Farm Buying Rush COMING to our notice on this national Farm Mobilization day is an article by Alexander R. George, an Associated Press feature writer, stationed at Washington, D. C., who observes federal uneasiness over the migration of city dwellers to the open spaces, fearing it may peril the food-for-victory program. Notable among such migrants are people who are making money out of war industries, the writer notes, a very unfavorable circumstance, he thinks, at a time when Uncle Sam is calling for maximum production of food to win the war. Explaining his view, Mr. George goes on to say:

A city man buying a farm frequently doesn't produce from it as much food as did the farmer who sold it. Many absentee owners acquire farms for long-term investment, or with the intention of living on a plot of land where they can grow part of their own food needs. Production for the market often becomes a sideline. Agricultural agents in counties where land purchases are heavier than usual are worried about the number of Chicagoans, Detroiters, Clevelanders and dwellers of other industrial centers who are buying farms. Many of these are "security seekers," persons who say they "want to leave the post-war depression."

The agents say these purchases mean that some of the most experienced farmers are retiring from farming. They fear that the production on these farms may be sharply reduced. Even in cases where the new owners would like to keep up production, there is the problem of finding managers to run the farms, not to mention the shortage of farm labor.

On the bright side of the food production picture, however, is the new cooperation between selective service boards and county war boards which fix crop quotas. An "essential farmer" now is as much entitled to deferment from military service as an "essential war worker." A war worker who has obtained a draft deferment can be transferred to farm work and not increase his liability to draft into the army.

Rising farm incomes have been stimulating food production. Farm prices also have been increasing "moderately." Average values of land per acre rose from an index figure of 91 last March to 95 on November 1. This compares with 84 in 1940 and a low of 73 in 1933. Although the value last November was 27 per cent higher than at the low point of 1933, it was 7 per cent below the 1912-14 index base and 45 per cent under the 1920 peak.

No Standing Still As in the old days of the standard birds, there are good, bad and indifferent broad-breasted. So prevalent were these new birds that too many of their cross bred offspring were used for breeders. Naturally the results were not satisfactory. It is the same old lesson that the cattlemen have learned to their cost. The pure bred sire, even on a female that has had several top crosses of purebreds, is the cheapest in the long run. In this game you either go ahead or you slip backward; there is no standing still. And you cannot go ahead with cross-bred, or even poor purebred, sires.

Growers Make Money This past season the turkey growers made money. Good money. A lot of back debts have been paid up and still the growers have money in the bank. Right now it looks like 1943 would be another year when the profits would be written on the wall before the season even started. But such years are not going to continue indefinitely. They never have in any other business, and turkeys will be no exception. Again going back to cattle, in the lean years the cattlemen who made money were those who had good cattle, efficient animals for the conversion of roughage into beef. This same thing is going to apply to turkeys. When prices begin to drop, buyers become more critical and discriminating. It would seem that the best insurance a grower has for future profits in his industry is to put some of the money he made this year into the best turkey he can buy.

Wider Tax Take At Income Source Urged By Senators

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—Wider collection of taxes at the source of income is advocated by congressional leaders to implement a pay-as-you-go plan given the qualified endorsement of President Roosevelt.

Three ranking members of the senate finance committee, Chairman George (D-Ga.), Senator La Follette (D-Wis.), the senior minority member, and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), the senior republican member, proposed in separate interviews that the withholding method employed to collect the 5 per cent victory tax be extended to the regular income levy.

All three have favored modified versions of the plan advanced by Beardley Ruml, New York money dealer and banker, to put income tax collections on a current basis by excusing or postponing the payment of one year's levies. All three said, however, that any such system must be carried out by requiring periodic payments throughout the year through deductions from pay checks and other similar methods.

George said he thought it would be absolutely necessary, not only from the standpoint of the taxpayer but from that of the government, to collect taxes currently and in periodic installments.

Otherwise, he said, there would be a great many delinquencies when the war boom ended. Meanwhile, there were reports that the president would recommend to congress next week that congress set a goal of raising currently half of the money needed to finance the government expenditures that are expected to reach $100,000,000,000 in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Present tax laws may yield as much as $35,000,000,000 in that year, it was said, leaving a $15,000,000,000 gap to be filled by new taxes and possibly by a system of forced loans from individuals. The remaining $50,000,000,000 would be raised by voluntary bond purchases and by commercial financing by the treasury.
