DOROTHY MAYNOR SINGS CONCERT TO ENTHRALLED AUDIENCE HERE SATURDAY

More than 800 were in the audience hearing Miss Dorothy Maynor, world-famous Negro soprano, present the first concert of the Community Concert association Saturday evening at the junior high school auditorium.

From the minute, Miss Maynor stepped onto the stage to her closing encore, she held her audience spell-bound and the applause for every number was simply deafening. Miss Maynor was especially gracious and sang five encores during the concert. Her voice range was exceptional and her tone quality was of such perfection, that one can readily believe world-famous critics who state that Miss Maynor is one of the finest artists of the time.

Miss Maynor's concert included twenty numbers, each one of which was most beautifully sung, in addition to the five encores demanded by the pleased audience. Not only is she a great singer, but is a great actress. Her control over the audience was graciously acknowledged by the artist. Considerable applause went also to the pianist, Ernst Victor Wolf, who is a most accomplished musician and who had arranged two of the numbers in the Negro Spirituals group.

Officers of the Community Concert association have expressed their gratitude to the residents of Douglas county, for making these concerts possible. The support given to the movement has been wonderful and the interest shown at Miss Maynor's concert was exceptionally fine, and to Miss Maynor herself, the members of the Association will long remember her for her very beautiful voice, her graciousness in giving encores and for her charming manner following the concert, when she remained at the auditorium to autograph programs for the children as well as adults.

The next concert will be March 15, when the association will present Miss Patricia Travers, American violinist and motion picture star.

Mule Meat, Courtesy Are Reported From Nippons

PORTLAND, Jan. 31—(AP)—Meat was served for breakfast in a Japanese internment camp in north China—but it must have been mule meat.

So said 17-year-old Joseph Cooke, who returned home on the exchange ship Gripsholm. "We suspected we were getting mule meat because there were very few cattle in the district and no horses," he said. "There didn't seem to be any cattle missing but the mules disappeared gradually." Cooke said the camp food was good by Chinese standards and that the English-educated Japanese officer in charge was a "real gentleman by European standards."

Guard Your Tongue, Is Urge of War Censor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—(AP)—An admonition to Americans not to "tell the world" their secrets, is offered by Censorship Director Byron Price.

"If you hear or suspect that secret war experiments are in progress," said Price in a radio broadcast, "best forget it. If you discover what airplanes or ships have gone overseas, or about to go, then it is time to guard your tongue. If you have means of calculating about the time or place of attack, why not put your conclusions way away in your mind for future reference?"

"Your government asks every American citizen to give prayerful thought to these matters in the fateful days ahead, and to do this or her full duty."

WISHFUL THINKING

If some fairy should wave her wand and offer us three wishes, it wouldn't be enough. But we would wish that egg prices would rise in accordance with production costs; that there might be a market for MOST of the turkey eggs that the 200% increase of turkey breeders are going to lay; and that there would be feed enough for all the stuff everybody wants to raise in 1944.

We would like a couple more wishes: that Washington would allow the farmers the same chance to make a little profit as labor and other groups enjoy; and that the fair haired boys who set the goals and prices for farmers had to make their living by following the rules they have laid down for the rest of us.

But all this is wishful thinking. The facts are that egg prices will be up when the supply gets down to needs. (And at the rate baby chicks are being ordered all over the country, that will be sooner than might be expected. Hatcheries have less than half as many orders as last year, which implies an egg famine in eight or nine months.)

If apparently reliable reports are true, we fear that turkey eggs will be for a market by May 1st.

Feed is plentiful now, but prospects are very dubious for next summer and fall. Manufacturers are building up inventories of grains and what small amounts of concentrates become available, but these will melt like the proverbial snowball when the new crop of young stuff begins to eat next summer. Besides all which, we have only the promise that concentrates will be allocated to the Pacific northwest. For instance, there was a promise made last

GOOD NEWS

On Jan. 25th WFA launched nation-wide carlot buying of eggs which is expected to be chief means of supporting prices to farmers at levels to which WFA is committed. These prices will be set periodically, and are supposed to hold prices at not less than 90% of annual parity, and a farm price of 30c in the spring and 34c average for the year. (Egg announcement by War Food Administration.)

Ho! Hum! Same old story! But all egg producers will still have the keen enjoyment of raising and tending with all those pretty chickens and the money will NEED THE EGGS, so what the Heck if there doesn't happen to be any profit?

Totally 1200 tons, of which only 600 tons ever arrived in Oregon.

As for Washington giving the farmers a break, we know better than to expect that. And under their own rules, they would receive the first year at the farming game, simply because they don't understand the problems they claim to be solving.

We believe most competent producers of turkeys, frivers and does can squeeze through and take out a FAIR profit at the present prices ratio between feed and their products. But we doubt if anyone will become a millionaire doing it.

So now, we offer our usual suggestions, which cost you absolutely nothing if you don't follow them: go ahead and raise about your usual quotas, or—better less, of chickens, turkeys, dairy stock, and do your best to raise a little more of the food for them. By all means, see that you have pasture for your stuff.

DO YOU KEEP BOARDERS?

We are testing lots of turkey breeders now, and find many of them lousy and wormy. You can't get production from breeders harboring parasites, and feed is too high to waste on such boarders. If you are suspicious, get your delouser and dewormer at the Douglas Flour Mill. We have them.

Election Is Coming
"My career is promising."
"What do you do?"
"I write political speeches."
And speaking of promises, we really have an invoice for those turkey saddles. They will sell at 20c each. Be here soon.

Breeder's Mash
We have it. $3.55 a hundred. Results already have proved it equal to pre-war quality. It's time to give it to your turkey hens.

Feed Troughs
You all know what a job it is to build a good feeder, or a water trough that won't leak. We have some excellent wooden troughs for both feed and water. Guaranteed not to leak, and will save feed. Priced right, too.

Imagination
"Traveled all over the world, but went the Rhine, I suppose?"
"Yeah, climbed it to the top!"
"Saw the Lion of St. Mark?"
"Sure! Fed it!"
"And visited the Black Sea?"
"Yep, filled my fountain pen there."
