Keeping Up with the Joneses.

WE listened Tuesday night to a most interesting and informative talk by a representative of the office of price administration. In his talk he repeated briefly a sentiment that has been often used by various federal agencies and particularly by the OPA in its public relations. The plight of allied and occupied countries is held before us as a reason why we should willingly accept any rationing orders that may be imposed upon us. It is pointed out that we are so much better off than these other countries that we should be grateful and not critical.

We do not accept the theory that because certain unfavorable conditions exist they should be accepted without complaint, merely because they are worse in some other locality.

For many years we have been trying to "keep up with the Joneses." Because Jones had a new davenport, we needed a davenport. Because Jones bought a new car, we had to have a new car. Now we are putting the system in reverse. There is too much of this theory that because our allies are suffering shortages, we must suffer too.

Following this line of reasoning to its extreme, a Douglas county home owner would use the nearest hovel in the county as the pattern for his home. Our stores would be modelled after the poorest junk shop.

We are not opposed to the system of rationing. We believe that some sort of control is absolutely necessary. We believe the OPA is making a sincere effort. It is only natural that mistakes will be numerous and only constructive criticism should be made of such mistakes.

The OPA, however, should not, in our opinion, try to tell us we must take rationing and like it, simply because our neighbors are rationed.

effectively they can fight the Germans.

THERE'S a ruckus in Marseille. It seems that the Germans started in to evacuate the city's ancient port area (Marseille is one of Europe's oldest towns). The French who were to be displaced of their homes (probably to make room for new German fortifications) began to shoot.

There are reports that 4000 of them have been arrested.

DON'T look for whatever is happening at Marseille to upset the German apparatus in any decisive way. Still, it DOES illustrate one of Hitler's difficulties. Every town and village of every country he has conquered is seething with hatred of him.

To keep down revolt, however desperate and hopeless it may be, he must KEEP SCREAMING EVERYWHERE. In the aggregate, that takes a lot of soldiers.

If you want a slant at another of Hitler's troubles, get out your map and take a look at the coastline he must defend. It extends from Finland, in the Arctic ocean, clear down to Syria, in the warm Mediterranean.

It will take a lot of troops to defend that coastline and he'll never know where a blow may fall, so he'll have to keep soldiers everywhere.

Short inside lines and all, Hitler has his worries.

in another. The Japs send what the navy describes as a large number of bombers, escorted by fighters, against Guadalcanal, and our fighters knock down four of them with no American planes lost.

FOR some time the Japs have been playing what looks like our game—sending ships and planes against us to be destroyed. It seems odd that they keep it up. But people who profess to know the Japs say they'll be likely to continue to do it. It's a matter of FACE, these people say. Maybe. Let's wait and see.

ANOTHER explanation is that the Japs are consolidating the empire they've already seized—an empire rich in all the strategic materials (rubber, tin, etc.) they've been short on. When they get it consolidated they'll be ready to fight again on a big scale.

ANYWAY, the more Jap ships we sink the better it will be for us. The Jap empire is an ISLAND empire, and ships are still vitally necessary for the maintenance of island bases.

KEEP an eye on Burma—where news is scarce but fighting is going on. Burma is our route to China, and we mustn't allow China to become discouraged and drop out of the war.

Things are bound to happen, sooner or later, in Burma.

USE of fuel oil is to be decreased in Oregon and Washington. That means, one guesses, that more tankers are to be moved to the Atlantic, to carry gasoline to our forces in Africa—and elsewhere on that side.

U. S. Combat Force of Loyal Japs Planned

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—The army announced today plans for a combat unit of loyal Japanese-Americans as a senate military subcommittee asked the advice of Joseph C. Grew, former ambassador to Japan, on proposals to separate potentially loyal Americans from other Japanese in a dozen detention colonies.

Stimson said the decision to organize a Japanese-American combat team, including infantry, artillery, engineer and medical personnel, was based on "the inherent right of every faithful citizen, regardless of ancestry, to bear arms in the nation's battle."

War Savings Bonds Bought by Rotarians

The Roseburg Rotary club at its regular Thursday luncheon meeting added $750 to the county's record of war savings bond sales for the month of January. Between program members, Bond Committee Members Bruce Meliss and Vernon Orr conducted bond sales in which Rotarians purchased the $750 worth of bonds.

The principal speaker on the program was Al Elped, chairman of the infantile paralysis campaign locally, who discussed the national program for eradication of the disease and the local arrangements for raising funds.

Oregon Army Officers Not Taxed by Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 29 (AP)—Oregon army officers stationed at Fort Riley will not have to pay the Kansas income tax, James D. Dyer, attorney for the state tax commission, pointed out today in a statement. Dyer said the commission has filed charges by Rep. F. M. Dorn, mayor of Topeka, who said the tax was being levied against the soldiers.

Only Oregon can tax its soldiers, wherever they may be stationed, and Kansas will tax only those who are in the state when they are serving, Dyer pointed out.

NOTICE OF FINAL SETTLEMENT

Concerning the NORTHWEST
 As Viewed at the National Capital
 By John W. Kelly

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29.—If a housewife has difficulty buying a leg of lamb or finds the price far higher than it was a few months ago, it will mollify her to learn that lambs are being shipped under lend-lease to England and that growers (Idaho for example) are receiving $18.50 for a lamb when they were once lucky to receive $10. One of the complaints against lend-lease is that agents for that outfit go out and purchase what they want regardless of price ceilings of OPA or any other restriction. This was one of the crosses that Leon Henderson had to bear.

On the desk of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard is a telegram from the northwest asking that control of wool be transferred from war production board to the department of agriculture, as the growers have no confidence in WPB and "believe it is adversely influenced by wool dealers." There are in the Pacific Wool Growers association some 3000 sheepmen; virtually every man who runs a band of sheep in the northwest and the far west. These growers are asking that the 1943 clip be purchased by the federal government or else a floor placed under the ceiling price.

At this moment there is a stockpile of 700 million pounds of foreign wools owned by the Defense Supplies Corp. The DSC promised sheepmen that these wools would not be sold, but the charge is made that more than one million pounds were sold at auction in Boston, depressing the domestic wool market. Great Britain has a contract to purchase all the wool of Australia, New Zealand and South Africa for the duration and one year thereafter. Most of this wool is warehoused for Great Britain in the United States and was shipped from Australia and New Zealand in American freighters and landed on the west coast. The United States bought the unsold crop of Uruguay last year and has agreed to buy 35,000 bales of the new clip. United States and Great Britain are purchasing South American wool lavishly to prevent it being sold to the axis. As if these operations were not sufficient to provoke the wool grower of the open spaces of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, Secretary of State Hull's trade agreements have reduced by 50 per cent the duty on several grades of wool.

Pacific wool growers are suspicious of WPB and believe they can receive a square deal from the agricultural department. They do not like the government's policy of "millions for foreign wools but not one cent for domestic."

Russia Buys Sheep

Records disclose that the highest price paid for sheep in the Pacific northwest was $20.50 for 10,000 sold to the U. S. S. R. It was paid in gold, on the rail head, at the ranch on Butter creek. The Soviets had to hire trains to transport the sheep across the continent to an Atlantic port, whence the wools were shipped to Russia; pay insurance and attendants. This Soviet commission visited Australia, South America and all the sheep sections of the United States before deciding where they could buy the best sheep.

Internees Still Problem

Washington's Senator Wallgren and Oregon's Senator Holman have been appointed on a subcommittee of military affairs to make an investigation of the Japanese relocation centers in California, Oregon and Idaho. The Washington and Oregon senators have joined in sponsoring a bill to remove the Japs from civilian direction and place them in the hands of the army. There are increasing complaints that the civilians are too lenient with the aliens in relocation centers. The civilians, it is asserted, are trying to introduce social reforms whereas the general desire, apparently, is to have the Japanese penned up.

"Miners" Turned Back

Under arrangements, 237,700 tons of coal from the east is being brought to the Pacific northwest because the mines of Washington and Oregon cannot produce requirements on account of a shortage of miners. Part of this coal is said to be destined for Vladivostok, the Russians having greater need for solid fuel than for fuel oil. Coal is required for army cantonments, certain war industries, residential heating, etc. It was known early last spring that there was a shortage of miners in the northwest and there was talk of shipping miners from the east, but this apparently did not materialize. The army released hundreds of supposed miners and sent them to mines in Colorado, Utah, Montana and Wyoming, but according to mine operators very few of these "miners" had experience underground and they were returned to the army, with thanks. War manpower commission has been invited to assign at least 2000 coal miners to the Rocky mountain states and the northwest, about 1000 for Washington and Oregon, mostly for the former state.
