under the leadership of Chandra Bose who are fighting alongside the Japs and hoping to start a revolution in India.

If you've tried to follow this involved explanation, your head is probably going round and round by this time and you are feeling distinctly dizzy. To us uninformed outsiders, it's a lot like watching a dog fight in a dense cloud of dust. About all we can do is to wait for something definite to come out of the confusion.

There isn't much new in the Russian fighting as this is written.

The Reds are still cleaning up the Crimea, and apparently making good progress. They are also moving down the Lower Danister, pushing the Germans out of Bessarabia. They are inching nearer, from the north, to the Galati gap, where the Germans and their stooges, the Romanians, are evidently preparing for a last-ditch stand before the Ploesti oil fields.

Still farther north, at Skala, a German column has fought its way through and RELIEVED (temporarily, at least) the 15 German divisions that were trapped there. We must remember that this general Skala area is one of the defenses of the small Galician oil fields that lies just north of the Carpathians.

The Germans are fighting desperately (and skillfully) for every drop of ground that contains a drop of oil.

In the air war over Germany Tuesday, we (Americans) lost 64 bombers and 16 fighters. Losses such as that sober us. But we shot down in that one day 126 German planes and wrecked 58 more on the ground.

In four days, the dispatches tell us, AMERICAN planes shot down 352 German planes in addition to many destroyed on the ground. Our own losses in these four days aren't clearly stated. This rate of destruction, we are told, is GREATER than the German factories can replace.

When the German air power is broken, and we have COMMAND of the air over Europe, we'll move in for the kill. There seems to be little doubt of that.

(When that will be, no outsider can know.)

LITTLE VICTOR EMANUEL announces that as soon as the allied armies enter Rome he'll ABDICATE in favor of his son Umberto. His decision follows an allied conference that has been going on for a couple of days in southern Italy.

The poker seems to be getting too hot for Victor Emanuel to hold.

In the Nebraska primary, Stassen came out well on top in the voting. Wilkie, whose name was on the ballot because there hadn't been time to remove it after Wilkie's retirement, seems to have got about one vote for each 9 cast for Stassen.

Dewey, who wasn't on the ballot

UNESSENTIAL TRAVEL

By Charles V. Stanton

THE tragic stage wreck Wednesday near Azalea, resulting in two deaths and a number of injuries, brings into the spotlight once again the need for avoiding unessential travel. We are not intimating that any passenger on the ill-fated bus was travelling unnecessarily. We assume that all were on essential trips, but it is no secret that the transportation services of this country today are crowded by people who have no imperative need for the journeys they are making, but, lacking facilities for private transportation, having money to spend, and wanting to go some place, are occupying space needed by those who must utilize the accommodations for strictly essential purposes, or are crowding out service men and women on leaves and furloughs.

Because of the demands made by an uncooperative minority of the general public, the railroads, the bus lines and all other transportation services are forced to call into service obsolete equipment, utilizing every resource of manpower and rolling stock available.

Wednesday's wreck does not indicate any mechanical failure, although the bus was of an old style which, had travel been normal, would have been utilized only in reserve capacity.

We are not attempting to indicate that the wreck was occasioned by faulty equipment, or any failure or negligence on the part of the driver. It could have happened had there been only one vehicle on the entire Pacific highway.

The point we are trying to make is that the greater number of people who travel, the larger must necessarily be the percentage of accidents. The cause of the accident is not for us to say, but many tragedies have occurred throughout the country because transportation companies have had to utilize outmoded machines and because their services have been overcrowded and rushed. Repair and maintenance departments have not been able to maintain normal standards. Overworked railroad companies are rolling an engine into one terminal, turning it around and starting back over the route, without an opportunity for thorough inspection. All of this would be unnecessary if the public would heed the repeated warnings to eliminate unnecessary travel.

In addition to increasing hazards, pleasure travellers are depriving service men and women of accommodations.

An irate mother was in our office earlier this week. Her son, who had travelled across the continent on a furlough, which gave him only a few days at home before he went overseas, had to stand in a bus for more than 75 miles. Doubtless if all unessential riders had been removed, there would have been ample seating for the tired soldier.

Another soldier of our acquaintance, making an emergency trip, was unable to secure a berth at any time while travelling 3,000 miles by train. Transportation companies, the federal government and the military services are urging people not to travel if the trip can be avoided. We know it is not pleasant to stay at home all the time; that a great deal of enjoyment is to be secured in visiting friends and places. But in view of the demands being placed upon our transportation facilities by wartime conditions, it is imperative that we heed the request for cooperation if we are to promote travel safety and give our service men and women the break to which they are entitled.

And while we are commenting upon the plea to stay at home, and the fact that the OPA limits our gasoline so we can't drive the old family jalopy, we still have the comforting thought that with all their restrictions they can't keep our minds from wandering.

at all and who insists he isn't a candidate, is getting nearly half as many votes WRITTEN IN as were cast for Stassen.

Under the circumstances, that is an impressive Dewey showing.

Remember your State and Local News will be heard tonight at 7 o'clock.

Senator Cordón speaks again on the 7:15 spot usually occupied by the news. Just be sure to tune in by 6:30 so you'll hear Double or Nothing—and the news will follow immediately. Likewise, don't forget "Name That Song" at 8:30—and why don't some more of you good people send in some names to them? We might as well have a little slice of the California money up here to put into stamps and bonds. All you have to do is send in song titles, in groups of three, to us here at KRRR and we'll send them on in. And speaking of song titles, that leads us right into the subject of ballots on Downbeat Derby. That's the swell show you hear on Saturday night between 8 and 9 o'clock. You don't have to get official ballots any more—just make your choice for the "greatest record of all time" and mail it direct to Al Jarvis at KRL - Hollywood 38, California. Who knows, you may turn up a winner. Pianist-arranger and bandleader Stan Kenton will be at the starter's gate with Al Jarvis when Downbeat Derby gets set this Saturday. Kenton, currently Bob Crosby's orchestra leader, is featured as pianist with the band. Sounds like a good deal, so be a listener! come 8 o'clock tomorrow night. Don't overlook the Chicago Theatre of the Air at 6. This week they're doing your favorite, "Merry Widow," with some 4000 R. O. T. C. cadets as special guests. Gilbert Russell appears with Marion Claire to sing the leads this week—and the Colonel—yes, he'll be there too.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Quite a stack of newspapers I left you yesterday, Judge. Aren't you in the newspaper business, are you?"
 "No, I just enjoy reading different papers so my nephew George sends them to me whenever he takes a business trip. I got a big kick out of some he sent me from several counties where they still have prohibition. Particularly from some headlines that read 'Drunk Driving Arrests Rise'."
 "Bootleggers must post Ceiling Prices." "Federal Agents seize 'Trick' Liquor Truck." "Doesn't that go to prove, Joe, that prohibition does not prohibit?"
 "I watched conditions pretty carefully during our 13 years of prohibition in this country. The only thing I could see we got out of it was bootleg liquor instead of legal liquor... plus the worst crime and corruption this country has ever known."

Farm WAR NEWS

PROTEIN FEED STOCKPILES
 Oregon feeders and feed mixers have an opportunity now to build stockpiles of vegetable protein feeds against future shortages when increased demands and transportation bottlenecks interfere with normal movement to the northwest.
 N. E. Dodd, national chief of Triple A, advised the state feed advisory committee to urge every commercial feed mixer in the state to build up a 60-day inventory of oilseed meals as soon as possible.
 Farmers and feeders should be urged to buy next winter's supply of protein feeds. There are no quota restrictions on purchases of vegetable proteins by a farmer for subsequent mixing with grains provided by the farmer.

BINDER TWINE PRICES
 The 1944 victory binder twine made from a combination of agave and jute fibers will cost no more than the 1943 twine. OPA has announced that the 1943 ceilings will apply to 1944 twine.

WAR UNIT PLAN DROPPED
 Selective service officials have announced that the system of placing farm workers in deferred classification on the basis of number of farm war units had been abandoned. Hereafter, local boards will use the Tydings amendment of the Selective Service act for determining agricultural deferments.

The Tydings amendment directs local boards to defer any registrant found to be necessary to and regularly engaged in "agricultural occupation or endeavor" essential to the war effort, until replacement can be found. Final decision on granting any deferment is the responsibility of the local board.

Cooperation between county USDA boards and local selective service boards will continue in the matter of deferring farm workers, it was announced. Any changes in present county war board-local board relationships will await issuance of new instructions from the national level. County agents will continue to collect information concerning activities of individual registrants for the war boards.

EGG BUYING RULES EASED
 With lack of storage space blamed for much of the recent slump in egg prices, WFA is urging greater consumption of eggs by U. S. civilians and at the same time attempting to speed up its own purchases. Prices received by farmers have dipped to below 20 cents a dozen in some areas.

Government buying is expected to be speeded up by (1) permitting the loading of three grades instead of one in a car, providing there are 100 cases of such grade; (2) accepting offers daily instead of weekly; and (3) permitting cars to be loaded with both fiber and wood cases. Egg production this year is the largest on record—exceeding pre-war levels by 80 per cent.
