about his U-boats.

THESE signs of German worry, so radically different from the German cocksureness of the earlier years of the war, contribute to the feeling in one's bones that big events are beginning to cast their shadows.

As these words are written, our naval attack on the island of Wake remains a mystery. It isn't known whether it is a hit-and-run affair, or means business.
But if you'll get out your globe, which tells the story better than a map, and locate Wake on it, you'll find your curiosity about this Wake affair greatly stimulated.

WAKE is slightly south of the halfway point from Hawaii to Japan. It lies just north of the so-called "Mantled Islands," where a lot of Japan's Pacific strength (including the great base at Truk) is located.

If it turns out that we've really gone after Wake and mean to take and hold it, it will be a pretty sure sign that we're going after Japan for blood.

A lot of strength will be required to take Wake and hold it, for the Japs will be almost sure to put up a battle to prevent it.
Maybe it's in preparation for such battle that the little yellow men are pulling out of the Solomons.

MONTH after month, the Japs have been pulling in their horns, a little at a time. We've won victory after victory over them. It may be that these victories, coupled with the Japs' steady retirement from their outposts in the South Pacific, have given us a wrong impression of the Pacific picture.

The Japs AREN'T weak.
They're STRONG. Very little of their strength (relatively speaking) has yet been dissipated in battle. If they're pulling in their horns now, it must be in preparation for what is yet to come.

Maybe this Wake affair is the kick-off.

If it turns out to be true that the framework of big events is beginning to show faintly through the fog, it won't mean that the end of the war and the beginning of peace are at hand.

What it will mean is that the long and slow PREPARATORY moves on the checkerboard have been made and that we're now ready to close in on the enemy's king row. That will mean hard fighting and lots of it.

It takes hard fighting to win wars.

THE NATIONAL WAR FUND

EDITORIAL

By Charles V. Stanton

RESIDENTS of Douglas county will be called upon this month to contribute $15,500 to the National War Fund. The National War Fund is a Community Chest plan developed on a nation-wide scale, which, by raising a total of $125,000,000 throughout the United States, will cover the financial needs of 17 national agencies. It is expected that money also will be raised in each state to care for local charitable institutions, of which Oregon has designated six to be recipients of aid.

Of the total budget to be raised nationally, nearly one-half—$61,226,827—will be distributed to the United Service Organizations, United Seamen's Service and other agencies which provide directly for the needs of the men in the various armed branches.

Other allotments are planned as follows: War Prisoners Aid, $5,888,168; services to the Merchant marine $4,744,097; refugee relief, which embraces aid to those who have managed to escape from the occupied countries, $8,637,849; aid to civilians in the combat zones, $24,973,626; relief in occupied countries, where there is assurance that supplies will not fall into the hands of the enemy, $5,925,566; administrative and campaign costs, $800,000; contingent fund, $12,807,867.

Upwards of 60,000,000 persons will receive some degree of aid from the war services which will be financed through the National War Fund, according to Charles A. Sprague, general chairman of the drive in the state of Oregon.

While money is being raised to meet the needs of these various national agencies, funds also will be collected for the Boys and Girls Aid Society, Catholic Charities, Inc., Children's Farm Home, Oregon Protective Society, Volunteers of America, and Waverly Baby Home, six of Oregon's leading charitable institutions which are entirely dependent upon Community Chest, direct contributions, or other forms of public or private financial support.

In past years individual solicitations have been conducted by each of the agencies and organizations which are now to be aided through one united drive. Continuation of previous practice would mean 23 separate solicitations with a tremendous waste of manpower, effort and administrative expense.

The campaign on behalf of the National War Fund does not mean no further contributions will be sought. We will still be asked to contribute to the American Red Cross, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts and other worthy organizations, which have established periods in which to seek support.

It does mean, however, that more than a score of individual campaigns have been lumped into one big and well-organized drive, thus greatly reducing the number of solicitations which would otherwise be necessitated.

There can be no question concerning the merit of the appeal.
It would be impossible for any one of us, individually, to carry relief, aid and benefits to sixty million persons, who are in need of help. But by pooling our dollars we can accomplish that result in a most efficient manner. Certainly no further incentive should be required to produce a generous response to the appeal.

Colin Kelly's Widow To Wed Naval Officer

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12 (AP)— Mrs. Colin P. Kelly, Jr., attractive widow of the air force hero, and Dr. J. Watson Pedlow, Philadelphia chemical engineer and now a navy lieutenant, will be married Friday.

At Philadelphia Mrs. Mary Pedlow said her son, who is 35, and Mrs. Kelly had been "trying to keep it a secret." Mrs. Pedlow said she knew they became engaged after he met Mrs. Kelly several months ago while he was on the west coast on duty.

Sometime after Capt. Kelly gave his life as a bomber pilot to sink the Japanese battleship Haruna shortly after the Pearl Harbor attack, Mrs. Kelly and her 3-year-old son, Corky, came to Southern California and had been living in Beverly Hills. She made occasional appearances to promote war bond sales and other patriotic causes.

OUT OUR WAY

Washington News From an Inside View

Argument, Sentiment, Comment

By HARRIS ELLSWORTH

Congressman, Fourth Oregon District

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9.— Now we are told by Charles E.
Wilson, acting head of the War Production board (during the absence of Donald Nelson, who is in Egypt and is not expected home for several weeks), that so far as producing alumina from clay is concerned, there may or may not be manpower difficulties in Oregon and Washington but that is not the immediate reason for refusing to permit the construction of an aluminafrom-clay plant.

Not long ago, you may recall, the WPB announced refusal of permission to build such a plant —or plants—because of the shortage of manpower.

Now, Wilson says, we no longer need the additional alumina supplies. In fact, I quote him word for word: "We have alumina running out of our ears." Some forms of manufactured alumina are needed, he says, such as extrusions and forging and castings—but not raw alumina; there is plenty of that.
So we no longer need to consider developing new processes for extracting the light metal from clay.

There is a small stockpile of bauxite that has been shipped in from across the Caribbean and "shipping is easy from there now due to the elimination of the submarine menace. The bauxite deposits in Arkansas are sufficient to last about two years at the present rapid rate of mining.
Wilson estimates, therefore, that we have ample raw aluminum for three years. He had already voiced opinion that it would take about three years to get the three proposed alumina-from-clay plants into commercial production on a satisfactory scale.

This information was developed in a meeting of some Oregon and Washington members of Congress with Mr. Wilson. Near the end of the conference, since I could not make certain things he had said add up, I asked some questions. Here they are—almost exactly word for word (we did not have a stenographic report of the meeting): Question: We only have three years of alumina supply in sight in this country?
Answer: Yes.
Q. And it will take three years to get the clay process into production on a quantity basis?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that mean that you and the War Production board calculate that the war will end some little time before our three year supply of alumina is exhausted?
A. Oh—No!

In view of the well known fact that we can obtain aluminum from only two sources—by boat from South America or by taking it from our own clay deposits—after the Arkansas deposits of bauxite are exhausted, it is still wondering just what sort of magic Mr. Wilson and the War Production board would use to make airplanes to fight with if the war should happen to go against us and the Caribbean closed to shipping again. Sounds to me as if they would take a longer gamble on this vital metal than most folks would.

We should, we must, develop our own source of aluminum.
We will be helpless in the modern world unless we do. We should do it now. If it is necessary to do it in spite of the WPB,

The committee (unofficial) of members of Congress from Oregon, Washington and California organized last week to investigate and protest the recent WPB directive stopping the allocation of war contracts on the Pacific coast, due to the manpower shortage, is doing some effective work—and getting some amazing information.

Last week we interviewed some executives from "down town" and here is about what they told us:
Everything is going fine. Special committees from the Manpower commission working in conjunction with WPB, and having local regional authority will review and pass upon future contracts (including renewal and new) and will approve them if local investigation reveals sufficient manpower available. Thus, they point out, no really deserving plant will be put out of business.

This committee is meeting again today and I am hoping we shall be able to dig up some further information that may be a bit more encouraging.

Yesterday I heard Senator Brewster of Maine report on what he observed on his recent trip around the world with the party of senators. The five senators are reporting their findings to the Senate yesterday and today—in a secret session. The revelations are amazing—and are not encouraging. The press reports are merely the thin outline. The facts that fill in this skeleton report are convincing. Put into very few words, the report of Brewster is simply that, while our army and navy are doing a splendid job winning the war, we are bungling the civilian follow-up and the British are doing a good job incidentally taking credit to themselves for much of the relief work that we are doing.

DIAL LOG

By SUSAN

Guess it's time to settle back to normal again—all the excitement of the World Series is over for another year. We're now busily trying to locate all the regular programs spots again—and who should turn up missing, but Sheelah Carter. In her place we will have Roy Dady, a new analyst. Haven't heard him yet, so we don't know whether it's thumbs up or down. We might remark, in passing, that we didn't have anything to do with Sheelah's departure, so don't start feudin' with us over her. For Tuesday night, there's An-nal-ors on Music You Remember at 6:30, Boys Town in their new spot at 6:45 and Just a Song at Twilight (that's the old-time program) at 8:30.

Wednesday we're back in the groove again, with the Wheel of Fortune and Rose Room back in their regular spots. Full Speed Ahead and Welcome Inn also back as usual. Then there's Soldiers With Wings (this week with Irene Manning and Laird Cregar as guests) at 6:30. Kenny Youngman, Broadway comedian, guests on Take A Card at 8, and Bulldog Drummond and the faithful Denny have another hair-raising adventure at 8:30. And, just so you won't be disappointed, we'll give you advance notice that there will be no American Forum of the Air this Thursday evening. To date we haven't an idea of what will be in their usual spot, but there will be news tomorrow. Anyway, don't forget that this is Tuesday and a mighty good listening night on 1490.
