

Marines Eager to Wrest More Isles From Japanese

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Nov. 21—(AP)—The United States marines on Guadalcanal, cheered by the navy's great triumph over the Japanese fleet last week-end, are looking for more islands to conquer.

Lieut. DeWitt Peterkin, first American naval officer to arrive here from the Solomons since the navy's victory Nov. 14-15, said he believed some 10,000 Japanese have been killed on Guadalcanal.

"The marines could catch bunches of Japs, 300 at a time, in the vales and wipe them out. Killing a thousand in one night in one sector is not unusual. We killed a hell of a lot. I don't know how many died in the brush," Peterkin said.

The sight of a prisoner on the island is an oddity, Peterkin stated, for "almost no prisoners are taken by either side."

"When the Japs rush, they yell in English, 'hood for the emperor: Come out, marines, you're licked.'"

"But the marines don't take the Japs' word for it that the leathernecks are licked," Peterkin said. Instead, the devil dogs have an easy job cleaning up the Japs, and now there is a saying on Guadalcanal that "the Japs fight for their lives, but the marines fight for souvenirs."

Among the souvenirs taken from Jap bodies were a number of revolvers "made in Connecticut."

(Connecticut manufacturers suggested, as a possible explanation, that if Japs killed on Guadalcanal previously had been in the Philippines they would have had a good chance of capturing American pistols there.)

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN CHINA, Nov. 20—(Delayed)—(AP)—Fighter-escorted American bombers, striking down the Burma road from free China, unloaded three tons of explosives today on the Japanese army base at Lungling, starting several fires and inflicting heavy damage.

After two runs over the target the bombers had caused fires which billowed smoke so dense that the crews were unable to assess full results. A big cache of munitions, however, was believed hit.

Captured by the British November 4, while serving as commander of the Nazi African corps under Marshal Rommel, von Thoma was described as one of the school of professional German soldiers who "dispute any encroachment in their sphere by civilians or politicians and all members of the Nazi party, including Hitler himself."

"He is believed to have said that Hitler's assumption of the supreme command spells disaster to the war machine built up by the devotion of the great general staff," the writer said. "Hitler's economic policy also has been severely criticized by von Thoma. This agrees with recent reports from neutral sources."

Jap Appeals Penalty For Curfew Violation

PORTLAND, Nov. 21—(AP)—Notice of appeal was filed yesterday by Minoru Yasui, the 26-year-old American-born Japanese of Hood River, who was convicted of violating the army's curfew order.

The case, initiated by Yasui in a test of the order, prompted Judge James A. Fee's challenge of the army's power to issue regulations for west coast citizens without a declaration of martial law.

Judge Fee ruled, however, that Yasui, by becoming a propagandist for a Japanese consul, gave up American citizenship rights and therefore came under the army's regulation.

He was sentenced to a year in a road camp and fined $5000. Yasui's appeal repeated his claim to American citizenship.
