Scouts Enrolling For Annual Camp At Wolf Creek

Camp Wolf Creek, Boy Scout training camp for the scouts of Douglas county, will open on July 25th for a one-week period, according to word from local scout leaders. K. A. Wells, boy scout executive of this area, in the city today, said: "Most Boy Scouts are engaged in production jobs of some sort this summer, but many are planning on spending one week in summer camp at some time during the season. Wolf Creek camp is located on Little river in one of the finest camping sites in the county and we expect a full attendance this year."

Scouts are rapidly registering for the camp, some being already signed from Roseburg, Drain, Sutherlin and Coquille. The entire camp operating staff from Camp Lucky Boy, the scout camp for Lane and Benton counties, will be on hand to operate Camp Wolf Creek, according to Wells. Camp Lucky Boy is now in session but will close on the 25th.

Among those to be present for leaders will be R. E. Kalaher, assistant boy scout executive; Judson Compton, Bill Moore, Jim Vitus, Joe Getty, Henry Tobey, Eugene Bird and Chris Overgaard. Harold Jensen, now cooking for the Lucky Boy camp, will be on hand to turn the hotcakes at Wolf Creek.

Scouts planning to go but who have not yet registered are urged to do so immediately through their scoutmasters — or direct with the Boy Scout office in Eugene, as the capacity of the camp is strictly limited.
