chinery APPLIED TO WAR. We have mastered the machine more completely than any other people on earth.

If, as we obviously did in the Marshalls, we can apply the machine to the extermination of our enemies as successfully as we have applied it to the solution of our problems of peace-time production, there is NO PEOPLE ON EARTH that can stand against us.

If we can establish the lesson that no people on earth can stand against us, the military adventurer peoples will be far more CAUTIOUS in the future about provoking our demonstratedly deadly anger.

That would be a long step toward lasting peace.

LET'S not jump too soon to the conclusion that we CAN make the machine (which more than any other people we have made our servant) do the bloody work that in the past has had to be done by the plodding foot soldier with his rifle and his bayonet—with resulting tremendous saving of life.

Kwajalein was only an experiment — a thrillingly successful one, to be sure, but the experience of centuries has taught us that more than one experiment is necessary to PROVE A NEW FACT.

Still, it is immensely encouraging in its implications.

IN the news there is finally a definite Russian achievement that we can check up on the map.

The reds have taken Nikopol, fur which, because of its deposits of precious steel-hardening manganese, the Germans have fought with unbelievable tenacity.

But they had to give in to superior Russian force.

ULTIMATELY the Germans will have to give in EVERYWHERE to superior allied force. When that fact breaks upon them with sickening certainty, the end of the war in Europe will be likely to come swiftly.

ITALY continues to be the darkest spot in our war picture, and recent dispatches do nothing to lighten it.

We landed on the beach below Rome, and for a few days it looked as if we had made one of those brilliant strokes that change the face of wars. We read now that we are dug in there, fighting desperately, and that the Germans clearly hold the initiative.

They are massing forces for a supreme attempt to drive us back into the sea.

MAKE no mistake as to the Germans' determination to do just that if they can. For more than a year now they have been losing steadily. Their leaders sorely need a victory to fire the flagging hopes of their people at home, who certainly must have observed for themselves this steady march of German defeat after German defeat.

They must be extremely nervous when they contemplate the fact that each time we've attempted a landing (Sicily, Salerno) we've got ashore and STAYED THERE. Throwing us back into the sea from a beach on which we've landed would give a mighty lift to the German spirit.

SO look for them to try it, with everything they have, at Anzio. The fighting there isn't over. It may well be that it isn't much more than started.

A CITY ZONING PROGRAM

By Charles V. Stanton

THE Roseburg city council is preparing to undertake a zoning program. The council would like very much to pass the job off to a planning commission. The members of the fire commission, who have been conducting the survey thus far, realize the magnitude of the task upon which they have embarked and would be delighted to have volunteers step forward to assume the responsibility for the project, which is certain to produce plenty of headaches and many long nights of arduous labor.

It might seem at first thought it would be an easy task to say that a business district should be located in a certain part of town, that other areas should be set aside for residences, and that industries should be grouped in still another location. But a proper zoning study requires much more consideration than the mere blocking out of tracts for specified purposes.

First there must be a business section. Consideration must be given the probable extent of growth and the direction in which the business district is most apt to expand.

There must be specified what constitutes business, the fire hazards created and the types of buildings to be required.

Then residential districts must be taken into consideration.

In most zoning programs there is a Class A residential district, limited to single family residences. No stores are permitted. There can be no duplex residences, no boarding houses, no nurseries. There are Class B districts in which duplex houses and community stores may be situated. Other classifications may be decided upon to include all types of residential quarters, business and semi-business districts, industrial areas, warehouse districts, etc. and etc.

Each of these must be fitted into the plan, taking into consideration the existing facilities, conditions and buildings, and at all times trying to visualize future trends.

The program will provide regulations specifying how houses must be situated on lots—how far they must be set back from the street and what distance must be preserved between structures. All in all it appears to be a task requiring a great deal of careful study.

A good many property owners are not going to be at all pleased by the findings. Opinions will differ widely.

It must be realized, however, that zoning is primarily a protection for the property owner. A man does not like to spend several thousand dollars on an attractive home for himself and family, only to have a trailer camp, a poultry plant or a planing shed set up on the adjoining lot. Not that trailer camps, poultry plants and planing sheds are not desirable, but their locations should be so arranged that they will not destroy the value of property more suitable for residential purposes.

The state law recognizes that a zoning system, by regulating uses to which property may be put, is in a way an invasion of property rights. Yet the need for zoning is readily recognized. To assure full protection, the law provides that public hearings must be held before the program can be finally adopted.

Roseburg will face a mushroom growth as soon as building restrictions are eased. It is necessary that immediate and careful attention be given some plan for efficient zoning. Otherwise property values can be seriously affected.

It is to be hoped that the city council is given the utmost cooperation. The group which finally assumes responsibility for the study should, in our opinion, call in representative industrialists, business men, home owners and other interested parties for counsel, opinions and ideas. The more people who interest themselves in the project, the greater will be the understanding of the magnitude of the task and willingness to accept the restrictions which may necessarily be imposed.

LETTERS to the Editor

OFFERS OPINION ON CHARACTER OF BOOKS

I read the letter by Mrs. Allen on the subject of books.

I would not have bothered answering it if she had not asked for opinions.

Well, I'll tell her how I feel about books.

I am not very well acquainted with Oregon's laws, but I believe that in the U. S. A. filthy books, as she calls them, are banned. Therefore, the book could not have been too filthy.

If I had bought a book that was really filthy, I would have taken the matter to the store manager. If it really endangered the morale of the youths, I would have taken it to the local authorities.

I also notice that Mrs. Allen in her complaint failed to mention the name of said book. If she honestly expects a sincere opinion, she should have done so to enable us mothers to decide for ourselves after reading said book and giving it fair consideration.

Yes, I am a mother of two children, a boy 12 and a girl 15, and I think the world of "both" of them, not only the girl.

My children are wise and broadminded. They know the facts of life, and our family, as a whole, is highly respected.

There has never been child delinquency in our family that I know of. Thank God!

The children and ourselves are law abiding citizens, respecting other people's feelings and opinions and we make it a point not to make snap judgments. I have found out for myself that all is clean to the clean and honest to the honest.

Apparently Mrs. Allen likes heart-breaking literature. I don't. I like comics, adventure, science, inventions and educational books. I believe there are enough tears shed in this dark world without going out and buying a book that would bring tears to your eyes.

I reserve my tears for times like when we received a telegram not so long ago telling us my stepson was in Tokyo as a prisoner of war. We couldn't help it then. But we prayed for him, and the others in the same situation, and braced up.

I am sorry not to agree with Mrs. Allen. Let's not look for tears or to the darkest or filthiest part of humanity. Let's ignore the evil and encourage good will and righteousness. Let's be thankful we are Americans — free Americans; that we can enjoy our freedoms—free press, free speech, etc., and let us pray that it will always be the same.

MRS. D. DIXON,
Dillard, Ore.

COMMENDS EDITORIAL ON RELIGIOUS "ADS"

Editor News-Review:

It was with interest and respect that I read your editorial in the February 4th edition of the News-Review entitled "Advertising Religion."

I don't remember of ever reading anything better along that line, and I do wish that all those who like to criticize the church and the members would read this article over and over again until they grasp what the church means to them, and to the community, and to the country at large. And I might add to the whole world.

Yours very truly,
C. E. YOUNG,
Glendale, Ore.

DIAL LOG

By SUSAN

This makes us feel worse than it does you—but we have to remind you that Friday afternoon will mark Faith's last appearance on "Welcome Inn"—at least for the duration, because she has orders to report for duty. It's Private Young of the marines from now on—and are we going to miss her! However, since its war and orders is orders, we'll cheer ourselves with Double or Nothing at 6:30 and Name That Song at 8:30. And remember, Friday is the night you hear Freedom of Opportunity between 10 and 10:30. This week's hero is Lt. Tommy Harmon, with Michigan's coaches presenting Harmon with a gold key, following the dramatized story of his life. At 7 o'clock Dale Carnegie profiles the story of Abraham Lincoln in his "Little Known Facts." Don't forget R. H. S. has a new time for their broadcast—they are on from 10.45 until 11 on Friday morning's now. This being Thursday night, be sure to get tuned to 1490 by 6:30 for Annaloris with Music You Remember, and then go right on through all the good shows that are listed for the balance of the evening.

Suit Clashes With OPA Ruling, Shipper Asserts

WENATCHEE, Wash., Feb. 10.—(AP)—J. W. Hebert, manager of the Yakima Fruit Growers association, said here last night the basis of the suit filed by the OPA in San Francisco against 18 northwest fruit shippers was exactly contrary to rulings from the OPA headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"We have had five or six different interpretations of the less-than-carload-lot point and no two of them have been alike," asserted Hebert, who is chairman of the shippers price control committee. "This San Francisco version is at the moment directly the opposite of the latest ruling from Washington."

SALES STIMULANT

RUSHVILLE, Neb.—Sales of the $1,000 denomination of war bonds are proving popular here says the state war finance committee.

Tavern Keeper Sam Hinn is giving each purchaser of a $1,000 bond a quart of whisky and says the offer will hold good until Feb. 15—or until his supply of whisky is exhausted.
