A BEACON OF HOPE

(An Official Red Cross Message)

WHEN the Aircraft Warning Service was in existence, many of us served as airplane spotters. Perhaps you were one. Perched on the mountain top or some other high observation post you were enveloped in blackness except for the stars overhead. You were often cold up there, uncertain, and somewhat fearful of the destruction which might come tearing through the blackness.

Through the darkness which has fallen upon our land, the American Red Cross shines out like that beacon. In every city, town and village American homes have been touched with sorrow. Walk down any street and you will sense this by the number of stars in windows. Little blue stars on a field of white. Some windows have one star, some two, three or more. Each star represents a beloved member of the family who is off to war.

For each star there are many aching hearts at home. Is there a soldier's mother who does not pray for an opportunity to be at her boy's side to advise him, cheer him, comfort him, and with her tender hands smooth his furrowed brow? For these anxious mothers there is a source of great comfort in the thought that though they cannot go to their boys, the Red Cross can. Red Cross work overseas is mother's work, in other hands, and done for her.

The American Red Cross goes to every service man wherever he may be on duty, for its long arm of mercy embraces the globe. With it go the affection, sympathy and help of the American people to all those in the army and navy who are bearing for us the real burdens of this war. Thousands of Red Cross workers—men and women—are now serving our armed forces at home and abroad. They are not trained to fight and kill. Yet they live the lives of our soldiers. There is a mission of mercy to help maintain morale in the armed forces.

A chance to talk it out with someone when worried; a cigarette lighted by a friendly hand when one is lying wounded in an evacuation hospital; a Red Cross kit-bag when all of one's personal possessions have been lost on the battlefield; a hot cup of coffee and doughnuts in the cold gray morning when one has returned from a nerve-racking bombing mission. Little things? Yes, but how important to the fighting men! The Red Cross performs these services and many more in overseas clubs, on the battlefields, and in the military and naval hospitals.

As the late John Finley expressed it in his poem, "The Red Cross Spirit Speaks"—

The cross which on my arm I wear, The flag which o'er my breast I bear, Is but the sign Of what you'd sacrifice for him Who suffers on the hellish rim Of war's red line.

To those of us who watch and wait, the Red Cross indeed is a beacon of hope and relief. Your evidence of faith in his work is necessary for the morale of our fighting men. The best evidence of your faith is the little Red Cross in your window marked "1944 War Fund" as a companion piece to the little blue star on the field of white.

In Unity There Is Strength

"THAT IS, EVERYBODY BUT US!"

many of our accomplished projects fall of this, however they may be acclaimed. When people read of Tom Higgins and the first lamb's-tongue, how they wished they might have been there in the sunny, still glen near Lookingglass! Just looking for lamb's-tongues. There is no evil in such envy, if envy you may call a reaction so gentle as almost to be wistful. There is only a wish that one might have been where the lamb's-tongues were lifting. Lucky Tom Higgins the butcher!

Well, nonsense! Fortunately, if you will, but not lucky in the haphazard sense of a much abused word. Can it be luck if we contrive it ourselves, and take the dark woman's hand as a child might, and walk with her into the country a-looking for lamb's-tongues? For it is she that wakes the tree to leaf, and brings her the first flowers from the soil, and if you know her well she will show you the way to the lamb's-tongues. Let the butcher shop take care of itself for an hour or so. There ought to be lamb's-tongues in blossom at Lookingglass—and there were. With almost as much gratification as though we were writing about one of the family, we congratulate Tom Higgins of Roseburg on having found the first lamb's-tongue and regained the regional championship, which, we are told, he once held for eight consecutive years.

Sight-Saving Aids Are Offered Douglas Schools

Mrs. Ethel Fortin, representing the department of education's blind school, spent Wednesday and Thursday in Douglas county making a survey and recommending to the school personnel regarding the visual handicapped children of the schools. Mrs. Fortin presented sight-saving aids and especially printed books which may be used to assist in saving vision. Mrs. Mary A. Barrett and Mrs. Ethel C. Littler, county health nurses, accompanied her to the various schools in the county.

Senator McNary Laid to Rest With Simple Services

SALEM, Ore., Mar. 3.—(AP)—Saddened Oregon paid final homage today to Charles Linza McNary, who brought it more political renown than any other native son.

Funeral services as simple as the late senator's life, as unostentatious as his manner, brought out 22 senators and representatives from Washington, federal and state dignitaries from this and neighboring states, and hundreds of Oregonians who knew him as "Charley Mac" before and after his ascendancy to political power.

Rites were held in the house of representatives of the state capitol a few miles from McNary's farm home—vine-draped, single-story firestone, built on land settled by his pioneer grandfather before Oregon achieved statehood.

The service was brief, befitting the 1940 republican vice-presidential nominee whose penchant for short speeches was famous in the senate which he served from 1917 until his death at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a week ago today. It lasted only half an hour. Bishop Bruce Baxter of the Methodist church delivered a short sermon. Admiring Oregonians who respectfully laid his body to rest today hardly could have expressed their sorrow with more sincerity or simplicity than the Indians who said of their friend, the senator:

"Where will we find another man to befriend us, for this one has gone now?"

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Somethin' special catch your eye in the paper, Judge?" "Sure did, Chet... an article here telling about prohibition in India being written off by the Madras government as a dismal failure after a three-year trial. They found out that enforcement was ineffective and that there was a steady increase in bootlegging and other violations of the law which increased penalties failed to check."

"It all goes to prove what I've said time and time again, Chet... prohibition does not prohibit. It's been tried in this country 47 times in the last 33 years and discarded everywhere except in three states. Was found to be a failure and abandoned in Canada, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia, too. 'Some things happens every time... as soon as legal liquor is voted out, bootleg liquor with its crime and corruption moves right in.'"
