DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

Can we not be bold and come out with it and say for all the world to hear that the chief end and purpose of man is to love, honor, and serve his Creator? Can we not say to this generation on the authority of the Holy Scriptures and with all of the Christian tradition behind us that the primary aim of man's life in this world is not commerce, or power, or social position, but godliness and true holiness. Can we not say it simply and plainly and clearly without compromise and without doubt. If we will not be direct about it and bold enough to come out with it and say that the service of God is the only proper end of man, we shall have to commit ourselves to some other purpose. Christ described the other purpose as the service of mammon, for greed and ambition for purely temporal and selfish ends. Finally, this kind of living will cause so much confusion, and so much injustice that we shall be put to it to maintain our civilization at all. The whole world is longing for guidance and direction for just one strong and sure word about its destiny and its end. Those who know should speak out and declare a good witness for Christ, for only those who are Christians can testify of God. Amen.
