of Kharkov and after a comparative lull are said to be again throwing in fresh troops. The Russians say they are holding the line of the Donets at all points.
Fresh Russian activity in the Caucasus (in the Kuban valley) is reported again.

WE'VE bombed Kiska 25 times this month—nearly once a day. After our brief glimpse of actual developments there the other day the censorship dogs have closed in again.

ON the home front, the battle for the Big Dollar goes on more or less as usual.

The farm bloc, which, like Montgomery, had made a dent in the opposing line, loses some ground in a counterattack. In the senate, the bill to include farm labor costs in the farm parity ceiling is sent back to the senate agricultural committee for "further study."

McNary, who usually votes with the farm bloc, says its passage would be used by organized labor to force wage increases that would break down inflation controls.

A FEW minutes later, the senate passes and sends to the president (the house had passed it at ready) a bill to prohibit deduc-tion of government benefit payments made to farmers in computing parity price ceilings. Its purpose is to RAISE the ceilings.

JOHN P. Frey, AFL Metal Trades president, tells the senate war investigation committee he ADVOCATES SUSPEN-SION of the Wagner labor relations act for the duration!

He adds:
"I'm of the opinion that nothing would be more advantageous to the production of war materials!"

At first glance this looks like one for the book.

THE mystery clears when Frey adds that representatives of the national labor relations board (which handles administration of the Wagner act) have encouraged and assisted CIO unions in RAISING the membership of AFL unions in west coast ship yards.

The issue back of these raids is WHO COLLECTS THE DUES.
AFL is collecting them now.
CIO wants them.

DON'T draw conclusions.

The rank and file of farmers and working people are as loyal and patriotic as any citizens we have. Their boys are on the fighting fronts along with everybody else's.

their homes.

One day a stranger stopped from his automobile, nodded to Hatchford and said:

Hatchford wilted.

A TOUGH LIFE FOR DOGS

EDITORIAL

By Charles V. Stanton

THERE is an old saying that "Every Dog Has His Day," but the future hold no promise for the carefree canines which in the past have roamed the neighborhood at will. This war is going to be tough on the family pets as well as the families, for all over the state of Oregon steps are being taken to provide strict control measures which would prevent dogs from running at large.

Various types of laws are being passed. At St. Helens, for instance, the dog license has been upped to $5 and $10 and, in addition, the dog owner will be required to pay for any damage caused by his pet.

Most ordinances provide that if Fido gets picked up, the owner, too, will be in the doghouse, for heavy fines are to be imposed upon owners for permitting the animals to run at large.

The city of Roseburg has such an ordinance in which the fines upon careless dog owners can be imposed up to a maximum of $25. Enforcement has been somewhat lax during the winter months, largely because the city failed to provide an adequate place for impounding dogs. A new and satisfactory dog pound, however, now has been built and there is every probability that increasing attention will be paid to keeping dogs under control.

The home owner who plants a victory garden, or who, even in normal times, endeavors to maintain attractive home surroundings, is entitled to protection from the damage which roaming dogs can inflict. The pet problem in town is a difficult one. The dog owner, who, if he is at all human, takes great pleasure in the intelligent canine friend, resents having the children's dumb playmate treated as a pest. But on the other hand, the neighbor next door does not appreciate Rover romping in the redishes.

There is another warning that should be given dog owners.
The safety of pets demands that they be kept carefully guarded.
Already, all over the Pacific northwest, dog poisoners are at work. We believe that any person who would deliberately attempt to poison a dog is a "fortyseven" ration points lower than a skunk, but nevertheless such people do exist and dog haters will justify their acts by the existing emergency. Therefore, it pays to be doubly diligent.

Army Needs No More Privately-Owned Guns

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29.—Completion of a campaign in which approximately 210,000 weapons, including shotguns, target rifles and pistols were procured from the public for use by guards at war plants and military installations and in certain phases of the army training program, is announced by the war department. No more contributions are desired.

Owners were reimbursed for their weapons and all weapons in excess of the quantity needed will be returned.

Secretarial Education Clubs Formed at R. H. S.

Students of the shorthand classes at Roseburg high school have organized clubs, dealing with secretarial education, under the supervision of Miss Roberts, shorthand instructor. Subjects on "Business Etiquette" and "The Do's and Don'ts of the Business World" are discussed and several persons, experienced in secretarial work, are scheduled to speak before the students.

The meetings are held during class time, every two weeks.

Smelt Run Boon To Portland In Meat Shortage

PORTLAND, March 29.—(AP)—The common smelt in uncommon numbers lured Portland over its most serious meat shortage today.

Hundreds of Portlanders used makeshift nets to scoop the fish out of the Sandy river, where the smelt appeared in millions in their annual, brief run. Each person was allowed 100 pounds of fish.

This run coincided with a prearranging buying wave that cleaned out many meat markets. The Oregon meat council said stocks could not be replenished in a number of stores in the next few days. Secretary Meade Hadley, announcing that more than 30 cars of cattle would reach Portland today, said the situation would be better by the end of the week.

Meanwhile Morton Tompkins, Oregon grange master, and H. F. Carstensen, urged Chester C. Davis, food chief of the department of agriculture, to set minimum prices for livestock and remove slaughtering quotas.

They predicted the meat shortage would continue, even under rationing, unless these steps were taken.

Fertilizer Rates Given In O. S. C. Circular

The maximum amount of fertilizers recommended by the agricultural experiment station at O. S. C. in connection with the current restrictions on the use of chemical fertilizers has been recorded in pamphlet form for quick distribution as circular of information No. 292. Under a recent food production order, use of chemical fertilizers is restricted in accordance with the past recommendations of the experiment station. The circular not only provides a means of keeping within federal regulations but will also serve as a guide to effective use of fertilizers for more than 50 vegetable and field crops on which fertilizers are used in this state.

Forewarned

LINCOLN, Neb.—Ralph Cox, a member of the state board of control, told the legislature's appropriations committee that the south wall of the state penitentiary at Lincoln had been in bad shape for four or five years.

"In fact," Cox added, "it might go down at any minute."

One hour and a half later a 25-foot section of the wall collapsed.

The rest of the court will be selected by the queen in the near future.

Parents of New Baby Hand Out War Stamps

Winchester Bay, lower Umpqua town, thinks it's a couple of jumps ahead of the times. It thinks so because of Alfred Shirliff, general store owner.

When Mr. and Mrs. Shirliff became the proud parents of 10 pounds-9 ounce Alfred Glen the other day, Shirliff, instead of distributing the usual cigars and candy, came forth with war stamps for all of his customers, reports from Winchester Bay Saturday indicated.
