AFTER FIFTY YEARS
Christmas day, 1892, and romance is on the air,
Young Willie Powell is pledged to wed May Threlkeld, sweet and fair,
On Christmas day. But the Umpqua swollen by winter rains,
Is uncrossable, and mischievously,
Rev. Huddleston details,
Till December 29th, when at the old log house he belatedly arrives
To pronounce May and Willie one,
For the rest of their lives.

Fifty years toiling together, patiently, side by side,
Sharing the joys and sorrows that come to all, Oh, wide
The circle of friends, the good as well as the bad.
