policy. He then proceeded to a report of progress (in a partial way), telling the AFL forum that these conclusions have been reached:

- 1. That the major nations and the law-abiding states should create an international organization to enforce peace and security.
2. That each nation subscribing to the program, and in due course all nations, should pledge not to use force except within the framework of the organization.
3. That each of the major nations and any others agreed upon should accept special responsibility for backing up the program.

READ these three conclusions carefully. Then study your OWN reactions. Having done so, this is probably what you'll find: That you'll WANT TO KNOW MORE.

You'll be almost certain, for example, to want to know WHAT KIND of international organization is going to be created (with US in it) and HOW peace and security are to be ENFORCED.

THIS is the point: The only way you can find out what you want to know is to ASK QUESTIONS and to have your questions answered by someone who knows.

That, in substance, is what is known as the process of information and debate. It is the process, and practically the only process, by which the people of democratically governed countries can become adequately informed as to the things they are being COMMITTED TO by those who are in charge of framing our foreign policy and making the agreements with other nations by which our foreign policy is to be carried out.

HERE is another point—of the HIGHEST importance:

If the people of the United States are not kept informed of the progress of the negotiations leading up to the agreements with other nations by which WE are to be bound, they will be likely to make their doubts and uncertainties known in such a way that the SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES will not ratify the treaty or treaties in which these agreements are included.

That happened after the last war. It can easily happen again. It will be LIKELY to happen if our leaders are as secretive about our present foreign policy as President Wilson was about his league of nations.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE LONG, it seems to this writer, is making a very great contribution to the proper information of the American people when he goes before public bodies such as the postwar forum of the American Federation of Labor and tells publicly what is being done in the way of framing an American foreign policy and what this policy will

OREGON NEEDS CORDON

By Charles V. Stanton

"In our determination to give everything that we are and have to the winning of the war, we are apt to minimize the gravity of purely domestic civil problems," declares United States Senator Guy Cordon of Roseburg in an article appearing in the current issue of The County Officer, official publication of the National Association of County Officials.

"The land policy of the United States has changed sharply within the last decade," Senator Cordon says in the magazine article. "The old policy of transmission to private ownership as rapidly as possible by homestead and otherwise, has given way to a policy of permanent federal ownership and land management, to which has been added an ambitious program for additional land acquisition. Much of the land is now being managed in competition with private ownership. It would seem that in view of the unequal distribution of these vast federal holdings, of the fact that they are being managed competitively with private lands, and of the further fact that there is no longer hope that they will ever go into private ownership and so become a part of the local government's tax base, there can no longer be any valid argument in opposition to the enactment of federal legislation providing for a fair and reasonable annual payment in lieu of taxes to the counties wherein the lands are located, or wherein they are to be acquired."

Cordon's position on the public land problem is clearly stated in one of his closing paragraphs, in which he says: "If the people of the United States elect to remain in the estate business, as would now seem to be the case, it is clear that some plan must be evolved which will provide for an equitable annual payment to local government in lieu of tax loss on these properties, which will be adequate in amount and certain in time of payment, so as to be integrated with private property taxation. Otherwise, local government must face a continual shrinking in its tax base, which can ultimately extinguish it entirely."

The enormity of the situation to which Senator Cordon is calling public attention, is shown in the fact that the federal government owns 20 per cent, or more than four hundred million, of the two billion acres comprising the continental United States. Ninety per cent of this federal ownership is in the eleven western states. Thus it may be seen that these states are most vitally concerned in future legislation which will equalize the tax load between private and federal interests. As the senator points out, a solution must be found to the problem or local government will be entirely extinguished by an overburden of taxation.

There is perhaps no man in the United States more fully informed upon this particular condition. Senator Cordon for many years has been engaged in a most intensive study of public land problems. Because of his knowledge and ability, he was for the past 10 years legal counsel for the Association of Oregon Counties, and has, since its creation, served as general counsel for the Interstate Association of Public Land Counties. He therefore, is in a position to be of the greatest service to Oregon and to all of the western states in the office to which he was recently appointed. He fills the place left vacant by the death of Senator Charles L. McNary. The late Senator McNary depended to a large degree upon Mr. Cordon for the factual data and the argumentation which entered into the public lands legislation which he so aggressively sponsored.

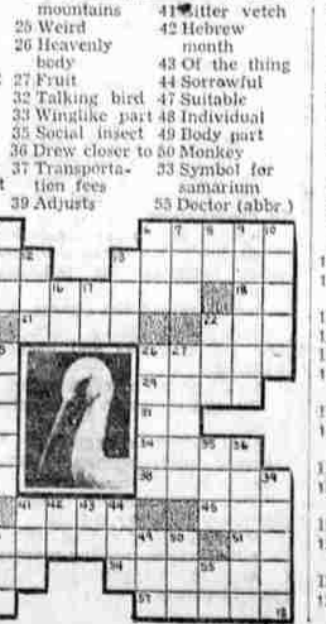

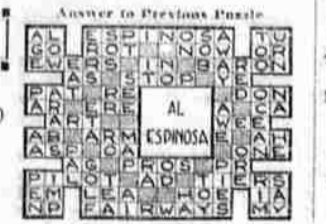

Oregon now has the opportunity to continue in office the one man best qualified to protect this state and neighboring states from the danger which already threatens from encroaching federal ownership; a danger which promises to increase, rather than diminish, unless adequate safeguards are maintained.

be like when it is framed. His statements will provoke discussion. Out of discussion will come complete information and understanding. Out of complete information and understanding will come public approval of our foreign policy IF that policy is sound and wise and embodies what the American people want done and are willing to BACK UP.

Hi-yah folks, have a nice week-end—ah and how was the fishing? Won't it be fun when the war's over and we can have fish fries again and nothing to worry about but who caught the most fish? Well, we can dream, can't we? In the meantime, there's lots of good radio listening spots to keep you entertained and cheered up. What's better than a good Monday evening at home with your radio set for 1490? There's Army Air Forces at 6:30; Lone Ranger at 7:30; Chuck and the Bunkhouse Boys at 8 (do we get our song this week?); and Point Sublime at 8:30. Sherlock Holmes at 10 o'clock has something very special cooking this evening—Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce, who play Sherlock and Dr. Watson, are being honored with an invitation to become members of the famous and exclusive society, "The Baker Street Irregulars." If you are ardent Sherlock Holmes fans, you'll identify the phrase immediately. Anyway the two actors will be presented with the membership scrolls on tonight's broadcast as a reward for the excellent work in this series, said presentation being made by Rupert Hughes, the noted author and lecturer. Besides all this Sherlock will be delving into "The Singular Contents of the Ancient British Barrow"—so you'll have a very full half-hour's entertainment. Remember Pegeen on Tuesday a.m. at 8:55. Organ Chimes at 11:15, and there's a new show starting on Tuesday at 1:15 that sounds good. It's "Open House," with Bob Stanley's orchestra and Sunny Skylar to do the vocals. We'll carry it Tuesday and Thursdays, so lend an ear tomorrow afternoon—we're betting it will be good.

NEWS OF OUR MEN AND WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Billy J. Schultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Schultz, Roseburg, has arrived at Amarillo, Texas, to start training in the army air forces, according to word received by his parents. He was a student in the Roseburg schools prior to entering military service.

PFC Robert H. Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Phillips, 1024 E. Fifth St., Roseburg, is now on duty as a truck driver for the engineer supply section with the South Pacific general depot on New Caledonia, according to word received from that base. This depot, with many million cubic feet of storage space in hundreds of warehouses, plus millions more under tarpaulins scattered over a hundred square miles, was established a few months ago by four officers and a small cadre of enlisted men. Today, with thousands of officers and men, it is a source of supply for everything from shoestrings to field guns. Phillips, a graduate of Roseburg high school, entered the army in June 1943 and has been overseas since December 1943. Since arrival in New Caledonia, Phillips has met Alvin J. Bosworth, Jr., of the army and Lewis Sutton of the navy, both from Roseburg. He has two cousins serving with the navy.

New Service Laundry Enrolled in Institute

The New Service Laundry of Roseburg has been accepted into full membership by the American Institute of Laundering, J. A. Hart, manager, announced today. The institute is the research and industry representative for the majority of the 5,000 professional laundries of the United States, Hart reported.

The membership gives the laundry the advantages of the institute's assistance through its service departments in engineering, research and textiles, accounting, sales and management and advertising.
