Congress' Role in Peace Plans Topic Of Conferences

WASHINGTON, April 13—(AP)—New slants on the role congress should play in writing the peace and on how it should be enforced emerged today from the state department and the house, where postwar topics are gaining increasing attention.

Chairman Bloom (D-N. Y.) of the house foreign affairs committee advocated a constitutional amendment whereby both the house and the senate could ratify the peace treaty by a simple majority vote. Now a two-thirds majority in the senate is required and the treaty of Versailles failed to get that.

At the same time, it was disclosed that state department studies on world security organizations have advanced to a point where this government is about ready to offer specific proposals. The plan, it is understood, rules out any kind of international police force built by recruits from many nations. Instead it calls for half a dozen or more of the major nations to maintain forces big enough to deal with potential trouble-makers.

This new concept of how the peace should be enforced is to be placed before informal bi-partisan groups of the house and senate for their opinions.

Bricker Lashes New Deal, Hull's Policy Statement

SEATTLE, April 13.—(AP)—Nomination of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio for president on an early ballot at the republican national convention was predicted today by Ralph E. Knapp, of Seattle, former republican speaker of the state house of representatives.

Knapp's forecast came after three days of vigorous campaigning by Bricker in Washington state, climaxed by an address last night in which he demanded the United States government "look out for its own interests because other nations are looking out for theirs."

Bricker declared the United States should demand that other nations cooperate with us.

"It is high time we realized that we can win the respect of the world not by the lavish expenditure of our taxpayers' dollars, but only by keeping our promises and by promising only that which we can fulfill," he said.

He lashed out at the present national administration, saying it had established "a great propaganda bureau at the cost of $100,000,000 a year to taxpayers to present only the best side of every development in Washington and every development in international affairs."

Bricker said he was for post-war cooperation but not "for an international police force which would have the power to order around our army and our navy over the combined judgment of the American people."

He referred to expenditures of American money in South America, declaring the government "apparently was embarked on a course of buying good will with dollars."

He said the state of Ohio recently was denied a priority by the War Production board on materials with which to build a hospital.

"You can imagine the feelings of the people of our state when we learned that the government had built 30 hospitals in South America with money provided by American taxpayers. Yes, we are helping other people, but we are helping our own people first."
