedy of half-measure. Two things greatly concerned Jesus and His early followers. The first was that the gospel should be accepted in all its fullness by each person who accepted it at all. This meant that Jesus and His way of life be accepted wholeheartedly. "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself. The whole man for God, and his fellow-man. Here in brief we find the law and the prophets. The second matter was that the gospel should be accepted at the earliest possible moment. These were the dominant notes in the early church. They have been the beacon lights of the ministry and missionaries throughout the Christian era. Here we have the key to the failure of Christianity. Had these principles been accepted and then not produced, righteousness and peace and joy, criticism might be justified but Christianity has not been given a fair test, and what a price the church pays for our half-heartedness. Whole-hearted service is needed today. Amen.
