Rome Airborne Target. An Italian communique reported that the Associated Press reported that British aircraft attempted to machinegun an airfield in Rome this morning and said casualties from Monday's American raid on the capital were 717 killed and 1,599 injured.

Gen. Eisenhower's command said American forces striking inland were advancing north and northwest "against slight and ineffective opposition," and field reports declared they were herding panicky Italian troops and Germans into the northeast sector.

Allied headquarters said bitter fighting raged before Catania, on the east coast, where fresh Nazi troops had been thrown into the battle alongside the battered Hermann Goering division, but the British 8th army was boring ahead despite thick minefields.

An Algiers broadcast said the fleeing enemy had already evacuated the western Sicilian cities of Palermo, Trapani and Marsala. The broadcast also declared that the fall of Catania, key defense port on the Sicilian east coast, could not be delayed much longer.

The Italian communique said allied warplanes again blasted the bomb-torn port of Naples, as well as Grosseto, 90 miles north of Rome, and Salerno, south of Naples.

The plight of the axis armies was reportedly growing hourly more acute, with Lieut.-Gen. Patton's U. S. 7th army sweeping on beyond captured Enna and now only about 50 miles from the northern coast in a drive to cut the island in two.

Italian and German columns from the west were reported racing toward the "escape port" of Messina on the northeast tip, two miles across the strait of Messina from the Italian mainland, while crack Nazi divisions fought desperately at Catania to keep open the corridor of retreat.

VOLUNTEER for Duty Now! The Ground Observer Corps and Aircraft Warning Service (filter board) need YOU! Phone 288 EXCUSE, PLEASE Japanese too busy in China! IN 1941, the Japanese had been fighting China for five years. Everyone agreed they couldn't risk a war with Uncle Sam. The Japs encouraged this complacency. They even sent "Peace Emissaries" to Washington! Then, when we were thoroughly convinced they wouldn't fight us, they struck with almost overwhelming force! These same treacherous Japanese spent years convincing us they were poor pilots. Young Japanese students purposely made bad progress at American flying schools — to mislead us into believing they didn't have what it takes to make good pilots. They deliberately led us into believing we could "polish off the Jap fleet any weekend," that the Japanese were inferior sailors, poor marksmen, and that their warships and airplanes were obsolete and inferior. TODAY, the Japs would like you to believe they can't strike us here on the West Coast. They want us to "let down," to take air raid precautions as a joke . . . to believe that "it can't happen here." The plain truth is that it not only CAN happen here, but, as our victories in the Pacific increase, our chances of being attacked actually become greater. That's why you should help man the important military installations of the Aircraft Warning Service. Sign up today — tomorrow SURE — as a Ground Observer.
