gave no confirmation of raids over Norway.

Developments Elsewhere

Elsewhere on the war circuit were these highlights: Tunisia: Doughboys of the Second American army corps were bearing the brunt of action, as allied headquarters announced the repulse of strong axis counterattacks and continued progress toward a junction with the British Eighth army in the area east of El Guetay. The Americans were wiping out German mortar nests and taking prisoners.

Russian front: German counterattacks, supported by large tank and air forces, continued to batter at soviet defenses along the Donets in sectors 40 miles northeast and 70 miles southeast of Khar'kov despite losses of 1,000 dead in a previous attack in the latter region.

Second front—Reflecting German nervousness over prospects for a second front in Europe the German radio announced that those leaders of France, Edouard Daladier and Leon Blum, former premier, and Gen. Maurice Gamelin, former allied generalissimo, had been removed to a German prison as hostages to prevent the "establishment of a counter government" under allied auspices. The three followed Paul Reynaud, another former French premier, into a German prison.

Neutral Front—Gen. Salem Gurnatak, head of a military detachment from non-belligerent Turkey, surprised allied headquarters by coming out squarely with the opinion that the United Nations would win the war and wishing them luck. He voiced the opinion in a press conference in North Africa.

veal, lamb and mutton, to go into effect April 15, providing uniform maximum prices in all stores of the same type.

With these new ceilings posted at each meat counter or store, every American housewife will know the top price which she may be charged, when she surrenders to her butcher the necessary red stamps from war ration book two. Pork already is under similar retail controls.

Striking a telling blow at black markets in meat, the new price regulation—coupled with meat rationing—will make it impossible for black market operators to continue to pose as legitimate retailers.

Effective April 15, no retailer can charge more for the 192 cuts of beef, veal, lamb and mutton in five officially established grades of beef and veal, four grades of lamb and three grades of beef and veal, four grades of lamb and three grades of mutton than the ceiling prices named by OPA. However, the retailer at any time may charge less than these new ceilings.

This regulation requires the retailer to have every piece of beef, veal, lamb and mutton in his store properly grade-marked according to government standards. This assures the standard of quality for which she is paying.

Prices Generally Lower.
In most cases, consumers will find the new ceilings on beef, veal, lamb and mutton less than the prices which they have been paying recently. In addition, stores which had sub-normal March, 1942, ceilings will be placed on an equal competitive basis in obtaining their supplies, with stores which either had high maximums or had been violating their ceilings. Thus, price con-

WITH THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE IN CHINA, April 5.—(AP)—America's China air task force, one of the smallest U. S. air forces now in active combat, has definitely destroyed 182 Japanese planes and probably destroyed 63 more since it went into operation last July 4, while it has lost nine fighter pilots in actual air combat and another through bombing.

The China task force, which now has been merged with Maj. Gen. Chennault's expanding Fourteenth American air force, has blazed the skies of China, Burma and Indo-China with a record comparable to that hung up by the American volunteer group which served China under Chennault before the U. S. entered the war.

The China air task force has struck down 136 Japanese craft, many of them multi-engine bombers, in the air and destroyed 46 on the ground.

Eighteen C. A. T. F. planes have failed to return because of mechanical failure or other difficulties.

NEW DELHI, April 5.—(AP)—Bombers of the United States 10th air force dropped 13 tons of high explosives yesterday on a vital Japanese-held oil refinery that had just been restored to operation.

The attack, aimed at the Thilawa oil refinery south of Rangoon, set fires that were visible 50 miles away, the air force said in a communique.

The entire weight of bombs fell in the target area, the war bulletin said, and direct hits were scored on buildings and huge storage tanks.

The refinery had been expected to provide essential military oil for the Japanese operations in Burma.

The allies, meanwhile, kept up a rain of aerial blows at airfields, supply centers and shipping scattered throughout Burma, described in separate British and American communique.

The American air force sent bombers against the often-raided railroad installations at Maymo and reported hits on railway sidings, the main track and rolling stock.

On Saturday, American bombers kept up their assaults in the Myingye bridge area, south of

Business is Fine, Thanks

The other day while riding along the highway, we noticed a Greyhound bus billboard sign saying: "Don't travel, unless necessary." At first thought, it is to keep up with our demand. The main reason is that Broiler Mash is not economical, since experiments at the state station prove that a good chick mash with unlimited grain produce gains at approximately the same rate, and at a much lower cost.

Broiler Mash
We still have people asking why we don't make a "Broiler Mash." One reason right now is that the fewer kinds of feed we have to stock the easier it is to keep up with our demand. The main reason is that Broiler Mash is not economical, since experiments at the state station prove that a good chick mash with unlimited grain produce gains at approximately the same rate, and at a much lower cost.

Mice and Lights
In talking about lice and mites on chickens, we most all ways get it wrong, so we wanted to see how it looks in print. Anyway, it doesn't pay any better to feed lice and mites than it does worms.

We handle Blackhead and Oronite poultry house spray at the Douglas Flour Mill. Always a good investment if your birds have pets.

By this way, have you written a letter to some service man lately? With all the comforts of home, we all still like to get letters, even if we don't like answering them sometimes. But the service man, in the mud, sand or storms, on land, sea or in the air, how much more he must appreciate a letter than we do! Let's write some by a letter!
