Ammunition For Farmer Involves Question of Supply

Farmers and ranchers are eligible to purchase increased amounts of ammunition for control of predatory birds and animals during the current calendar quarter, reports R. D. Taylor, chairman of the Oregon USDA war board. A War Production board order provides that farmers may purchase during any calendar quarter a regular quota of 100.22 caliber rim fire cartridges, 40 center fire rifle cartridges of any caliber available and 25 shotgun shells. In addition to this regular quota a special quota is provided which may be obtained up to Oct. 1, amounting to 50.22 caliber rim fire cartridges, 20 cent fire rifle cartridges, and 25 shotgun shells.

Such ammunition is obtained by giving the dealer a specified certification. If the dealer does not have this form, the county war board can supply it.

Even though quotas permit farmers to purchase larger amounts of ammunition, Taylor pointed out that farmers may find that the caliber they want is not always obtainable. A recent survey in Oregon discloses that 30.30, .25-35, .300 Savage, .32 special and .25-20 cartridges are the types most essential to predatory animal control in this state. The state war board has made an effort to obtain increased supplies of these needed types, but with limited success. All ammunition is now manufactured on military orders. Because the types of ammunition most needed by farmers are not used by the military forces, special runs are required to manufacture them. Because of military needs, these special runs have been relatively few the war board was informed.

It is "human to err" and individuals in trusted positions have stolen money, merchandise and property from their employers. Dishonesty losses paid by capital stock insurance companies exceed a million dollars every month of the year. The cost of dishonesty insurance—A Fidelity Bond—is nominal compared to the financial protection it gives an employer.
