EDITORIAL

By Charles V. Stanton

THE recent convocation here of the Umpqua Valley Paul Bunyan Loggers recalls to mind the exploits of that famous legendary personage, from whom the organization derived its name. Every man engaged in the logging woods knows the history of Paul Bunyan and Babe, the big blue ox. But perhaps some outside the lumbering business do not know, for instance, that the Great Plains owe their existence to the mythical Paul and Babe.

In Paul Bunyan's days the central United States was a country of high barren hills. When Paul received a contract to deliver logs from Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico, these mountains formed such a barrier that he and Babe dragged the mountains off a section of land at a time and dumped them into the sea, thus forming the plains as a sideway for the logs. The skid road filled with water and is now the Mississippi.

Babe was perhaps the most powerful animal that ever lived. Forty-two axe handles and a plug of tobacco between the eyes, he could pull the kinks out of crooked logging roads without effort. He struck one road, however, that was so hard to smooth out he pulled a three-inch links draw chain into a straight bar.

Few people, aside from loggers, know, for instance, that our Oregon cougar is the offspring of the chipmunks that fed on the prune pits from Paul Bunyan's cook shack.

The exploits of Paul Bunyan and his aides, Brimstone Bill, Johnny Inkslinger, the Chore Boy, the Seven Axemen and others, fill many books. They pioneered the lumbering industry of the Northwest.

The followers of Paul Bunyan are flocking to Douglas county in increasing numbers. Their axes and saws are awaking the echoes throughout our forests. They are a busy lot these days, but if you want to know more about Paul Bunyan and Babe, the blue ox, you will find any woods crew ready to add to your education if you will visit the bunkhouse after work hours.

Efficiency Plus: During efforts recently to settle title to a piece of land in Douglas county, a need arose for a copy of the original land patent from the federal government. As the document had been lost, the serial number was sent to the general land office at Washington, D. C., with a request for a certified copy. Back came a reply that the letter had been sent to the wrong address and should have been directed to the U. S. patent office, which, noting the number contained in the letter, sent a copy of a grant to an inventor—an improvement on coal grates.

Paging John L. Lewis: A public housing project has been authorized for Sutherlin. The units were designed for installation of coal-burning ranges and heating stoves. Within a radius of a half-mile of the project site are three sawmills where refuse burners are fed tons of wood waste daily. Coal must be hauled from Utah.

Battle of Food To Outlast War At Least 2 Years

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

Washington—You can look for the battle of food to continue, not only for the duration, but probably for two years or more after the United Nations are victorious in Europe.

Europe's need of food will be much greater after military operations are ended on the continent than it is now. All of the countries, with the possible exception of Sweden, Switzerland, Portugal and Germany, will have experienced several years of serious undernourishment of near-starvation.

The relief burden will have to be carried mainly by the big five producers of wheat, meat, and dairy products—the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Argentina. How much of that burden can and shall be shouldered by Uncle Sam promises to be a primary headache problem for the post-war administration and congress, be they democratic or republican.

For example, practically no beef has been sent out under lend-lease. In 1942, lend-lease food shipments of all kinds represented only 61 per cent of our total food supply while food production has been increased much more than that. Only within the last two or three months has the tonnage of lend-lease foods reached a larger figure than it was before Pearl Harbor.

Larger Shipments Due: Food officials say that our food shipments abroad now are a drop in the bucket compared with what relief demands will be when armistice day comes. According to Under Secretary of Agriculture Paul Appleby, chief U. S. delegate to the recent international food conference, "it simply would not be possible to take out of consumption in this country sufficient food to give Europeans only two-thirds of a normal diet."

"The only food we can send to Europe will be food we ourselves haven't eaten," Appleby says. "We should be rationing ourselves now to build up large stocks as possible for that need. We should continue rationing for some time after the war is over for that need."

It will take time for the hungry countries to reestablish their agriculture or to rehabilitate their

This column just about got lost in the shuffle today because the "Welcome Inn" cast just got a big lot of new music—that is it's new, but it's a collection of all the old timers we used to know and love. If you all enjoy the songs that remind you of the good times you used to have, keep listening to "Welcome Inn," because eventually they'll all make their appearance on the program—that is if we have any influence with the artists, they will.

On Sunday, This Is Our Enemy (2:30) brings you the "Diary of a Nazi Boy" and while we freely admit that these shows

Fascist Influence In Sicily Doomed

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17—(AP)—The first combined American-British military government of its kind accompanied the allied invasion army to govern Sicily, it was announced today.

Hundreds of American and British officers and men, who were trained secretly for months to govern occupied enemy territory, quickly established headquarters.

Gen. Eisenhower designated Gen. Harold Alexander as military governor with supreme authority in Sicily.

The allied military government organization itself is headed by Maj. Gen. Lord Rennell of Rodd as chief civil affairs officer. Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry, of the United States is deputy chief.

Although the administration on Sicily is to be benevolent so far as the civilian population is concerned, the influence of fascism will be destroyed, it was officially stated.

Kidnaping Charge in West Case Dropped

LOS ANGELES, July 16—(AP)—The municipal court has dropped kidnaping charges which accused June West, 24, actress, and Lawrence Carroll, 38, a hairdresser, of taking her daughter, Tamara, 3, from the Colorado Springs, Colo., home of her former husband.

The district attorney's office requested the dismissal yesterday after Irvin B. Bruce, Colorado Springs police chief, telegraphed word that kidnaping charges were being dropped there because the juvenile court here had awarded custody to the mother.

The father, Lt. Willis West of the army air force, claimed he had been awarded custody of the child in Oregon divorce proceedings and charged Tamara was taken from his home June 25.

Theft-Bothered Father Shoots Son by Mistake

SHAWNEE, Okla., July 17—(AP)—Pfc. Roy Ashcroft, 36, was given a three-day pass from Camp Barkeley, and came home to surprise the folks, arriving at 3 a. m.

His father, S. T. Ashcraft, who has been bothered with thieves on his farm, fired his shotgun as his son opened the door.

The younger Ashcraft, struck in the chest and right arm, is in a critical condition in a hospital.

Mimic Warfare In Central Oregon Region Launched

CAMP ABBOT, Ore., July 16—(AP)—A big triangle of mountains, buttes, valleys—pine forests, sage prairies and acres of lava lands—today became a practice field for war as troops poured in for a dress rehearsal.

Headquarters for the central Oregon army maneuver area here announced this morning that the first stage of large scale war games had started in the Sisters-Redmond-Bend triangle. The first phase will continue for some four weeks.

The troops came from army posts throughout the northwest. For the next month, headquarters announced through the Camp Abbot public relations officer, roads will be congested with truck convoys carrying soldiers and supplies. Civilian motorists were warned to exert caution, particularly after nightfall. Many convoys will travel after dark and under blackout conditions.

The terrain affords ground for every type of inland combat operations. Headquarters said it was chosen to try out many new phases of modern warfare—inventions born on actual battlefields.

Participating troops will represent practically every type. Tackling their first problem, the soldiers were moving into bivouac on the mountainsides, some of them under the shadows of ancient volcanoes.

Director of the maneuvers is Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, commanding general of the Fourth army corps. He recently returned from the South Pacific, where he commanded troops in the Guadalcanal campaign.

Officers emphasized that the right training under combat conditions constitute the final conditioning or "college graduate" course of these northwestern troops, fitting them for action anywhere in the world.

Motorists were requested to dim light and reduce speed when approaching a convoy at night during the maneuvers. They also were asked always to watch for foot soldiers along the roads.
