Howser Set Free After Jail Term In Timber Deal

B. J. Howser, former timber cruiser for Douglas county, who was recently sentenced to one year in the county jail and a fine of $1,000, with eligibility for probation after three months, was discharged from the county jail today upon order of Circuit Judge Carl E. Wimberly. Howser pleaded guilty to a statute used, so far as has been learned, for the first time in Oregon, charging acceptance by a county employee of consideration in connection with a contract for the sale of county-owned property. Howser was accused of arranging purchase of a tract of timber by a second party at a very low price, and then negotiating sale of the land at a considerable profit. The county recovered money paid on the contract. Howser paid his fine of $1,000 prior to being admitted to probation.

Oregon market price of 1943 shorn wool averaged 40 cents a pound, which was up 1.5 cents from the 1942 average price. The number of sheep shorn in the state is estimated at 1,277,000 head in 1943, down 175,000 head from the number shorn in 1942. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics says farmers probably would have received lower prices in 1943 for wool if no support programs had been available, as comparable grades of foreign wool were readily available at lower prices. Army orders, which provided the chief outlet for domestic wool, declined sharply in 1943. The WFA has announced that it will offer to purchase the 1944 domestic production of wool at the 1943 price, which is the current ceiling price less specific marketing costs.
