railroad stations, he lies at his ease or sits up and plays with his toes while his basket-home sits on the floor. When the train is called, the basket is picked up by the handies and baby goes along in luxurious comfort instead of hanging over somebody's shoulder. At night he has his own berth, even though daddy and mummy have to sit up in a chair car.

These baskets are quite an institution.

THE smoking compartments, now as in peacetime, are political forums. At the moment, Barkley is the all-absorbing subject. His courage is admired and his sincerity is generally granted or his dumbness vary with the political complexion of those expressing them. Republicans and old-line democrats are wholeheartedly for him. To the more ardent new dealers, he's something bordering on a louse.

There is general agreement in the smoking room that what happened in Washington the other day, including Barkley's rebellion, is pretty likely to result in a row in the democratic convention that will remove all possibility of making FDR's nomination a love-feast in which all are of one mind.

INCLUDED in the smoking room forum is a sailor—a chief petty officer. The hash marks on his sleeve indicate 12 years of foreign service. His last assignment was in Newfoundland, and he's heading now for Farragut, where he's to be an instructor.

It's all in the day's work with him. He's inquiring of another sailor (a third class petty officer) about living conditions at Farragut—housing, entertainment, food, etc.

Both are slightly bald, both are professionals. To them the navy is a career. Life, as they know it, is bounded by navy regulations.

THIS is the point. The balding chief petty officer puts his two-bits worth into the smoking room political discussion with this brief statement: "Roosevelt's good enough for me, now and the rest of my life."

The slightly less balding third class petty nods his head in agreement.

THE incident starts one thinking. The thinking, inevitably, runs something like this:

Here are two men to whom regimentation and discipline are an established and familiar part of the fabric of life. They don't resent it. They don't even question it. It is rather probable they EVEN LIKE IT. After all these years, it is the only life they know. They would doubtless be LOST in any other background.

Schooled as they are in regimentation, knowing practically no other life, they say unhesitatingly that they are FOR A PERMANENT PRESIDENT.

IN other words, regimentation PROMOTES regimentation. Keep us regimented LONG

CORDON FOR U. S. SENATOR

By Charles V. Stantor

ATTORNEY GUY CORDON of Roseburg is being prominently mentioned as a possible appointee to the vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator Charles L. McNary. We know of no man in Oregon better suited to the task. His appointment would assure the state of a servant who has worked for a number of years with Oregon's congressional delegation, who is in complete harmony and sympathy with the ideas Senator McNary so ably championed in the Congress, and who, through ability and thorough understanding of the problems involved, would be capable of picking up the unfinished work of the late senator and carrying it on to conclusion in an efficient manner.

Furthermore, he has the complete confidence of Governor Snell, for whom he served as tax adviser at the last session of the state legislature, and would thus be able to coordinate his efforts with those of the state government.

Cordon's experience provides a uniquely suitable background for the office of United States senator.

He served for a number of years as assessor for Douglas county, resigning to enter military service as a lieutenant in field artillery during the first World war. He later became district attorney and set an outstanding record. Through his association with the offices of county assessor and district attorney, coupled with a deep interest in the land grant situation in Oregon, he has a thorough conception of the public lands problem and, because of this special knowledge, was selected as legal adviser to the Association of Oregon Land Grant Counties, a position which has since broadened to include representation of western states on public lands affairs.

Guy Cordon has always been a personal admirer of Senator McNary. The two were close friends and worked together on many problems affecting the state of Oregon. During the past few years, Cordon's work on public lands questions has caused him to spend much time in Washington, where he has become thoroughly familiar with congressional procedure. He has at all times had the advice and assistance of McNary and has, in turn, been helpful to the senator on numerous other matters.

His close relationship to the late senator would be of the greatest importance, should he be given the appointment.

Cordon, being a liberal republican and a strong believer in constitutional government, would continue in the senate the same beliefs and opinions which motivated Senator McNary in the latter's relationships with the republican party and the administration. No man yet suggested as a candidate comes nearer McNary's political convictions.

Furthermore, Cordon is one person who could be named without antagonism from any faction. The only organization with which he has been prominently affiliated in the state of Oregon has been the American Legion, which he served for one term as department commander. He has maintained a friendly relationship with labor, and at the same time holds the confidence of management.

Oregon's principal industries are timber and agriculture. Both received unstinted support from Senator McNary. Cordon is well-versed on the problems of both and would be able to continue the work so ably conducted by Oregon's beloved senator in the past.

We believe Governor Snell could make no better selection to fill the vacant post than Guy Cordon.

LETTERS to the Editor

HANDICAPS TO ROSEBURG BEAUTIFYING DEPLORED

Editor News-Review:
 Sir: A few years ago a spirit of civic pride was abroad in Roseburg. Every spring property owners cleaned up their property, improved their lawns, planted shrubbery and flowers and the city took on an air of beauty and culture.

Today, such an attempt to improve the appearance of one's home is hardly worth the time, trouble and expense. Junk yards, scrap piles and an altogether disreputable and unsightly situation has developed all too frequently in residential sections of the city.

If the above is not enough to discourage property owners, add to it the fact that apparently incorrigible children and dogs are permitted to roam at will, defacing lawns, breaking down shrubbery, trampling flowers into the ground, and to remonstrate with parents brings only insults, abuse and attempt at blackmail.

Situated as it is in this beautiful little valley, with a supervisor and control, Roseburg could be made comparable with Eugene, Medford and Ashland as a city of beauty and an altogether desirable place in which to live.

If there is no law now existing whereby this deplorable condition can be supervised and controlled, we respectfully suggest that it might well be worth while for the proper authorities to give the matter serious consideration.

Roseburg is growing fast, and will continue so to grow for many years to come, and we maintain that the consideration of beauty and cleanliness and the protection of property is just as necessary

ENOUGH and we'll come to PREFER IT.
 Someway that thought causes this writer to shiver slightly.

and important as is the consideration of population and business.

WOULD LET EACH NATION ADJUST OWN TROUBLES

Editor News-Review: Have been thinking about "after the war is over," then what? We hear much talk about giving to all the earth four freedoms. We, this U. S. A., are to make over the governments of the world and make of the nations one big world-wide democracy? Those who are doing the talking are taking for granted that the U. S. A. president will be the first world-wide president.

In a democracy elections are supposed to decide who shall rule. How could we be certain that a Japanese would not be elected president with a Japanese congress or cabinet?

The conceptions of life of the different peoples is so different, how could that be satisfactory? Then to think about a common language: Who would be capable of making a language acceptable to the whole world? The time was when all peoples spoke the same language and became so arrogant that the Lord confused the tongues.

There has been such confusion ever since that no power on earth could make a world wide "United States" work.

There is an old saying that no house is large enough for two families. As a nation we have been the object of envy of the whole world. Now anyone who stands for each country's right to have and control its own government is dubbed an "isolationist" with a slur of contempt.

I raised three sons and while they were single we had a happy home, but when each of them was married I did not want to expect them all to live together.

These are days when even two people have difficulty in getting along; the divorce applications captioned as "Vital Statistics" surely show that.

We have opened our immigration gates to those who prefer our form of government but we must not try to force the world to our ideals unless we want a continued war and to sacrifice all our young men and gain nothing. We must gain this war for what is rightfully ours, but we should do as we would be done by and let each nation do its own adjusting.

Champion Cagers Of Two Zones To Play in Roseburg

Marshfield and Springfield High Teams Will Determine Which Enters State Series

Marshfield and Springfield high school basketball teams will meet at the Roseburg high school gymnasium Friday, March 10, in an elimination game to determine which shall enter the state championship tournament to be held at Salem, Clyde Beard, principal of Roseburg senior high school, reported he had been requested by the managers of the two teams to make all local arrangements.

The Springfield Millers, undefeated for the season, won the championship of the Lane-Linn district, while Marshfield won the title for the Coos-Curry loop.

Both teams have played on the Roseburg court, which is a centrally located, neutral floor.

Principal Beard is urging Roseburg sports fans to keep the date in mind and to encourage use of the Roseburg floor in the future for play-off games by giving their support to the forthcoming contest.

Both Springfield and Marshfield have strong teams this year, although the Millers are generally accepted by sports followers as one of the best high school teams in recent years.

The Roseburg high school Indians played Springfield and Marshfield on successive nights, Feb. 11 and 12, being beaten 53 to 22 by Springfield and losing to Marshfield 35 to 32.

(we didn't think their last week's show was quite up to par) and Sinfonietta at 8:30. Arthur Fiedler will conduct Sinfonietta again this week, when they present Haydn's "Symphony No. 76" in E Major. No advance info on the other two shows listed above. For Wednesday—it's blood and thunder and gore galore at 1:30 with the weekly edition of True Detective Stories, and more of the same in the evening when Bulldog Drummond walks out of the night at 8:30 with his story of the Ghost Town Mystery. Of course both cases are brought to a satisfactory solution. This week's Soldiers With Wings marks the last appearance of this grand show—at least in this particular listening spot, since beginning March 8, (unless some gremlin does a fandango in the meantime) First Nighter will move in to the 6:30 time slot on Wednesdays. For their last 6:30 show Soldiers With Wings will entertain Dick Powell and Lucille Ball—and they, in turn, will entertain you. Speaking of Service shows—we'd like to know what's happened to Halls of Montezuma?—or is it another of those military secrets? That was our favorite of them all—or may be it was a tie with S. W. W. Anyway, we hope we'll get at least one of them.

Soldier Homesick Over Douglas Logging Scene

Private First Class Arthur D. Miller, stationed in Italy, writes the Roseburg chamber of commerce that he was made homesick by a motion picture shown recently in his camp, depicting a Douglas county logging scene. Miller, a former resident of the Rogue River valley, said that the scene reminded him of his last hunting trip before entering the army. The short subject related to methods used to combat the manpower shortage and showed a woman, who Miller referred to as "Mrs. Paul Bunyan," engaged in logging.

Radio Crooners Rapped at Juvenile Delinquency Probe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(AP)—Senator Andrews (D., Fla.) Decries, as a menace to juvenile morals, radio crooners who set "children yelling and screaming as though they were having fits."

Likewise, he said, heroes, "in pistol packing pictures shoot the man down and the blood runs until a boy thinks he won't amount to anything unless he gets two pistols and shoots somebody."

Andrews' remarks were made in a session of a senate subcommittee which he heads in an investigation into juvenile delinquency.

A witness, Judge Chris Barnett of Shreveport, La., commented that "women 'fall out' for a crooner because it's the expected thing to do now and it's the same with juvenile delinquency—children are delinquent because it's the thing to do now."

Barnette urged "a lot less talk about juvenile delinquency and more stress on parental neglect," asserting "people are money crazy and the desire to make more of it is greater than the desire to stay home and care for the children."

In connection with parental disregard, Judge Walter H. Beckham of Miami, Fla., told of getting this reply from a parent whose financial help was requested for his son:

"Feed Jesse to the sharks."
