POET'S CORNER

By Harry Dunning, Pharmacist, Male First Class. Many years before my time, When Indians roamed this fertile land, Of mountains, valleys, fir and pine, Of rocky beaches edged in sand, The day when, Indian trails, Crossed the many Umpqua streams, Through our forests and our dales, Into this valley of our dreams, Across these trails of hidden toil, Beat their way with strength unknown, Pioneers came in search of soil, Land to stake and call their own. One of these was Aaron Rose, The leader of his little band, Who'd fought their way, starved and tross, To share together a new land, They chose a valley on the Umpqua shore, A paradise from God alone, To end their journey forever more, And give each man his wanted home, Mountains covered by evergreen trees, Rivers swarming with many fish, A land of plenty, a land of ease, God gave it to fulfill their wish, And then as years did come and go, And settlers came to stake their claim, Upon this spot a town did grow, Roseburg was its given name, For Aaron Rose their leader true, Had worked and planned to have a place, Of grass so green and skies so blue, A paradise for his hardy race, If he could only see it now, His muddy streets all paved and clean, Each farmer has his steel plow, And railways now line the stream, Wooden stables replaced by stores, The roaring Umpqua spanned by bridges, Many churches with open doors, And painted houses lined by hedges, It's still not large, but we love it so, The scented breeze from the Douglas fir, The summer warmth and winter snow, The way it makes you want to stir, And seek the mystery of its hills, And watch the smoke still climbing high, From our dryers and our mills, And leave you memories that don't die, Now our country is at war, And I am many miles away, But in this valley beside this shore, Our little town is there to stay.

The bullet struck and stumbled from the porch and the boy fired another bullet which hit Olavsen in the back of the head. Dumps Body Into Well Mevers said he then took Olavsen's body and dumped it into a well near the ranchhouse and replaced the cover. He returned to a neighboring house, replaced the rifle he had stolen, and went back to Portland on a bus.

Gurdane said Olavsen's revolver was found in the boy's possession at the time of his arrest at Nehalem, near here, last night. The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Meyers, moved to Nehalem from Portland last August 28, Gurdane said. The father is a commercial fisherman.

The bodies of Olavsen and Mrs. Borglund were found September 2 after the Rev. O. Larson, Clatskanie Baptist minister, noticed that cows on Olavsen's ranch were suffering because they had not been milked for some time. Officers found Mrs. Borglund's body rolled up in a blanket on a bed. Olavsen's body was found the next day floating in a well about 150 feet from the ranchhouse.

Individual Bond Sales Meet Goal In 3rd War Loan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today the $5,000,000,000 Third War Loan goal for bond sales to individuals "is definitely in the bag—and more." The treasury head expressed a hope that the Third War Loan, which already has raised nearly $18,000,000,000— together with the $3,000,000,000 financing program opened to the banks this week—would take care of the treasury's needs for the rest of the year. He indicated another large-scale financial drive might be held in January.

Explaining what he termed a necessity for keeping open the books on the Third War Loan until October 16, he said that in Detroit for instance none of the big automotive plants had yet reported their bond sales due to the huge task of processing them. Latest treasury figures showed individual sales up to Tuesday night aggregated $4,435,000,000. The remainder attained in the Third war loan was subscribed by corporations and other large investors.

fiel included Charles O. Beauchamp, $25, speeding; Frederick L. Blaser, $15, speeding, and $10, no tail light; Claude Harvey, $10, no tail light; Frank Milton, $10, permitting unlicensed minor to drive motor vehicle; Frank Earl Burr, $10, no signalling device, and $10, no tail light.

SHOCKING PERFORMANCE

WAGGONER, Ill.—E. J. King is 76 years old and weighs 104 pounds. He hasn't been doing much farm work for the last couple of years, but he hasn't lost the touch when he gets into a corn field. King cut and shocked by hand 104 shocks of corn and estimated that at 544 strokes of the knife to each shock he delivered 56, 576 swings to complete the job. And he felt okay when he finished. To prove it he stood on his head.

Leaking Gas Converts Farm Wells to Geysers

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 8—(AP)—Farmers and dairymen of the Bammel gas field area worked furiously today to save their water supply—after some of their wells began spraying wildly into the air and huge craters began forming around others. Texas railroad commission engineers said natural gas had leaked into the water-bearing sand far underground, pushing up the water.
