Q^N the home front, the labor shortage in the big war industrial areas is to be solved by working 48 hours with the last eight hours at time and a half. It means about a 30 per cent weekly wage increase for those now working a 40-hour week. It will be generally satisfactory in the war industries, where addcd costs are passed on to the public anyway. It will not be such a satisfactory solution in industries that have to BEAR THEIR OWN added costs-which are affected

We must so live that after the war we can look the returning fighting men in the eye and say to them: "We've done our BEST to protect your interests while you've been away FIGHTING FOR US."

TWO GREAT ANNIVERSARIES

EDITORIAL

By Charles V. Stanton

THIS month we celebrate the birthday anniversaries of two great Americans. Today we observe a holiday in memory of Abraham Lincoln and later this month will pay tribute to the memory of George Washington. Today our nation faces a situation fully as critical as the times in which those men lived. It is well in these troubled days to look back upon the lives and teachings of these two men who founded and preserved our Union. Each had unlimited faith in the power of this nation to endure. Each was unswerving in his devotion to duty.

Abraham Lincoln refused to permit friendships to interfere with the efficient conduct of the war between the states. Ineffectual military officers and political appointees were quickly replaced by more able men. His type of stern leadership is needed today.

In his first inaugural address he uttered these words: "By the frame of the government under which we live, this same people have wisely given their public servants but little power for mischief: and have, with equal wisdom, provided for the return of that little to their own hands at very short intervals. While the people retain their virtue and vigilance, no administration, by any extreme of wickedness or folly, can very seriously injure the government in the short space of four years.

In these days, when public servants have been given unlimited "power for mischief," these words of the Great Emancipator should be an inspiration to responsible citizenry of this nation.

And what words could be more appropriate to the nation today than those spoker so long ago, when he said:

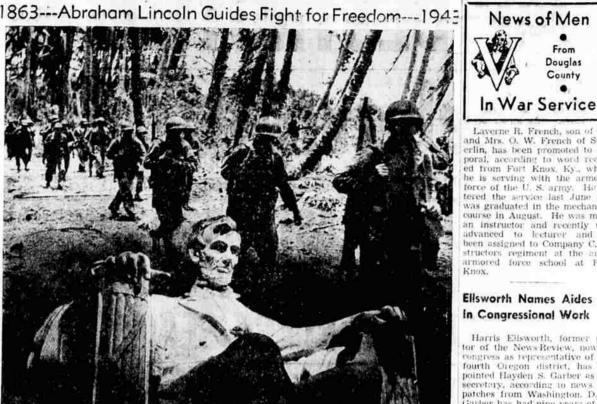

"With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphansto do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves, and with all nations.

You readers undoubtedly have already welcomed back to the News-Review front page the daily comment by Louis F. Reizenstein. Louie, who is the News-Review telegraph editor and responsible for the editing of the Associated Press leased wire news, as well as helping this writer with spelling and punctuation, for many years ran his daily comment in a banner line at the top of the front page. Sensational war news, however, made use of a news banner in place of the editorial line, imperative. But now under the new heading "Levity. Fact and Rant," utilizing the initials of the author, Louie is back on the froat page and we know you will be as pleased as we are. His observations are based upon nearly 30 years of newspaper work. For more than 10 years Louis was a "leg man" for the Roseburg Review. He spent nine years as Roseburg' postmaster during the Wilson administration, and then returned to newspaper work with the News-Review.

It is for us the living to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us -Gettysburg Address, 1863

On this 134th anniversary of his birth, the words of Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg in 1863 apply in 1943 at Guadalcanal and on other world fronts where Americans fight for the freedom Lincoln championed.
