AWS Campaign Very Successful

The public has been made increasingly aware of the AWS through the efforts of the press and radio during the week of August 1st to 7th that was set aside as Aircraft Warning Service Week. The press was most cooperative, advertisers contributed many column inches of space paying tribute to members of the AWS and the people as a whole were most responsive to our appeals for recognition of these volunteers. Undersecretary of War, Robert P. Patterson, stated:

"I have had previous occasions to emphasize, as I do now, that our present organization for air defense of the continental United States absolutely requires an efficient Ground Observers Corps and Aircraft Warning Corps," he said.

"Without these volunteers, we would be inadequately prepared to meet attack from the air—an attack very definitely within enemy capabilities. This is one of the vitally important services open to the civilians of this country who are willing to devote spare time to war work, and I should be glad to have such use made of these remarks of mine as will be of assistance in making its importance understood."

Officer Predicts Crime Wave Will Follow War

DETROIT, Aug. 11—(AP)—Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas department of public safety, told the international association of chiefs of police that "we of the police profession believe that our nation is headed for a crime wave far bloodier and costlier than that of the Capone-Dillinger era."

Col. Garrison, taking part in a group discussion of the effects of war on social standards, warned that "the unbridled youth of today has but a little way to go before he will graduate into the criminal of tomorrow."

Police officers expect strikes and riots, he said. Questions of social and economic advantage involving minority racial groups will play a prominent part in this violence.

"When the tension of war is removed we shall be a nation gone wild," he predicted. "We shall be involved in a mad scramble for new pleasures and new freedoms. Our economic and governmental structures may undergo profound changes."

Washington Dairymen Seek Higher Milk Price

SEATTLE, Aug. 12—(AP)—Warning that unless the ceiling price on milk is raised they will not put in a winter's supply of feed for cows "that can't pay their way," a delegation representing Washington milk producers yesterday demanded a price rise in a call at Office of Price Administration headquarters here. Dairymen said Walla Walla dealers have been forced to go on a voluntary rationing system to stretch their supply.
