Food for Victory

There is no very good reason for The Douglas County Flour Mill to urge farmers to pro-duce food to the maximum of their ability. There are forty Federal agencies already doing

But we know from talking with you folks that you are go-ing to do your best. Most of you already have a son, broth-er, or other relatives and lots of triends in the armed serv-ices, and you are not going to let them down, even if you have to produce food at a loss.

have to produce food at a loss.

Brooder houses are mushrooming up all over the countylike a Federal Housing Prolect. Provos you are going to raise more chicks and turkeys.
And if there isn't too much interference from Washington, we have no doubt you will produce more grain, hay, wool and butterfat.

As to the outlook for prices,
they will be as good as OPA will let them be. There are many conflicting reports on the amount of meat which will be produced. Some commentators say there is more, and the amount of meat which with the produced. Some commentators say there is more, and others say less. But whichever is right, there won't be too much. The huge demand from the armed forces, lend-lease and for home consumption will take care of any surplus, should any develop.

Poultry storage holdings are dwindling faster than ever before in history, and by the time Fall comes there won't be enough left in storage to wad a shotgun. So even if there are twice as many turkeys produced as last year, it won't be supply that holds down prices.

What we are trying to get at is: raise as much as you can in the way of poultry and meat animals, but plan to make use of every iota of home grown feed, pasture, green feed and range you possibly can.

This has enabled us to sell you feed for less money, and furthermore, it has helped in the prosecution of the "War Job," since every saving of ANY kind helps our country produce the essentials of warfare.

Be Careful!

"Say, Doc, remember when you cured my rheumatism last year? You said for me to avoid dampness."

That's right. What's "Well, can I take a bath now?"

Coccidiosis and Coxey The Coxey season is with us again. To date there hasn't been enough to worry about. That is one advantage of early hatched chis. But from now on, you wil have to be on the watch for it.

As we have often mentioned As we have often mentioned before, many poultrymen spend a lot of time looking for bloody droppings, and let their chix die of Coxey because they don't see them. We now have seven types of Coxey, and every chick is subject to each of them. They might even gel them one at a time like the idds do measles. But usually they don't.

Any time your chix go off.

Any time your chix go off their feed, get droopy or start huddling without reason, be suspicious they have "it." Fortunately, we have here at the Flour Mill a very good Coxey control. We have used "lotein" mash for eight or nine years, and have witnessed many apparently miraculous recoveries. Practically all authorities

Practically all authorities now recommend that chix be allowed to contract Coxey ear-ily in life, in order to become immune or highly resistant to it. They recommend control measures, to prevent it getting too severe, to be sure. And there is where "Totein" mash comes into the picture.

If you suspect that your chix have Coxey, put "Intein" mash before them immediately, and keep it there from two to four seep it there from two to four days, cleaning the house at the beginning and end of treat-ment. It is non-toxic to the chix, so don't be afraid of using it. "Totein" mash has saved thousands of chix that grew In-to good pullets which would otherwise have been culls or to-tal losses.

The way to get the best of an argument it to avoid it.
