Marry at Turlock, Calif., Oct. 1

Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Perry

Before an altar decorated with pedestal bouquets of white asters and gladioli on either side and backed by lighted tapers in candleholders, Miss Charline Perrott became the bride of Donald A. Perry at a double ring ceremony read by the grandfather of the bride, Rev. J. M. Morriss of Ceres, at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, at the First Methodist church. Rev. F. Carl Schmidt, pastor of the church, assisted.

The church was lighted only by candles standing in a row along the altar rail, and at the windows. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Donna Jean Perrott, sister of the bride, played a violin solo entitled "Liebestraum," by Liszt, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Roy Weaver, and Mrs. John Andrews sang, "Through the Years," by Vincent Youmans, and "Wedding Song," by Mary Rosa.

As the organ sounded the strains of "O Promise Me," Miss Mary Margaret Perrott, sister of the bride, and Miss Marilyn Spangard, dressed in gowns of pale blue with lace bodices, short puffed sleeves and full bouffant skirts of net, carried lighted tapers in their nosegay bouquets, down the aisle to the altar to light the 11 candles in the two candleholders.

The bride was preceded to the altar by her sister, Miss Donna Jean Perrott, and Miss Kathleen Brown, dressed in identical gowns of peach over taffeta, with fitted bodices and short puffed sleeves of lace and net bouffant skirts. They carried old-fashioned bouquets of cornflowers, centered by talisman roses.

They were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Laurine Perrott, in a blue gown of the same material and style and carrying a cascade bouquet of pink bouvardia and roses. Each attendant wore a coronet of pleated net, matching her dress.

As the organ sounded the wedding march from Lohengrin, the bride came down the aisle on the arm of her father, and proceeded to the altar in a gown fashioned with long sleeves of lace puffed at the shoulder and a slim lace bodice with full skirt of net. Her face veil and floor-length veil were held in place by a sweetheart coronet of pleated net.

During the ceremony, the soft strains of "I Love You Truly" were played by Mrs. Weaver at the organ. She also played the wedding march by Mendelssohn as the recessional, preceding the ceremony.

The groom was attended by Robert Wentz as best man, and seating the guests were Harry Johnston and Robert M. Spafford.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Perrott, is a graduate of local schools, and attended Chapman college in Los Angeles, and San Jose state college, where she was active in musical organizations and activities. Her husband, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Perry of Roseburg, Ore., also attended Chapman college and San Jose state college. He is a member of the Kappa Delta Nu fraternity, and is at present employed at the Vega aircraft plant in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Perrott chose for her daughter's wedding an ensemble of cinnamon brown with a shell pink neckpiece, and accessories of darker brown. She wore a corsage of talisman roses.

Mrs. Perry wore a black ensemble with matching accessories accented by a white lace collar. Her flowers were gardenias and pink bouvardia.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held for 250 guests, in the banquet room of the church. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Perrott,

Mrs. Perry, the bride and groom, and their attendants.

Refreshments were served from a table centered by a beautiful arrangement of fall flowers. The four-tiered wedding cake, which was topped by a miniature bride and groom standing under a silver bell at a wishing well, was cut by the bride and groom and served to the guests. Hostesses were Mrs. Agnes Cooper and Mrs. W. W. Ferguson. Presiding at the refreshment table were Mrs. Weaver and Mrs. Harold Markley, and assisting with the service were Misses Florence Swanson, Adeline Arakelian and Betty Schendel.

When the couple left for their honeymoon, somewhere in the Sierras, the bride was wearing a navy blue tailored suit with a white frilly collar framing her face. Her navy hat with its face veil matched her other accessories.
