would have been their way a year ago.

In Tokyo (as reported by the Jap radio) Tadakiko Okada, "speaker" of the Jap "house" tells a mass meeting that Japan must "utterly destroy the United States and Britain or be destroyed herself." He says the grim nature of global war "will permit no half-baked distinction between the victor and the vanquished." Instead, he adds, it's a question of "survival of the fittest—of eat or be eaten."

That's more of the die-to-the-last-man talk that seems to be regarded in Tokyo as good morale stuff for the peculiar-minded Jap.

In spite of all this blood and thunder talk, this writer guesses the Japs would like to quit now WITH WHAT THEY'VE GOT, which is a pretty big slice of what they've always wanted.

U. S. heavy bombers fly 900 miles westward from Darwin to hit Jap installations on the former Dutch island of Soemba. That's MORE than the distance from Aitah to the Jap bases in the Kuriles.

FDR joins Churchill (who spoke sternly on the same subject recently) in warning the axis of dire consequences that will follow ANY use of poison gas ANYWHERE.

The Germans have long been expected to use gas as a last desperate resort when it begins to appear definitely that the war is going against them. The combination of these two warnings makes it seem likely that word of German and Jap preparations to use gas, if a situation arises that would make its use effective, has reached our higher leadership.

Isn't a particularly pleasant subject to contemplate, but if the Japs are going to use gas any where they'd be likely to do it in a sneak raid against some of our coast cities.

To be most effective, poison gas must be used where it will hit the other fellow but MISS the user's forces. Such a condition would be present in a Jap raid on the Pacific Coast.

ON the home front, Herbert Hoover tells the American Farm Bureau federation: "There are too many cooks for TOO LITTLE food."

The control of food, he says, is now divided NINE ways. There should be only ONE head, he adds, and that should be the secretary of agriculture. He thinks food price fixing should begin as near the farmer as possible and WORK UPWARD, instead of beginning at the top and working down.

He concludes: "The present price system is stifling farm production and ISN'T stopping inflation."

WHAT'S COOKING ON COAST?

EDITORIAL
 By Charles V. Stanton

WE have been hearing some more rumors about submarine activities off the Oregon coast. If all the Japanese submarines rumored to have been sunk by our aerial patrols have actually been sent to the bottom, the Nip navy must be getting awfully short on U-boats. Rumors fly thick and fast. The rumor spreaders seldom know anything first hand—they only hear—but that does not stop the story from being spread as absolute fact. We hear of concentrations of planes, sound of depth charges and gunfire, great oil slicks, bodies cast up on beaches, and numerous other tales. But actual information is nebulous.

Probably none of these rumors has any basis of fact. On the other hand, perhaps there has been action against the enemy of which we have no knowledge. Certainly the policy of army and navy intelligence in withholding all information from the public is a most valuable aid to the rumor monger. Human curiosity feeds on rumor. The only satisfactory way to combat rumor is through official publication of truthful information.

Last September the southwestern Oregon coast was visited by two Jap raiders. Belated news was given of one flight, but information on the second was suppressed and was not revealed until a few days ago at a senate investigation at the national capital. Doubtless thousands of Oregon residents knew of the second bombing. We heard lots of stories, some from "reliable" quarters, all much more interesting and far more embellished than the prosaic report given the senate committee. We believe it was senseless to suppress the news of that attack for so many months.

The excuse is that news of action in our coastal area would provide military information to the enemy. We believe, however, that, in many cases, the suppression of news does more harm at home than publication would benefit the foe.

Our civilian defense council is earnestly appealing for volunteers. It is being found increasingly difficult to keep the civilian population interested in tedious defense organizations.

A valuable opportunity to stimulate civilian defense interest was lost in the Jap raids on the coast. A couple of air raid alerts would have done more to keep civilian defense forces on their toes than all the public appeals and the thousands of dollars being spent by the army on personnel activities designed to contact workers and keep them on the job.

If there are enemy activities off our coast, the publication of such facts would prove a most effective stimulant to the tottering civilian defense body.

The policy of no information leads to a sense of false security. Few residents of the Pacific coast would refuse to serve in any capacity where they might be needed if they had the feeling that our shores were actually endangered.

If there is any truth in even one small fraction of the widespread rumors, publication of the actual facts would produce benefits to the morale of the home forces far outweighing the small amount of informational aid to the enemy.

A national program to secure a greater percentage of home ownership, particularly after the war, is being conducted on an increasing scale, Hans C. Pfund, assistant to the president of the Federal Home Loan bank of Portland, reported yesterday while on an official business trip to Roseburg. Private ownership of homes has been steadily declining, Mr. Pfund reports.

A campaign already is in progress to encourage workers in war plants to save toward construction of homes following the war, he reports. The bank is urging savings and loan companies to assist investors in plans for future home construction.

Mr. Pfund visited here officially with the officers of the Douglas and Umpqua Savings and Loan associations.

DIAL LOG

By SUSAN

Here's another weekend staring us in the face—and all those good listening spots again. Brazilian Parade (1:30) Saturday p. m. features Morton Downey this week and Chicago Theatre of the Air (6:30) presents "Paper Hearts," an original drama written for the Chicago Theatre. There is quite a variety in the musical score, including such favorites as Toreador song, The Rosary, All Through the Night and Rio Rita. Saturday Night Bondwagon (7:15) presents an original drama, "America's Burma Road," in tribute to the American Engineer corps in the war. Also on Saturday you know, there's Cisco Kid (4:30)—and maybe we're lowbrow—but dog-gone it, we like him. Too, there's Navy Bulletin Board, Hawaii Calls, This is the Hour and Halls of Montezuma—all shows either for the service men or produced by some branch of the service and all of them good. Our special weakness is the Maxine show—mostly because of the music introduction which never fails to give us a thrill.

Sunday you'll find the same schedule as usual. However, there's something a bit unusual on the American Forum of the Air. Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts will make an unprecedented appearance when he takes part in the discussion of the question "Can We Organize Peace on Federal Union Lines?" The first of the week you'll find several changes in the morning programs—but we'll tell you about those tomorrow—and for tonight don't forget the Henry Armstrong-Sammy Angott bout at seven o'clock.
