Upward Revision Of Milk Prices Being Prepared

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—J. K. Galbraith, deputy price administrator, told senate investigators today a directive freezing fluid milk prices at January levels would be modified to permit increases in some areas.

"We have an order in final stages of preparation involving substantial levelling out of prices and in some cases upward adjustments," he testified before an agriculture subcommittee.

Galbraith asserted increases would be allowed in the southeast while a thorough study continued as to need of upward adjustments in southern California.

At the same time, Galbraith, pointing frequently to charts he brought with him told the committee he did not believe a general price increase would bring greater milk production.

Galbraith's testimony came after angry farm state senators had voiced determination to break up what they called a "bureaucratic merry-go-round" operating to hamper war food production.

"Every time a farmer or his spokesman comes to Washington with a problem, he is sent on a cycle of conferences that lead only to dizziness," Senator Aiken (R-Vt.) told reporters.

Aiken is on an agricultural subcommittee which called three key men in the farm price picture today to find out "who runs this merry-go-round."

"Just when milk producers were gathering in Washington to present evidence to agricultural and price fixing officials that the freeze order would leave a ceiling which would not allow production costs, the freezing order was signed," Aiken and Senator Bushfield (R-SD) asserted.

Witnesses already have told the committee that many states had approved price increases to cover rising costs of feed, labor and other items, but that the government ruling would roll back ceilings to January and leave many producers faced with operating at a loss of from a cent to two cents a quart on milk.

They testified the slaughter of dairy cows was steadily increasing to January and leave many producers faced with operating at a loss of from a cent to two cents a quart on milk.

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

George Washington

We honor today the Father of Our Country, George Washington, by birth an aristocrat, one of the richest men in America, a large slaveholder, the possessor of an enormous landed estate and the leader and representative of the property and the culture of the colonial period.

Washington stood for the conservation and preservation of law and order. He could be a revolutionist and pledge his life and fortune and honor for the principles which in his judgment safeguarded the rights and liberties of his country. But in the construction of the Republic and in the foundation of its institutions, and in the critical period of experiment until they could get in working order, he gave to them and implanted in them conservative elements which are found in no other system of government, and yet millionaire slaveholder and aristocrat in the best sense that he was all his life, so that at any time he would have died for the immortal principle put by the Puritans in their charter, and reenacted in the Declaration of Independence of the equality of all men before the law and equal opportunities for all. Amen.

the FEED BAG

Vol. V, No. 2 Published Weekly by the Douglas County Flour Mill, Mfrs. of Umpqua and Sunrise Poultry and Dairy Feeds Feb. 22 1943

The Feed Question

We hear that some feed companies are GUARANTEEING that they will be able to furnish their customers with plenty of feeds of all kinds for the coming season; that those feeds will be not only as good as last year, but in some cases better and even some of them will guarantee the total amount of animal proteins.

These claims are very confusing, to say the least. How ANY feed company, or for that matter, ANY business man can guarantee ANYTHING, for the next twelve months, is beyond our comprehension. A man must be either foolishly optimistic, or have a nightly close tie-up with somebody in high authority. We can't qualify on either alternative. But, we have had several requests to divide some of our reserves of concentrates with other manufacturers.

We just wish you could see some of the letters we get from these government agencies. Not only confusing, but also confused. We heartily agree with Fulton Lewis Jr., that even the bureaus that make up the forms and questionnaires are not sure what it is all about.

We are certain of nothing. We don't believe any other feed company is, either. But one thing we will guarantee: no one is working any harder to get meat scrap, fish meal, dried milk and soybean meal than we are. And we don't think anybody else has any better chance of getting it than we do. Don't get stampeded. We are in there pitching for you, and the early and successful completion of our War Job.

The Best Litter

Every year about this time we hear the old familiar question: "What is the best litter for brooder houses?" As we have often said, "There is NO best litter." Furthermore, in times such as these, we might say "Any litter you can GET is the best you can get."

Peat moss is very good, and we have some of it. It is higher in price than usual. Cedar shavings is also good. We are about out of it now, and travel restrictions make it hard to get more. But we will try to make arrangements to get some of it for you. Straw is scarce, and poor litter anyway.

You should have got some of the coarse sand and fine gravel last summer, and had it dry for use right now. If you did, fine, but if not, maybe you can still get some dried out in time.

Many people are using with a lot of success and satisfaction, plain sawdust. It works fine for either brooder or laying house. Should be dry, but it will soon dry around a brooder stove. It costs nothing but time, and to our way of thinking, is as good as any litter we have ever seen.

Some folks are afraid the chicks and pullets will eat it. The way things look, not only chicks, but people may HAVE to eat it before long. We surely hope they don't put a ceiling price on it, just in case.

But, chicks won't eat enough to hurt them if they have Umpqua Chick Starter before them. They will eat it only if they are starving, or sick. So, try a little sawdust this year. Might as well get used to it.

Ceilings

OPA says ceilings will be established on "virtually ALL fresh vegetables." As far as the farmer is concerned, that makes it about unanimous. But after all, with the working man only making a slim $15.00 a day why should a poultryman object to a drop from 37¢ to 25¢ on leghorn broilers at San Francisco?

Of course, we sometimes wonder why they put the ceiling so darned low for farmers, and give him a dirt floor to boot. To be sure, the dirt floor is so low, he won't bump his head on that low ceiling. But we wonder just what might happen if the poor old farmer decided to stage a strike of his own. At least, it would be interesting to see some of the fat boys down in Washington have to rest in their belts and punch a few new holes in them to hold up their trousers.

Bonds and Stamps

All this hte and cry about buying war bonds is directed toward the man making regular salary. The producer of food has a much more important job. To be sure, our fighters must have fighting tools. Bonds will furnish the money for them. But they can't do much fighting without food, and you producers can take care of that angle.

Buy all your feed at the Douglas Flour Mill, and you will save a lot of money, which you can put into bonds and stamps.

Yeah, Who?

"We know who bosses the men; but who bosses the women?"
