NO PLACE FOR A BULLY

By Charles V. Stanton

SEVERAL years ago there was a boy in our neighborhood who was locked upon as a "sissy." He never asserted himself nor did he enter into the quarrels of the other children.

But one day a playmate went too far and the "sissy," his anger thoroughly aroused, fought and won his first battle. He immediately became the neighborhood bully and turned into a truculent, swaggering youngster who continually stirred up trouble, breaking up games and spoiling fun for smaller children.

We have in Washington the possibilities for a parallel situation.

For years congress has been meekly accepting the dictates of the executive branch of government. The president has been endeavoring to concentrate all authority in his department. Court appointments gave a measure of control over the judicial branch. The popularity of the New Deal, in the early days of the party, afforded him a compliant congress, which meekly surrendered much of the authority delegated to it by the Constitution.

With typical "damyan" maladroitness, the message failed to recognize the touchiness of the Southerner concerning his horses, women and personal honor, resulting in a revolt by the hitherto loyal Kentuckian, Senator Barkley, majority leader. Now Congress has all but severed diplomatic relations with the executive branch and apparently has declared its independence.

It remains to be seen whether this change in condition is for better or for worse. If statesmanship prevails in the halls of Congress, great benefit can result. But, if Congress indulges in an orgy of name calling and nose thumbing, our war effort can be impeded and our domestic situation made intolerable.

Congress now has the opportunity to restore full constitutional government to this country, reestablishing the system of checks and balances foreseen as essential by the founding fathers. It has shaken itself free from the domination of the executive branch. It shows signs of demanding the right to exercise full control of its authorized prerogatives. If Congress will take advantage of its new-found freedom to work in a constructive manner and maintain the dignity with which it should be cloaked, it will receive full confidence and approbation from the public.

There is little doubt that the full weight of executive disapproval will descend upon Congress in the form of increased "smearing." If Congress fights back in kind, we will have a political scene that will disgust every true American.

This is a time that calls for clear thinking and exercise of qualities of statesmanship, not for vindictiveness and bullying.

Congress should demand its rightful place in governmental control and should require the executive branch to cease interference with the legislative department. On the other hand, it should attempt to work in harmony with the chief executive in both the military and domestic efforts.

The president and Congress have each been endeavoring to embarrass the other for political purposes. Congress has now declared its independence and need not continue inter-necine strife. It is time to cease political finagling and proceed with determination to settle domestic and international affairs in a spirit of statesmanship.

Grants Pass Win Puts Indians Into Cellar Spot Tie

Grants Pass pulled the Roseburg Indians into a tie for cellar position in the district basketball standings by winning Saturday night's game on the Roseburg court, 42 to 37.

Missing the services of Bob Krell at his guard position, Krell being out of the game because of a foot injury suffered in Friday night's contest, the Indians made a very poor start, while Smith and Furchner of the Grants Pass team rolled in baskets almost at will.

Returning to the court after the rest period, the Indians bogged up in their attack, and began tossing in long shots, which quickly disorganized the visiting team's defense.

Midway in the final quarter, Loomis fouled himself out of the game, which slowed down the Indians' rally but failed to stop it entirely.

Huskies May End Hoopster Season Without a Defeat

(By the Associated Press) Collegiate basketball makes its final bow in the Pacific northwest this week with two unanswered questions will the University of Washington Huskies go through the 16-game season undefeated, and who will be in the Northern division cellar—Idaho or Washington State?

Oregon State marked fits to its conference season Saturday night with a 55-44 victory over Washington State and moved in a third place by the grace of a few percentage points.

Reservation for Night Passengers Restored by S. P.

The Southern Pacific company announced today restoration of the one section reservation for night passengers northbound from Roseburg, effective immediately. The reservation recently was cancelled as a part of the company's effort to centralize sleeper accommodations and all applications were handled through Medford. Previously one section had been left open at Medford for the use of travellers boarding the train at Roseburg and desiring tourist accommodations.

Due to heavy wire traffic, it has been decided, S. P. officials report, to restore the one section reservation to Roseburg, thus eliminating the necessity of communication with Medford unless applications for reservations exceed the one lower and one upper now available at all times from Roseburg users on the midnight train.

In the event additional accommodations are required, they can be procured, if available, through Medford, prior to the departure of the train from that city at 7:15 p. m. The Southern Pacific company asks cooperation on the part of persons using the northbound train from Roseburg in requesting desired reservations as far ahead of the time of departure as possible. Applications made 24 hours or more in advance will in nearly all cases be available unless reservations are needed for military use. It was stated.

Sgt. K. F. Taylor Of Idleyld Park Prisoner of Nazis

Staff Sergeant Kenneth Fay Taylor, reported missing in action over Germany last Jan. 11, is apparently a prisoner of war, according to official messages received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan B. Taylor of Idleyld Park. The parents were notified Sunday by the War department that radio messages from Germany had been intercepted listing Taylor as a prisoner.

Although the telegrams gave particular warning that such messages from Germany are designed for propaganda purposes, the parents are confident that the report is assurance their son is alive. They base their confidence on the fact that the German radio used his middle name and that the messages addressed to the mother bore her married name. On his army records, Taylor used only his middle initial and listed his mother's given name. The fact that the German radio listed the sergeant's full name and gave his mother as "Mrs. Allan B. Taylor" instead of "Mrs. Nina Taylor," as the next of kin, cause the parents to believe the message was actually dictated by their son.

Graduate of R. H. S.

Sergeant Taylor, a graduate of Roseburg high school, enlisted with the army air forces in January 1941. He was trained as a mechanic and saw service in Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal zone. He requested transfer back to the United States for training as an aerial gunner, and received instruction at fields in Florida and North Carolina, and was sent to England in Nov. 1943. He participated in raids over France and was on three missions over Germany before his bomber was lost in the Jan. 11 raids on German aircraft centers which cost the allies 65 planes.

The news was particularly timely, as Mrs. Taylor is in Mercy hospital in Roseburg, where she underwent a major operation last Friday. Her condition is reported satisfactory and the confidence of her son's safety is expected to hasten her recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are the parents of one son and eight daughters.

DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

In the fifty-first Psalm David pours out his heart before God, acknowledges his transgressions, and prays that God will create within him a new heart, and renew a right spirit. In another place the Psalmist exclaims, "My heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God," and the prophet Jeremiah pleads, "Pour out your heart like water before the Lord." Hannah said to Eli: "I have been pouring out my soul before the Eternal," and she received her heart's desire. At Pentecost men said: "What meaneth this," and Peter gave the answer: "These are not drunken as ye suppose but this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel: I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and it shall come to pass that whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." There are things that men must pour out of their hearts before God can pour in His blessings. If we confess our sins He is faithful just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness, it all depends upon our willingness to confess our sins and believe He accepts the contrite heart we bring. Then let us come boldly to the throne of grace. Amen.
