Wm. Strang Shifted by Aircraft Company

William Strang, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strang, former Roseburg residents now living at Medford, has been assigned to duty on the east coast as a hydraulic expert by the Douglas Aircraft company with which he is employed, according to word received here. He was employed until recently at the El Segundo, Calif., aircraft plant as hydraulic coordinator, but has been transferred to an east Florida air base and will spend considerable time on the Atlantic coast in supervisory work at several of the plants maintained by the company for the military services.

ODDITIES

LABELS

PORTLAND, Ore.—Recruits at the armed forces induction station were asked their names and choice of service.

"I'm Wild, and I want to join the navy," said one.

"I'm Wilder," said the next in line. "Put me in the marines."

TREES

DENVER—Christmas trees being scarce, R. M. Sealock thoughtfully eyed the blue spruce he had planted in his back yard.

Finally, though, he bought a tree, much smaller and scrappier.

He went out again to admire the one growing in his yard.

All he found was a stump.

WELL, DID THEY BITE?

OAKLAND, Calif.—W. N. Orme, manager of a general manufacturing company, reported a $1,000 theft, but Oakland police had only this to bite into—stolen were 300 sets of false teeth.

YOUNG IN HEART

GREEN BAY, Wis.—"I don't know what we're going to do about these bicyclists," said Police Sgt. Harry Bultman as he looked over a report on a collision between a bicycle and an automobile.

The bicyclist, who escaped with bruises, was 81.

SEEMS IT WAS SUGAR ATLANTA—A negro was arrested by the FBI on charges of failing to sign up for selective service.

"Why didn't you register?" asked Assistant U. S. Attorney Raymond W. Martin.

"I did," the man replied, "but I don't know whether it was for the draft or for sugar."
