Famed Sea Lion Star of Circus

Slicker, the movie seal, shown serving as ringmaster for Winston's Equestrian Sea Lions, featured with Russell Bros. circus.

Performing on the back of cantering ponies what ordinary trained seals are content to achieve on solid ground, Winston's Equestrian Sea Lions lay undisputed claim to that frequently overworked term, "world's only."

This unique trained animal exhibition holds center-ring billing with Russell Bros. Great 3-Ring circus which is to appear at Roseburg, one night only Friday July 9; no matinee. Slicker, the ringmaster of the troupe, is termed by his trainer, H. W. Winston, as the smartest seal ever to gulp a fish. In fact, he's so smart Winston cannot understand how he ever got tangled up in a fish net off the coast of Monterey a little more than four years ago. Winston bought him from the fisherman who hauled him out of the ocean with a catch of halibut. And it wasn't long before he stood out in the Winston herd like a wart on a debutante's nose.

Slicker is rated as a topflight actor by Henry Hathaway, the film director. Slicker has played in a number of pictures, "Spawn of the North" and "Fisherman's Wharf" among them. Hathaway calls him "One Shot" Slicker because he never muffs a part and the camera only has to roll once for a perfect performance.

Performance starts at 8 p. m. Doors to the menagerie and big top open one hour earlier.

Elevator Strike Forces Long Stairway Trek

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—An estimated 28,000 office workers and visitors were stranded yesterday in the towering structure of Rockefeller center by a 55-minute strike of 225 elevator operators.

Some waited out the strikers, fretting and pushing elevator buttons as they did so, while others including some of the 200 persons in the RCA building's observation tower made their way downstairs on foot.

Bob Sestera, a radio city guide, who led the group from the observation roof down 75 flights of stairs, reported the trip took 30 minutes.

Munitions Output in May Fails to Show Increase

WASHINGTON, July 7.—(AP)—Production of planes and naval vessels reached new highs in May, the War Production board's monthly report showed today, but the over-all output of munitions remained unchanged from April.

WPB Chairman Nelson's report noted declines in ground ordinance, miscellaneous munitions and merchant vessels, which he described as a "very serious matter." The decline in merchant vessels was based on the value of work put in place in shipyards, however, and not on the basis of actual deliveries, which in May were the highest so far with nearly 1,800,000 deadweight tons.

I'VE NEVER told you this, son. Your mother knows it. . . . Sometimes she kids me about it, says I'd bust a blood vessel rather than let you get ahead of me. Maybe she's right. The plain truth is I'd rather die than let you down, give you cause to be ashamed of me.

It all started back several years ago, when I gave you a strapping because you came home with a black eye and then I learned in a round about way that you had gotten your shiner trying to convince some schoolmate that your dad was "the strongest, and finest, and bestest dad in the world."

I shed tears that night, Bill. I swore then I'd never let you lose your faith in me. Nothing has meant so much to me as to see that silent admiration in your clear eyes when you looked at me . . . to hear the genuine tone of pride in your voice when you introduced me to your friends, "This is MY dad!"

Then came the war. They said I was too old to go along with you . . . was needed at home to keep things going. But I'm not letting it go at that. In addition to putting in longer hours at the office, I've signed up for volunteer work in the Aircraft Warning Service. I spend regular hours out here at an army installation. A "ground observer," they call me.

Mother's in the AWS, too. She puts in four hours every fourth day at the Filter Center, where information flashed in from hundreds of posts like mine is plotted to keep our defenses constantly on the alert.

I don't mind the extra hours. It gives me time to think . . . and to plan for a better tomorrow, when you come back. "A fellow should never get too busy to think," someone has said.

Well, that's all for tonight, son. Somehow, it helps to send this message to you . . . out there . . . somewhere. Just wanted you to know I'm doing my part.

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, rank and the worst kind of pain.
