

Holiday's Death Toll Shows Drop

(By the Associated Press)
A nation forced to stay put, to a large extent, over the three-day July 4 holiday weekend discovered today that wartime curtailment of highway travel saved scores of lives.

Thousands of Americans had to forego motor trips to favorite fishing spots or back to Uncle Jim's farm, but many were alive and whole to tell about being a wartime homebody instead of being received at a morgue or a hospital.

True, an Associated Press survey showed that at least 298 deaths occurred over the weekend but only 127 of these were traffic fatalities. There were 84 drownings and 87 deaths from miscellaneous causes.

The 127 highway deaths were more than 100 fewer than a conservative pre-holiday estimate by the National Safety Council last year, the first wartime July 4 holiday, there were 320 traffic deaths and in 1941 before gas-tire auto restrictions there were 500.

This year, also, not a single fireworks death was reported.

propositions the senate added to the deficiency bill, which provided only $36,000,000 when it left the house.

The compromises, he said, reduced from $150,000,000 to $100,000,000 senate allowances for the National Housing agency's war housing program, and from $75,000,000 to $50,000,000 senate provisions for the Federal Works agency to finance construction of community projects.

42 Axis Planes Downed Over Sicily, Sardinia

er groups of U. S. planes ranged far and wide over Sicily and Sardinia. They reported meeting little fighter opposition but some anti-aircraft fire.

Villaciadro in Sardinia and Catania in Sicily were raided by night bombers.

The 42 enemy aircraft lost in 21 hours included only those shot down by planes of the northwest African air forces.

Commandos Raid Crete

The swarms of enemy fighters met yesterday over Gerbini gave new indications that the axis has rushed aerial reinforcements to the Mediterranean theater, where the weekend saw the allied offensive reach a new peak of intensity with many air attacks on Sicily and Sardinia and a British commando-type jab at Crete.

Small bodies of British troops dashed on to the beaches of axis-held Crete from shallow draft vessels Sunday night, raided airfields, destroyed grounded planes, left a number of oil dumps afire, and withdrew safely.

In a broadcast to the Greek patriots on Crete, the British ministry of information in London pointed out that "this is not an invasion" and cautioned them not to betray themselves by premature resistance.

"The day is coming when the signal will be given for the warriors of Crete to fight side by side with the invasion forces to exact justice for your enemy's crimes," the broadcast added, "Until then stay in your places."

The hard, quick thrust, which caught the axis unawares, was described by the Cairo communiqué as "successful."

(London sources said the British raiding units apparently were commandos. One of the first questions raised in the capital was what had happened to the minefields which axis propaganda had asserted were sown heavily along all coasts menaced by invasion armies, but there was not official answer.)

land, shooting down two more planes for a total of 157 enemy aircraft destroyed since June 30.

At the other end of the 700-mile allied offensive are, where American sea-borne troops landed at Nassau bay in New Guinea last Wednesday, there was no report of ground fighting, but allied planes bombed the enemy airbase at Salamaua and strafed Japanese troops between Salamaua and Nassau bay.

Salamaua, one of the enemy's two major bases in New Guinea, lies 12 miles north of Nassau bay.

dislodged by counterattacks and retreated, leaving hundreds of dead on the battlefield.

The offensive, the third summer drive of the Russian war, was launched at a later period than the previous two. Germany first attacked Russia June 22, 1941, but the attack stalled in the heavy winter snows and the nazis were forced to retreat.

The 1942 attack was launched nine days earlier, on June 13.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.

1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.
2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave 1/2 inch space in top of jar.
3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.
4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.
5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about 1/4 turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking). This is Important and must be done to insure best results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.
6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

DO NOT TURN FILLED JARS UPSIDE DOWN
